Dutch, Indonesian War Looms

Army Set To Attack Terrorists

Hague Order Starts Action

BULLETIN

BATAVIA, Java — (AP) — The government of the Indonesian republic said Dutch planes bombed Jogjakarta today.

BATAVIA, Java (Sunday) —(AP)— A full-scale war in Indonesia is expected as a result of the Dutch government's decision to take "police action" against what it calls terrorist elements.

An official communique from the Hague announcing the start of operations against these elements in order to restore order followed a Netherlands decree creating an interim Indonesian government without the Indonesian republic.

Dutch Marines were on guard today outside the headquarters of the Indonesian Republican delegation. It was announced that communications to the headquarters building have been cut off.

Thus far, there has been no official announcement of Dutch troop movements toward Republican territory. There were rumors in military quarters, however, that an offensive began at dawn.

It was believed here that a Dutch military sweep through Republican territory would be rapid since the Netherlands maintains a well-equipped army estimated at close to 150,000 men. The Indonesian republic has only poorly - equipped foot soldiers. Nonetheless, observers believed bloody guerrilla fighting would continue for a long time to come.

Dr. Louis J. M. Beel, governor-general of the Netherlands East Indies, described the "police action" as a "purge" in a speech prepared for the radio.

Addressing Dutch forces at sea, on land and in the air, Beel said: "Give your assistance in making this purge which unfortunately has proven necessary . . . so the unavoidable grief will be restricted to a minimum . . ."

"The recovery of this sick country," he said, "cannot begin properly until Republican territory has been purged of terrorizing powers."

PLEDGES ACTION

Beel then added: "With all the police and military means available, we shall relentlessly pursue the gangs of terrorists, and we shall no longer suffer them to carry on their practices, either in the territories already under our control, or in territories we are now going to liberate."

Beel said Holland can no longer allow the present situation in Indonesia to continue, "therefore, the Netherlands government, fully conscious of their duty, have decided, since no peaceful solution proves possible and all endeavors to this end have failed, nevertheless, to create for the territories which so far were not under their control, conditions which are needed for the realization of the aim in view, in the interest of the whole of Indonesia, and also in the interest of the whole world."

Austrian Pact Talk Reopened

LONDON —(AP)—Russia agreed Saturday to take part in a new effort to write a peace treaty for Austria.

The next move seemed to be up to the United States, whose representative was acting as chairman when the last four-power meetings on the subject ended without result.

All of the Big Four powers—the United States, Britain, France and Russia—have agreed now that negotiations should be resumed.

The talks over Austria's future broke down last May after weeks of wrangling here among deputies of the Big Four's foreign ministers.

The big issue was Yugoslavia's demand for a big slice of southern Austria, plus millions of dollars of reparations.

Russia supported Marshal Tito's claims. The United States, Britain and France balked.

BROKE OFF DISCUSSIONS

With little chance of agreement, the United States representative, Samuel Reber, broke off the discussions by refusing to call further meetings.

Since May, Russia's relations with Yugoslavia have changed. The Soviet-dominated Cominform has indicted Tito's government for pursuing an independent "nationalistic" policy.

In all probability, this coolness inspired the Austrian government to plead anew on Dec. 6 that the Big Four countries make another try 'on peace terms. The Austrians apparently hope the Russians no longer will back the Yugoslav claims.

Russia's "yes" was reported Saturday by Tass, the Soviet news agency, in a dispatch to Vienna.

Sex Slayer Kills Girl, 10

Body Found Near Cemetery

CHICAGO —(AP)— The ravished body of a pretty, blonde 10-year-old parochial school girl, missing since she left home Friday evening for a movie, was found Saturday in a ditch near a lonely cemetery. She had been beaten, gagged with her own panties and strangled.

The victim, Roberta Rinearson, was found by a railroad bridge attendant on his way to work. He spotted a girl's green coat in a ditch between Chicago and suburban Elmhurst. Coming closer, he saw arms and legs protruding.

The body was clad in a blue jumper dress of the type worn by pupils at St. Barbara's Catholic school in suburban Brookfield, where the Rinearson girl was a pupil.

The girl was tall for her age, and slender. She wore a pink sweater under her blue jumper.

Automobile tracks in the soft earth of the road shoulder where the body was found led police to believe her body had been dumped from an automobile.

Police said Roberta and two older sisters had been living for several years with their grandmother, Mrs. Anna O'Donoghue. They said they did not know the whereabouts of the victim's parents, Robert and Eleanor Rinearson. Rinearson, 41, formerly was a Chicago policeman.

Buyers Find Big Supply Of Evergreens

If you're going to buy a Christmas tree, you've got a big selection to choose from. Prices generally are lower than last year.

There are more Christmas trees on Mansfield lots than there has been for a long time, perhaps the largest number in history. Estimates of the stocks range up to 40,000.

This abundance of trees, one dealer said, has glutted the market and has forced him to reduce prices. Dealers agreed that customer resistance to the prices is more marked than it has been for several years. They said they expect a buying flurry this week and do not expect the "bottom to fall out of the market."

He Sees Fire Rule Too Late

MUSKOGEE, Okla. — (AP) — Joseph H. Smalley settled down in an easy chair at home to read an item in the paper about fire hazards around Christmas time.

Thoughtfully, he reached over and pulled the plug from the socket—the one hooked onto the Christmas tree lights. There was a flash, the Christmas tree blazed and the interior of the apartment suffered heavy damage before firemen put out the flames.

On down in the item — which Smalley didn't quite finish—it said: "Rule No. 7—Do not plug or unplug lights beneath the tree."

Clear Fork Job to Be Resumed

Financing Hitch Delays Work

A series of agreements between Roger J. Au, contractor on the Clear Fork dam and pipeline, and the General Casualty and the Richland Trust companies cleared the way yesterday for resumption of work on the Clear Fork project.

Work on the pipeline and high-lift pumping station, the latter being built by the Richland Construction company with which Au has a sub contract to supply pipe, has been held up during the past several months because of a delay in the shipment of pipe.

The delay was caused by the fact that Au owed the Lockjoint Pipe company, of East Orange, N. J., money for previously delivered pipe and the firm refused to make further shipments until the bill was paid, City Auditor Paul L. Kelly said.

By terms of the agreements, signed by Kelley and approved by City Solicitor C. J. Kalbfleisch yesterday, the bottleneck holding up the shipment of pipe was broken.

The agreements embodied a satisfactory settlement of debt owed by Au to the Lockjoint company, the auditor said.

DAM FINISHED

The Clear Fork dam is finished. The high lift pumping station, located at the end of Cook road, about a mile from the dam, is more than half complete and should be finished in the spring. The 24-inch pipe line from the Woodland reservoir to the high-lift pumping station also is nearly complete.

With the completion of the pipeline and high-lift pumping station, Mansfield can expect an additional 1,000,000 gallons of water per day, city officials said.

The water will be pumped from the present wells to the high-lift station and through the pipeline to the Woodland reservior. At present the water flows from the Maxwell fields through 12 and 14-inch lines to Mansfield.

Meanwhile, the Jennings-Lawrence company, consulting engineers on the Clear Fork project, are drawing up plans for a filtration plant, a low-lift pump station and a raw water pipeline.

These three items are needed to bring water from the dam to the city. The low-lift pumping station will be built at the dam site and the filtration plant at the site of the high-lift pumping station. The raw water pipeline will connect the two units.

Ashland Firm Head Resigns

ASHLAND—(AP) — Wallace Delaney resigned Saturday as president and board chairman of the Faultless Rubber Company, the city's second largest industry.

He said he planned to devote himself to research and rubber development projects.

T. W. Miller Jr., vice president and a director, will succeed him at Faultless.

LINER HITS DIKE

NAPLES—(AP)—The Polish liner Sobieski crashed into a dike while entering Naples harbor last night. The ship will be taken into dry-dock.

CHRISTMAS DAYDREAMS—At this season of the year, it's easy for any young lad or lassie to conjure up beautiful day dreams, just as Corky Heestand is doing here. There are so many nice gifts to anticipate that everything seems to have a rosy hue at Christmastime, as the expression on Corky's face shows. Cork is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Heestand, 489 Crescent avenue.

Brighten a Christmas

Yule Fun Missing For Family of 8

A Mansfield family of eight is facing a bleak Christmas. The father has been steadily employed and able to care for his family in the past. This year, however, there will be difficulties in giving the family even the barest necessities.

Last spring the father was injured while working, and he has been unable to earn sufficient money since then to support his wife and six children. He has been receiving aid from the local relief office, but Christmas gifts or an extra-special Christmas dinner are out of the question.

Another Mansfield couple, the father employed, is having difficulty clothing six children.

There will be food for the Christmas dinner, but a few items of warm clothing to protect them from the cold weather would brighten their holidays. The children include boys 10 and 12 years of age, a girl seven, twin boys of six, and a boy two years old.

NEEDS OPERATION

A gift of cash to help defray the costs of an impending eye operation would be the nicest gift a middle-aged Mansfield man could receive. He is nearly blind, but manages to pay his own living expenses from a small monthly pension.

Two youngsters, a boy 10 and a girl 8, are not anticipating much in the way of Christmas joy this year. Their father was killed in an accident recently, and their mother will be financially unable to provide gifts for her youngsters.

You may help "Brighten the Christmas" of any of these families by calling Mrs. Margaret Mattox at the News-Journal office daily, except Sundays, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Truck Crash Starts Fire

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— A 15-ton trailer truck went out of control after a collision Saturday, ripped down a telephone cable, leap-frogged across a two-foot wall and crashed into a house, setting it afire.

The truck also was enveloped in flames and its driver, Charles Esworthy, 35, of Harrisburg, Pa., kicked out a windshield to escape. He was burned severely.

The driver of the car, which was knocked downhill and into a pole, also was hurt. He is 77-year-old John W. Smith. His injuries include a possible brain concussion.

Stores Set For Rush

Holiday Shoppers Enter Home Stretch

Mansfield stores and the bus company are prepared for tardy Christmas shoppers.

Most of the stores, anticipating a flood of last-minute shoppers, will be open nightly until 9 from Monday through Thursday. They will close at the usual hour Friday to give employes a chance to spend Christmas eve with their families.

As a convenience to shoppers, Mansfield Rapid Transit, Inc., will operate buses on 20-minute schedules until 9 during the four evenings the stores are open. Usually buses go on half-hour schedules at 7 p.m.

Thousands of gift buyers crowded into stores again yesterday. Traffic was slowed in the downtown area by the throngs and parking places were hard to find.

Merchants said they still have adequate stocks of Christmas goods, and shoppers who waited until this week to fill their gift lists won't be disappointed.

Reds Want Town

BERLIN —(AP)— The British-licensed newspaper Telegraf said today Gen. Alexander G. Kotikov, Soviet commandant, requested the French commander last night to evacuate the village of Stolpe, in the French sector of Berlin. The report could not be confirmed officially immediately.

Cash Bonuses at Plants Total Nearly $200,000

Santa Carries Full Pack for Mansfield Workers

Santa has a full pack for thousands of workers in Mansfield business and industrial establishments.

By the end of this week, employes of industrial plants will have received more than $193,000 in cash bonuses and profit-sharing funds plus food and other gifts from their employers.

Mansfield Tire and Rubber company employes received a total of $65,000 in gift checks from the company Thursday. Approximately 2,500 employes who were on the payroll as of December 10 shared in the bonus. Amounts of checks varied according to service records. Employes who had service records of more than six months received $30, those with records of 60 days to six months got $20, and employes who had worked less than 60 days, $10.

The Tappan Stove company will distribute $50,000 in cash to its employes this week. Employes of one year or longer will receive equal shares of the annual Christmas bonus. Those who have worked for less than one year will receive amounts based on the number of months they have been employed by the company.

Approximately 100 employes of the Dominion Electric corporation, who were participants in the company's 1944 profit sharing plan, will receive a total of $45,000 this week. Individual checks will be based on the 1944 earnings of the employe, since this year's checks will be paid from the amount deposited in 1944 plus interest.

In addition to the profit-sharing checks, all office, engineering, clerical, and supervisory personnel will receive special year-end bonuses next week.

Last Friday 120 employes of the Gorman-Rupp company received checks for approximately $270 each at the company's annual Christmas dinner party at the Richland Recreation Center. The checks were paid from the company's profit sharing fund. Employes received a total of $575 for the year. Checks for the first half were distributed June 30 and Christmas savings checks Dec. 1.

The Norwalk Truck Lines paid Christmas bonuses to some 16 Mansfield employes yesterday. Thomas Dorsey, manager of the

Fifty Injured; Flames Sweep Both Vehicles

DELLE, Utah — (AP) — Two Burlington trailways buses crashed and burned on a bleak, western Utah highway Saturday, killing at least 13 persons.

State highway patrol authorities said an estimated 40 to 50 passengers were injured.

The accident occurred about 12:20 p. m. (MST) on a straight stretch of windswept highway six miles west of Delle and 63 miles west of Salt Lake City.

The charred wreckage was so tangled officers said they had not determined what caused the accident. They said they believed one of the buses may have skidded on the icy pavement.

The 12 shrouded bodies alongside the highway had been burned, some to a black crisp. Sheriff C. A. Hymas said identification would be difficult. The 13th victim died hours later.

"We do not know who they are," he said. He added that identification tags were found on some of the bodies, apparently those of military personnel.

The driver of the eastbound bus, D. W. Eggers of Salt Lake City, was killed, bus company officials said. Driver of the westbound bus, Charles Harris, also of Salt Lake City, escaped serious hurts but was cut and burned.

Passing motorists, some of them doctors, assisted in giving first aid. All available ambulances, doctors and nurses were summoned from Tooele, county seat town 35 miles to the southeast. The naval supply depot at Clearfield, north of Salt Lake City, sent its senior medical officer and two ambulances.

"Our bus seemed to just burst open, throwing me part of the way out," said Pfc. Joe Wilson, 23, of Wichita, Kas., an occupant of the eastbound bus.

"Everyone was too stunned at first to move. By the time I got to the other bus it was too hot to help get people out. I counted at least seven bodies, one of them a woman, before they took us to a first aid station."

Another occupant of the eastbound bus, Pfc. Frank W. Myers, 21, of Mather Air Force Base, Calif., said "Everything was in a mess."

"When the bus hit," he said, "it was just like being tied into knots. I went out a rear window. Quite a few escaped by diving through windows, but many were badly burned."

He said the bus passengers included soldiers, sailors and civilians.

DRIVER ESCAPES

Harris, the driver, said he escaped from the burning westbound bus by breaking the windshield. He smashed windows and helped passengers out.

"I pulled as many men as I could out of the bus, and it was still burning," he said.

Motorists differed in telling of weather conditions at the time. Some said there was a heavy fog while others said the air was almost clear. Snow several inches deep covered the sagebrush flatland alongside the highway.

The largest undamaged piece of wreckage found at the scene was the left front wheel of one bus. Partially burned clothes and luggage were scattered about.

The wreckage burned for several hours, with fire fighting equipment summoned from Tooele finally extinguishing the blaze.

Four hours after the crash workmen still had not probed entirely through the smoldering wreckage. Some persons at the scene expressed belief then that one or more bodies might still be recovered.

The westbound bus appeared to have been almost split in two by the impact.

Lavar Tate, a Tooele ambulance driver, said he took 30 injured persons to Tooele. Others were transported to Salt Lake City.

"Many of the injured were burned," Tate said. "I handled 20 of them and all were burned to some degree."

The bodies were taken to undertakers in Tooele.

Infant Hurt Seriously In Auto Crash

Melco Mother Also Suffers Injury

A five-month-old girl was seriously injured yesterday at 5:20 p. m. when the car driven by her mother left State Route 39 three miles east of Lucas and crashed into a large boulder in a field.

The infant, Susan Trumpower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Trumpower of Melco, suffered a depressed skull fracture and was rushed to the White Cross hospital in Columbus after being given emergency treatment at Mansfield General hospital.

Her mother, 32, suffered a severe laceration of the forehead. She was treated by a Lucas physician.

Mrs Trumpower's other two children, Robert, 6, and Karen, 5, escaped injury.

The state highway patrol reported the accident occurred when Mrs. Trumpower started to pass a line of cars as she traveled southeast on State Route 39, near State Route 603.

As she started down a long hill, the patrol said, another car pulled out in front of her, and to avoid a collision she swerved to the left, going into a field and hitting a large boulder.

In another traffic mishap, Richard Jacobs, 8, of 266 Marshall avenue, suffered hand and leg abrasions when he ran into the path of a car driven by Harris W. Frye, 64 Chilton avenue at 2:30 p. m. yesterday. The accident occurred in front of 21 South Adams street.

Frye told police the child darted from between two parked cars into the path of his car. The boy was taken to a physician who treated him and sent him home.

Bus Mishap Injures 5

Eight persons injured yesterday when a Greyhound bus overturned in Litchfield, Medina county, were taken to Lodi and Medina hospitals, but none was reported seriously hurt.

Fire Chief William Baisch of Litchfield said the heavy vehicle was wrecked in the village's public square when the brakes apparently failed. There is a sharp curve at the scene of the accident on State Route 18. Litchfield is 10 miles west of Medina.

The bus, operated by John Philip Miller of Akron, was hauling 21 passengers. It was en route from Pittsburgh to Detroit.

Taken to the Lodi hospital were Miller. Miss Mid Mancine, 21, of Detroit; Miss Annie Clysdale, 24, of Moortown, Ontario; Raphael Feneck, 39, of Detroit; Charles Higelmire, 30, Easton Rapids, Mich., and Sam King, 50, Detroit. In the Medina hospital were Miss Jean Waldeck, 25, of Sarnia, Ont., and Marvin Blair, 19, Detroit.

Say Short Hours Will Hike Rates

WASHINGTON — (AP) — It would take a $400,000,000 annual increase in freight and passenger rates to pay for a 40-hour week for railroad workers, transportation experts calculated Saturday.

A cut in the present 48-hour work week, coupled with a seven cents an hour pay raise, has just been recommended by an emergency investigating board appointed by President Truman.

'Unloaded' Gun Wounds Woman

DETROIT —(AP)— Dorothy Gay, 27, was glad to oblige when her inquisitive 7-year-old twins asked her to show them how her .38 caliber revolver worked.

In a hospital for treatment of a wounded hand, she blushingly gave the traditional explanation that she didn't know the gun was loaded. Mrs. Gay is a policewoman.

MRS. FORREST ELEY —Photo by Perez-Smucker

Miss Katherine Ann Murphy Wed To Forrest C. Eley In Church Rite Saturday

MISS KATHERINE ANN MURPHY chose an informal wedding gown of bridal satin for her marriage to Forrest Clifton Eley Saturday at 2:30 in St. Luke's Lutheran church. A peplum jacket buttoned down the front with tiny buttons up to the little turn-back collar was worn over an empire bodice dress. The jacket peplum was cut to a rounded effect in the very full back. A puffed wide band encircled the peplum all around which gave quite a full bustle effect to the dress. The full skirt of the gown extended into a medium length train and was worn over a stiff crinoline skirt. The sleeves to the jacket were long and tight and closed with numerous buttons at the wrist.

The Rev. Herbert S. Garnes officiated for the double ring ceremony before an altar decorated with green palms, two beauty baskets of pastel flowers and white flowers.

Miss Murphy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. LaVergne Murphy, South Main street, and Mr. Eley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest W. Eley, 206 Maull street, Newark, Ohio.

David S. Hill of San Francisco, fraternity brother of the bridegroom, presided at the organ for the nuptial music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a white orchid on a white Bible, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Robert Browning, Dublin, Ohio, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Miss Dona Reese, friend, and Miss Dorothy Estep, cousin of the bride, were the two bridesmaids.

The three attendants were attired in like styled gowns in a very rich satin brocade in a rose pattern. The two bridesmaids wore aqua with little matching hats of brocade in a poke bonnet effect with the same color of ostrich tip trim. The matron of honor wore pink with a matching hat using the two shades in the ostrich trim on her bonnet. All three wore gauntlets of matching brocade.

Colonial style bouquets of pink flowers were carried.

Mrs. Murphy wore a navy dress with pink accessories. Mrs. Eley chose a grey dress with black accessories for her son's wedding. Both mothers' wore gardenia corsages.

Randell McKechnie, Great Neck, Long Island, New York, fraternity brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The guests were escorted to their pews by Richard Gifford, Ravenna, Ohio, fraternity brother of the bridegroom, Wayne Murphy, Dale Murphy and Lloyd Murphy, all brothers of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony in the church parlors, the bridal party received 100 guests. The tables were decorated with flowers and candles. Two aunts of the bride, Mrs. Carl E. Murphy and Mrs. Sherman H. Stone, presided at the table. Mrs. Carl E. Murphy is from Columbus.

The new Mrs. Eley wore a black fitted coat with wine accessories over a brown tweed suit for her wedding trip to a winter resort in the middle west.

After their honeymoon, the couple will reside in Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Mrs. Eley is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and was employed in the production office at Ideal Electric company. Mr. Eley is a senior student at Kenyon college, affiliated with the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is a veteran of World War II.

Out-of-town guests present at the wedding were from Columbus, Gambier, Newark and Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Ruth Damron Wed In Granville

MISS RUTH MEREDITH DAMRON, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Carl R. Damron, 30 South Mulberry street, was married last night in a candlelight service to Robert Harold Erickson, son of Mrs. H. W. Erickson, of Aurora, Ill.

The ceremony was performed in Swasey chapel, at Denison university, with Dr. K. I. Brown, president of the university officiating. Brayton Stark, teacher and organist at Denison, played a program of nuptial music.

The church platform, banked with poinsettas and palms, bore four seven-branch candelabras. Along the aisles were burning tapers in double wrought iron candelabras.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of heavy ivory satin, styled with a wide heart-shaped neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Satin cording outlined the tightly-fitted bodice and soft unpressed pleats extended into a full skirt terminating in a long cathedral train. She carried a bouquet of white snapdragons and carnations centered with her going away corsage.

Her veil was cathedral length edged in lace, secured to a pearl head dress.

Miss Mary Morris, Hinsdale, Ill., served as maid of honor. She is the bride's brother's fiancee Misses Alma Jean Foulds, Webster, N. Y., and Myra Glasser, Lakewood, both sorority sisters of the bride, acted as bridesmaids.

They wore like gowns of taffeta with wide heart-shaped necklines and cap sleeves. The full skirts fitted plainly over the hips with bustle backs and cascading ruffles extending into wide flounces around the hemline. The skirts were worn over hoops. Matching mitts and braided halos studded with pearls completed the ensembles. The maid of honor wore a gold dress with a moss green hat, and the bridesmaids wore moss green dresses with gold hats.

They carried bouquets of poinsettas and red carnations tied with ribbons matching their head dress.

The bride's mother wore a floor-length elephant grey crepe dress with an orchid corsage. Mrs. Erickson was gowned in a black dress and wore a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Thomas R. Conklin, Aurora, Ill., friend of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were George DuBois, Pittsburgh, Russell De Vette, Holland, Mich., and Gordon Banks, Chicago.

A reception was held at the Alpha Phi sorority house immediately following the ceremony.

Miss Damron changed to a wine three-piece suit with black suede accessories for her honeymoon trip through the South. When they return they will reside at the College apartments, Evanston, Ill.

The bride was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and is now a senior at Denison. She is a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Mr. Erickson attended the University of Illinois and was graduated from Denison. At present he is a graduate student at Northwestern university. He is also a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Sprunger-Turner Vows Exchanged At First Lutheran Church Saturday

GREENERY and Christmas trees formed an unusual background for the pretty wedding ceremony solemnized Saturday afternoon for Miss Dorothy Mae Sprunger and Raymond Weld Turner. Vows were exchanged before the altar of the First English Lutheran church with Rev. C. P. Mitchell, officiating.

Seven branch candelabra illuminated the scene as the couple spoke their vows before many relatives and friends at 3:30 o'clock. A program of nuptial music was played by Mrs. Clayson Bell preceding the ceremony. Soloist was Miss Louise Turner, sister of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Sprung-

Newman Club To Fete Boys

Eighteen members of the Newman school Mothers club met recently at the school with Mrs. Charles Perman, vice-president, presiding.

Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Martin, Mrs. Kenneth Bennet, Mrs. Carl Kline and Mrs. Carl Finfgeld.

Plans were made to hold a covered-dish dinner for the patrol boys Jan. 19 at 1:30 p. m. at the school. A report was given on the bazaar held Dec. 3.

The gift for the class with the most mothers present was awarded to Mrs. Beatrice Wolfe, first grade teacher. Christmas carols were sung, and the group was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Kline.

Games were played and prizes were won by Mrs. Addison Tatton, Mrs. Henry Hagar and Mrs. Perman. Refreshments were served later at tables decorated with Christmas ornaments.

Buckley-Schuster Vows Read

In a quiet service in the study of the First Presbyterian church, Della Buckley, 154 West Temple court, became the bride of Master Sergeant Frank Schuster jr., 165 Arthur avenue, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. David N. Roller officiated in the presence of close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hess.

For her wedding the bride wore a royal blue dressmaker suit with matching hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of white gardenias. Mrs. Hess wore a grey suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Swanson, Chaetopa, Kan., and Mr. Schuster's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schuster sr, 165 Arthur avenue.

Following a honeymoon through the middle west and to Kansas City, the couple will reside at the West Temple court address.

Last Papers In Spy Case Made Public

Documents Bared By Investigators

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Top secret state department papers indicating Hitler claimed British agreement to the Nazis' moves against Austria and Czechoslovakia were made public Saturday by congressional spy probers.

They were the last batch of 58 documents constituting 114 pages of material which the House un-American activities committee said were filched from state department files and relayed to Whittaker Chambers, ex-communist, for transmission to Russia.

The committee has no evidence Chambers ever sent the documents to Russian agents. The former communist operative has named Alger Hiss, former state department official as one of the sources of his information. Hiss, pleading innocent, is under federal indictment on two perjury charges growing out of the case.

The documents are dated 1938 and 1937. Six of them were copied from microfilm found in a pumpkin on Chambers' Maryland farm. The others were typed copies of files Chambers gave the committee.

Only a handful of documents were withheld from publication at state department request. One of them, at least, referred to activities of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign minister, and Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister.

Seven documents released yesterday were dated in February, 1938, and addressed to the secretary of state, then Cordell Hull. They came from William C. Bullitt, ambassador at Paris; John C. Wiley, consul general at Vienna, and Prentiss B. Gilbert, counsellor of the U. S. embassy in Berlin.

REVEALED NAZI MOVES

Besides referring to Hitler's profession on British support for some of his pre-war moves, the documents dealt with the Nazis' other plans for European conquest and primarily with the pressure applied by the Germans to Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria just before the Nazis took over that country.

In February, 1938, one of the documents related, Hitler's generals had advised against the display of force for another year because they did not believe the German army was ready to fight a major war with France and England.

Those two nations actually declared war on Germany on September 3, 1939, two days after the Nazis entered Poland.

The document in which Hitler claimed British backing was a "rush" and "strictly confidential" message from Wiley to Hull on Feb. 16, 1938.

Guido Schmidt, Austrian minister for foreign affairs, was represented as believing German troop maneuvers on the Austro-German border were not unusual and did not constitute a military maneuver against Austria. However, a month later the troops seized Austria and on March 12 Hitler himself entered that country.

Wiley's note told of Hitler's plans to have Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Austrian Nazi leader, unite Nazi elements in Austria. When Von Schuschnigg resigned as chancellor of Austria on March 11, 1938, Seyss-Inquart succeeded him.

A note from Bullitt, dated Feb 15, quoted a French informant identified as "Leger" as having reported that Berchtesgaden the Austrian chancellor "had been received with the utmost brutality."

Bullitt sent a second note saying an informant in the Austrian legation had advised him that "for the past two weeks Italy has assured Austria that in the event of German aggression against Austria, Italy will mobilize."

Bullitt sent two other notes, on Feb. 16 and 17, relating conversations with the Belgian ambassador to Berlin and arrangements for a meeting between Joachim von Ribbentrop German foreign minister, and Francois Poncet, French diplomat.

Film Writer's Claim Upheld

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A federal court jury took four hours to uphold film writer Lester Cole's suit for reinstatement to his $1,350-a-week job at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios but final judgment will not be made until Monday.

Cole, one of "the Hollywood ten," also sued for $71,550 in back pay. He was suspended a year ago after being held in contempt of Congress for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether he was a communist.

U. S. Judge Leon R. Yankwich will rule Monday on terms of the judgment.

Red Propaganda Builds New City

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A group of midwestern farmers just back from Europe said they picked up a sample of communist propaganda. It puts a new twist on UNRRA, the former international agency from which Europeans received large amounts of aid.

According to the communists, UNRRA is a Russian city near Moscow.

"Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"

Music's In Air

Second annual city-wide Christmas carol sing will be held tonight under leadership of Mansfield high seniors. The festival, in the making for weeks, has been planned by a Senior high committee headed by Dick Van Voorhis.

Fourteen groups of young people will take their places at an equal number of intersections in the city for their singing march to Central park.

The song-fest will last for half an hour, beginning at 9:45 p. m., the time when the hundreds of carolers are expected to reach the park. Bleachers will be erected this afternoon in the park. There, tonight, 31 members of the Senior class choir and 38 of the Junior class choir, carrying lanterns, will lead the singing for the crowd. They will be directed by Dick Butts.

The marchers who will converge on the park will include groups from the First Evangelical UB, First Presbyterian, First Christian, First Methodist, Park Avenue Baptist, St. John's Evangelical, First Congregational, Mayflower and East Mansfield United Presbyterian churches, and members of the Senior Hi-Y and Senior Blu Tri clubs, the Sophomore Blue Tri and a group of young people from Pavonia.

Ohioan Will Get Big Job In Congress

Clevelander Has Long Experience

By FRED J. ZUSY

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Seventy-four-year-old Robert Crosser of Cleveland steps into a big job when the 81st Congress convenes Jan. 3.

In line with the seniority rule which controls committee chairmanships, the veteran Ohio Democrat will become head of the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

This will be Crosser's most important assignment in his 32 years in Congress. He first won his seat in the House in 1913 and with the exception of four years after the first war, has been there ever since.

His committee passes on all legislation relating to such major government agencies as the communications, interstate commerce and power commissions, the civil aeronautics board, the civil aeronautics authority, the public health service, the commerce department and the federal trade commission.

That means it plays an important part in shaping laws concerning radio and television, telephones, railroads, interstate waterways, interstate bus and truck transportation, natural gas, airways, air safety regulations, foreign commerce and other major subjects.

New legislation is likely to be proposed in many of these fields in the coming session.

Allocation of radio and television channels, for example, is a question that may come up. Crosser says it's "not unlikely" his committee will hold hearings in this field.

He intends, however, to confer with members of the committee before deciding on a definite program.

Studies in Ohio show that strip-mine areas, denuded by openpit coal mining, have great possibilities for wildlife and forestry use.

The wildlife management institute reports that C. V. Riley, a graduate student with the Ohio cooperative wildlife research unit has obtained "encouraging results" from research in rehabilitation of these areas.

It says that experimental projects, including planting of trees, bushes and other cover in Tuscarawas county, resulted in larger wildlife populations than on adjacent unmined agricultural lands.

The institute says that organizations working on the problem include the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources, the Ohio Cooperative Wildlife Research unit and the Association of Strip Miners.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in Ohio, with cancer and other malignant tumors next in importance.

The public health service reports that 26,213 persons died of diseases of the heart in the state in 1947. Another 10,991 died of cancer or tumors.

The heart deaths comprised 31.9 per cent of the total 82,254 state deaths that year. The cancer or tumor percentage was 13.3. Both these figures are nearly identical to national percentages.

Automobile accidents rate 10th among the various causes of death. A total of 1,864 Ohioans, or 2.2 per cent of all those who died, lost their lives in this fashion last year. This is the same percentage as nationally.

Other accidents, exclusive of motor vehicles, took the lives of 3,687 persons in the state.

New Trial Ordered

A new trial of a $25,000 damage suit involving the accidental death of a Mansfield football player has been ordered by thhe Fifth district court of appeals.

An Ashland county Common Pleas court decision for the Pennsylvania railroad as defendant in the action was reversed by the district court. Attorney J. V. Will, representing the accident victim's brother, said yesterday.

The case grew out of the death of Michael Zivkoff, Senior high football star, in a grade crossing crash in Loudonville April 4, 1945. Miss Lois Veach, 16, of Loudonville, Zivkoff's companion, also was killed.

Peter Zivkoff, 470 Cline avenue, brother of the victim and administrator of his estate, filed the damage action against the railroad. He charged negligence.

Judge H. E. Culbertson last March directed a jury to return a verdict for the railroad company on grounds the evidence had showed that the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence.

The appellate court in its opinion held that the evidence and pleadings constituted a jury question as to the negligence of the defendant and no evidence was offered that the decedent was familiar with the railroad crossing or could see well enough at night to be adjudged guilty of contributory negligence.

The plaintiff is represented by attorneys Anderson, Will and O'Donnell, and the railroad by Russell Burt of Canton.

Roseland Grange Plans Dinner Party

Roseland Grange, No. 2668, will hold a covered dish dinner and entertainment Tuesday evening, starting at 6 p.m., at the Delano lodge hall on Bowman street.

The party will be open to Grange members and their families, Olin F. Moore, Grange secretary, said.

The cost of SQUEAKS is way up, too!

Squeaks in your car mean dollars out of your pocket when you go to trade her in. They're signs of metal wearing away—and it doesn't take much of that to put a car on the junk heap.

So don't wait until your car groans for lubrication. Drive in now for a check-up. Our lubrication man will turn his eagle eye on everything—oil filter, engine, transmission, differential, chassis . . . the whole works. He'll renew, refill and repack wherever necessary. Your small investment will get you a sweeter ride now, and a sweeter trade-in deal on the big day when your new Chrysler arrives.

Military Needs Bring Study of Need for New Controls

President's Decision Due In January

Soaring Costs Worry Advisers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The President may decide he has to ask the new Congress for a partial return to war-time controls.

His circle of advisers has not decided what kind yet, if any. Final decisions will be announced in Mr. Truman's "state of the union" speech and his budget message, which will be sent to Congress in early January.

The presidential advisers are worrying about the cost of the many demands on this country for armaments: From our own defense establishment, from the Western Union (Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg), from China, Korea, Greece and Turkey.

It is within the framework of U. S. foreign policy to supply arms to those foreign countries as a means of stemming the further spread of communism.

All such aid would take a slice of the steel, coke and skilled labor which are now under such heavy demand to satisfy comfort-hungry Americans, tired of war-time deprivations. The added demand would drive up prices unless some weight was tied to them.

The trick is to balance the two needs.

The President has been cautioned by his senior economic adviser, Edwin G. Nourse, that even a slight rise in military costs would mean a quick rise in prices of the goods Americans buy for their own use.

Nourse described the basic problem to a meeting of top military chiefs recently at the Pentagon. As he stated it, it is this:

1. Our expense for our own military set-up this year has been close to $12,000,000,000.

2. When the army, navy and air force turned in their estimated needs for next year they totaled $23,000,000,000.

3. They cut that to $17,000,000,000 under their own paring knife.

4. Then they learned that President Truman would consider nothing above $15,000,000,000 (The President has let it be known to his own circle that he will demand the strictest military economy. He questions, among other things, the need for so many bases around the country).

5. Whichever U. S. military budget is finally accepted, it can run from three to five billion more than this year. Then what of the plans to ship arms to the Western Union, China, Korea, Greece and Turkey?

SECRETARY GIVES TIP

A partial tip to the answer was given by Defense Secretary Forrestal in a recent New York speech. He said he thought we should supply a "generous measure of equipment" to the Western Union. Hence, even if our own military costs are held down under President Truman's $15,000,000,000 lid, there will be strong pressure from within the President's circle to turn out some aid for the governments on our side of the fence.

Top level committees are working long hours here to figure how the needs can be cut down to what we can produce without a new jump in prices.

Nourse made several answers in general terms. Some of the men sitting in on the talks have spelled out for this reporter some of the ideas being discussed.

There are two paths that might be taken:

1. The amount of money in circulation could be partially dried up by higher taxes or forced savings or both. Thus people would have less money to "bid up" prices.

2. Or government could return to allocating strategic materials and slap price controls on commodities in short supply.

Probably a little of both will be used.

Certain types of skilled labor might be allocated too. Nourse thought some 1,000,000 to 2,500,000 skilled men might have to be shifted from civilian goods factories to armaments works. Presidential advisers say this is the toughest problem. They have no ready answer.

If new price controls are decided upon the President will likely ask for only the sort of "standby authority" he wanted from the last Congress.

The presidentail advisers say certain business men have told them they are worried by today's high profits. But, the advisers say, the business men tell them they can't cut prices alone and that they believe if the president were given the club of standby authority industries might agree among themselves to cut down their margins of profit, which would mean lower prices.

Presidentail advisers are talking over three kinds of taxes: Income, excess profits and corporation taxes. Some favor increasing corporation taxes since they are easier to administer than excess profits taxes.

There may be some jump in income taxes, but it will not be "across the board" in all probability.

"Forced savings would mean a system under which slices of all pay checks above a certain level would be salted away into government bonds that could be cashed at some later date. Several nations did this during the war, but it appears to be one of the more remote suggestions before the President's advisory group.

It is believed that the slow tilting upward of the northern shores of the Great Lakes may, a few thousand years hence, cause four of the lakes (except Huron) to drain southward into the Mississippi River.

There will be movies and other entertainment, and Santa Claus will visit the kiddies. Children of members will be guests at the entertainment.

Old Copy of Famous Painting Being Restored at Museum

CINCINNATI — (AP) — A 300-year-old copy of the Madonna and Child, which has hung in Holy Cross monastery here since 1873, is being restored at the Eden Park museum.

The copy was made by an unknown 16th century Italian painter and Father Charles Guilfoyle of Cincinnati, said it was presented to the Passionist Fathers by an anonymous donor when the monastery was built.

Father Guilfoyle said that, according to legend, the original Madonna and Child was painted by St. Luke the Evangelist, who lived in 60 AD. For 1,500 years the Popes would not permit any reproductions.

In the 16th century, St. Francis Borgia, general of the Jesuit order, obtained permission to have two copies made. The other copy now is in St. Stanislaus noviciate in Rome.

Restoration of the painting is being financed by Charles W. Williams, Cincinnati insurance executive. When it is rehung it will be dedicated to the late Rev. Alexander Kilgour, a native of Cincinnati, who died last Sept. 25 at Des Moines. Williams and Father Kilgour were schoolmates.

Father Guilfoyle said the museum had assigned Harry Gothard the task of removing five or six layers of overpainting, which had accumulated on the copy through previous restoration attempts. A crumbling canvas backing, more than 100 years old, also is being removed.

Thieves Take Shotguns, Blanket

The theft of two shotguns from a stalled automobile was reported to the sheriff's office yesterday.

Gale DeWeese, 413 Bowman street, told a sheriff's deputy that his car stalled on Springmill street. He left the car unlocked and went for help. While he was gone, he said, 12-gauge and 410-gauge shotguns and a navy blanket were stolen.

Mrs. Zolnai Dies In Crestline

CRESTLINE — Mrs. Anna Zolnai, 69, died Saturday night at her home, 127 East Main street, after a seven-week illness.

She was born in Yugoslavia Jan. 24, 1879, but had lived in this country a number of years.

Surviving are her husband, John, and two brothers, Andy Sabo of Crestline and Paul of Detroit.

The body is at the Robert F. Beck funeral home, where services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. Rev. R. L. VanScoy, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran church, will officiate. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

Woman Succumbs While Riding Bus

DAYTON—(AP)—The body of a woman tentatively identified as Ruth Antill of Toledo was removed yesterday from a southbound Greyhound bus.

Earl Frederick, investigator for the coroner, said the woman apparently was heading for Orlando, Fla. He did not give the cause of her death.

Top Man on Wall Street Journal Coming

Clubs to Hear N. Y. Editor Jan. 4

One of the nation's leading editors will pay Mansfield a visit early next month and is scheduled to speak to a joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs Jan. 4.

William H. Grimes, editor-in-chief of the Wall Street Journal, will stay with his brother, Fred L. Grimes, sales manager of the Gorman-Rupp company, at the latter's home on Marion avenue during his visit here. He will address the clubs at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Editor of the country's foremost financial newspaper since 1941, Grimes has long been in the newspaper field. Upon completion of his studies at Western Reserve university, he went to work as a reporter for the Cleveland Press in 1913.

After several years there he worked for the United Press and went to the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau in 1923.

He became head of the Washington bureau and then was called to the paper's New York office. He served a number of years as managing editor before he moved up to his present position.

Grimes won the Pulitzer prize for newspaper editorial writing in 1946.

Born in Bellevue, he spent most of his youth in Sandusky. He now divides his time between his home in New York City and his farm in Hopewell Junction, N. Y.

EDITOR TO SPEAK—William H. Grimes, editor-in-chief of the Wall Street Journal, will address a joint meeting of the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs at the Mansfield-Leland hotel Jan. 4.

Alaskan Spy Ring Bared

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Kersten (R-Wis) said last night that an "espionage" ring in Nome, Alaska, has been feeding information on military installations there to Russia.

Kersten is chairman of a House labor subcommittee which has been checking up on subversive activities in labor.

He told a reporter that he uncovered the information on Alaskan spying activities while on a two-week tour of Alaska in late October.

In Nome, he said, he found that "Soviet officials right across from Alaska seemed to have up-to-date information on what was going on.

"They knew the number of men there, and the names of men."

Kersten said we have an airfield and a polar training station at Nome.

"How extensive the espionage is beyond Nome, I don't know," Kersten said. "I don't know how well the system is developed. What the source is, I'm not sure. But there's some form of espionage (in Nome); very likely communist."

Kersten said he also found communist "infiltration" in a fisheries union in Anchorage, one of our main Alaskan military installations.

He said he found a "rather important" Communist party member assisted in setting up a union council there.

Rope Breaks, Foils Rescue

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Nine airmen marooned on the Greenland ice cap barely missed rescue Saturday when a pickup plane's tow line broke after their glider was 50 feet in the air.

A brief telegraph report received at military air transport service headquarters here last night said that the glider bearing the nine men landed safely after the safety link in the tow line parted, and none of the men was hurt.

Previous plans had been to take the party out in two groups—five on one pickup of the glider by a C-54 transport, and the remaining four on a second pickup. Last night's message, however, said all were aboard when the C-54 hooked onto the glider and snatched it briefly into the air.

The message last night said temperature in the area was "40 below" but did not specify whether the reading was Fahrenheit or Centigrade. No fear was felt for the safety of the marooned party, however, since plenty of food and heating equipment had been dropped to them.

Seven of the men were stranded Dec. 9 when their C-47 made a forced landing. The others were marooned when their B-17, sent to rescue the first seven, nosed over in a snowbank.

Robbed of $28, Man Tells Police

Harvey Truman, 268 Park avenue east, reported to police last night that he was "mugged" and his wallet, containing $28 was stolen.

He said he was walking south on Elm street when a man came up from behind, grabbed him around the throat, went through his pockets and took his wallet. The man threw him to the ground and disappeared west on East Temple court, he told the officers. They searched the area but were unable to find the man.

Elect Five Supervisors

Five soil conservation supervisors were picked from a slate of 13 by 66 Richland county farmers yesterday.

Results of the election were released last night by County Agent C. N. McGrew.

The five elected were A. L. Lockheart, of Troy Township, 40 votes; L. L. Rinehart, of Sandusky township, 38 votes; Harvey Snyder, of Worthington township, 36 votes; Kenneth Nixon, of Madison township, 34 votes, and Warren Smith, of Butler township, 33 votes.

The five supervisors will administer the soil conservation program for the county. They will work in cooperation with the Ohio Agricultural experiment station, making surveys and investigations concerning soil erosion.

McGrew said they would meet with Herbert Marshall, of the soil conservation service, in the near future to map plans.

5 Departments Donate Funds

Workers at Westinghouse who made up a $226 fund for the R. H. McClain family, victims of a fire, were in the irons, thermostat, cording, wire goods, and laundromat departments, it was pointed out last night. The McClain's home north of Mansfield was destroyed recently by fire.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY—

Otis M. Cummins, head of the Mansfield Plating company, will be eating his favorite hickory nut cake tonight when he celebrates his 40th birthday anniversary at a family dinner at his home. His wife says that serving hickory nut cake has become an annual custom on Cummins' birthday.

CUMMINS

Cummins was born in Cleveland and came to Mansfield from Columbus 13 years ago. He is a member of the First Congregational church, University club, and the Elks lodge. His hobbies are hunting and fishing.

Married and the father of three children, Cummins lives at 580 Woodland road.

GOT RESULTS—

Mrs. J. C. Snouffer, who lives on the Wooster road, is convinced that "It pays to advertise." Friday's Up and Down the Street column carried a story saying she would give away more than 100 Christmas trees left at her home by two "disappointed" Christmas tree salesmen who planned to set up a business in her front yard. By 6 o'clock Friday evening the trees were gone, and still the people came. Says Mrs. Snouffer, "I wish I had more trees; they were all such nice people, but will you please tell your readers they are all gone?"

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Can Religion Meet Today's Challenge?

CRITICISM of the churches and their work is more likely to come from outside than inside religious circles, but it was quite recently that Charles P. Taft, as president of the Federal Council of Churches, made some thought-provoking statements during an address at the annual meeting of the council.

He said, in substance, that American churches "pay practically no attention" to the basic problems of religion; that religion has not saved the world because its leaders fail to understand the problems of men living in a modern economy.

Mr. Taft continued: "Religion still is dealing with a primitive agriculture and trading economy like that of the Bible. . . . The churches are paying no attention to two-thirds of the world in which the people in the pews live. . . . Religion can save the world—but only as we learn how it is related to the basic problems of men in the world."

Such comments by a man prominently identified with religious activities cannot be regarded as critical of any particular religion. it merely presents the view that religion, as a whole, is not exerting the influence on the world, the nation and the various communities in which it is represented, that might be reasonably expected when its vast membership is taken into account.

It is common experience of religious leadership that laymen support lags when any program of community betterment is proposed, although lay leaders frequently express belief that "a moral and spiritual awakening" is necessary if the nation and world are to regain their balance.

While this subject encompasses the entire world, results can be attained only in the smaller units of communities in which religious activities reflect the interest—or lack of interest—of various groups . . . and the most earnest leadership can accomplish little unless laymen co-operation is forthcoming.

Never Really Enough Food For All

THE department of agriculture has arrived at its food production goals for the coming year. In announcing its estimates of future needs, the department said that the record-breaking crops of this year gave the country 14 per cent more food than in the years 1935 to 1939.

If this is an accurate estimate of total supply, American individuals probably have less food available from the 1948 crop than in a pre-war year. A gain of 14 per cent in food production probably is not enough even to compensate for the rise in population in the same years. The census bureau estimated that the population increased slightly less than 14 per cent from 1940 to 1945. The rate of growth since 1945 certainly has not been materially less than in the war years.

Thus it makes good sense that the department of agriculture should recommend greater production next year of most food crops. Exceptions are potatoes, supply of which for more than a year has exceeded demand at the supported market price, wheat and eggs, among basic foods. A market excess of wheat is expected from this year's crop, and a market excess of eggs has existed previously.

What are called excess supplies of any food are only the result of market conditions. The fact is that in this period of the highest prosperity the country has ever known the food buying of most American families still is restricted by the limits of their budgets. The average American housewife does not have enough money to buy as much food as she would like to offer her family. Until she does, it can never be said that enough food has been produced. Nor does this take any account of food lacks among peoples in other parts of the world.

Hasty Divorces Sometimes Regretted

THE RISING divorce rate might be somewhat abated by the universal requirement of a cooling-off period between the application for divorce and court action on it. This is the majority opinion of members of the Chicago Bar association as expressed in a recent vote.

A plan has been proposed for Illinois by which no formal steps would be taken by the court handling such cases until after the lapse of 60 days. During this time voluntary conferences might be held between the presiding judge and the persons concerned. The informality of this method might be expected to bring out facts and circumstances which are overlooked in formal court proceedings, or might allow anger to cool.

In many cases divorced persons bitterly regret their hasty actions, and admit that mutual forbearance and a determination to talk things over in a calm and unimpassioned manner might have saved their marriages. If only a small percentage of possible divorces could be avoided by the Chicago plan, that would be worth while.

Scientists Probing Plant Mystery

ONE of the most precious mysteries of Nature may be almost within the grasp of man, suggested W. E. Kelley, manager of the New York operations office of the Atomic Energy Commission, in a recent interview. He said use of radio-active isotopes, as a tool of research, may soon enable scientists to find the secret of photosynthesis, the process by which plants use energy from the sun in making food.

All life depends on green plants, which are the ones capable of photosynthesis. Other plants are parasites. Animals feed on plants, or on other animals which in turn feed on plants. If man knew the secret of using sunlight to make food from the chemicals in the soil and the air, he might be able to make himself independent of plants. Without the secret, his life depends on the green leaf.

If the isotope should help to reveal the secret, this might be far more important than anything done directly with atomic energy, either constructive or destructive. Mr. Kelley describes the isotope, which is a sub-microscopic by-product of atomic operations, as "the most powerful research tool discovered since the microscope." It may be remembered long after the atomic bomb has been forgotten.

According to one bartenders' union, women should not tend bar because of the language they might hear—what, no gentlemen present?

A Voice From the Country

Decline Seen In Racial Discrimination

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

QUIETLY but perceptibly, some of our problems of racial prejudice and discrimination seem to be working themselves out. Coming from Undeground Railroad country and having spent a good deal of my life in rather close contact with other races and nationalities over most of the earth, prejudices and discriminations on such grounds as race or nationality or religion have always seemed to me to be a little silly. The trouble is that in their effects, they are not silly at all but tragic not only for individuals but for nations.

BROMFIELD

I do not see how any normal, intelligent and balanced person can find in color or nationality or religion, the grounds for prejudice or even a sense of superiority.

Usually the most prejudiced and violent are the ignorant, the pschyopathic failures, the crackpots and the failures in life who seek a scapegoat as an excuse for their own laziness or ineptitude.

I am not overlooking, however, the pressures which arise from segregation or from adverse social conditions, or the occasional cockiness and arrogance of the racial minorities, which consider themselves professionally the victims of prejudice or discrimination.

A great deal of the trouble arises in certain areas and on certain occasions from the attitude of the minority groups themselves. And still more arises from the moon-witted reformers who hop-skip-and-jump blithely over the fundamental elements of human nature, economic conditions and age-old traditions and attempt to force the issue by sheer violence.

They have done as much harm as any group in delaying a solution of the problem and at times have been guilty of setting back the clock. And of course there are the communist-inspired groups, whose only purpose is to stir up more prejudice and trouble and to use a tragic situation as a springboard for their own sinister purposes.

* * *

Conditions Better.

DESPITE the immense complications of the problem and despite the mistakes and plotting, we do seem, however to be making progress.

I cover about forty to fifty thousand miles a year inside the U.S.A. and every year it seems to me that conditions are growing a little better. I make this judgment from conversations and experience among people of all kinds and upon all levels.

Of one thing I am certain—that the fundamental answer to the problem lies in three specific elements (1) education (2) economic status of a certain given area (3) equality of opportunity.

Fair employment Practice laws may be effective and certainly they do no harm but it is impossible to legislate prejudice and discrimination out of existence. The answer lies far deeper. Ignorance and prejudice go hand in hand with poverty and lack of education as well as the need for a scapegoat.

The Deep South is on its way upward economically and as it continues its progress, the problems of race prejudice and discrimination will decline in violence.

In the Deep South there is a whole new class of citizens who belong neither in the category of the julep-drinking, romantic, Southern Colonel and his swooning lady, who blamed all their failures on the Civil War, not the "wool hat" miserably poor and ignorant sharecropper. They are enlightened men, wise, sensible and liberal, and their number is increasing.

Occasionally, the hand of the North intercedes only to make difficulties and troubles. One of our great Pittsburgh newspapers recently sent a reporter, who disguised himself as a Negro, to the South for several weeks. What he wrote was sensational—and utterly distorting and one-sided. It was like that preposterous book, "Mother India."

The answer, and a mighty fine one it was, came from Hodding Carter, a young editor from Greenville, Mississippi, perhaps the most offending of states. It pointed out that progress was being made but that if it was real progress, it must be necessarily made in terms of the South itself and of the conditions existing here; it could not be achieved along the ideas of the communists, nor the firebrand type of northern Negro nor of the sentimentalist. Nor could it be accomplished overnight.

* * *

Lynching Lessens.

IF THERE were no other evidence of progress we can find it in the daily newspapers where the record of a lynching becomes a rarity.

And recently there have appeared three almost revolutionary events. Two white men have been sentenced in the state of Alabama to forty-five year terms in prison for the rape of a colored woman.

And in Georgia, a colored woman has been guaranteed protection against threats of violence for testimony against the white-sheeted nincompoops who, she claimed, murdered her husband. And it was guaranteed by, of all persons "Hummon" Talmadge, son of "red-gallus" Talmadge, leader of the "wool hats."

"Jim Crowism" has no justification save on the grounds of manners, cleanliness and good behavior. If we are to put it on those grounds, I have encountered in traveling around the United States, plenty of white people who might well be segregated.

And by no means all of them were suffereing from economic disadvantages or the lack of opportunity which plague and discourage a great proportion of our colored population.

I suppose I might just as well have put this whole column into a sentence or two—that, so far as I am concerned, people are people and that race or nationality, no matter what it is, necessarily makes none of them saints, or martyrs or anything else but what they are.

And God deliver me from the cranks. They are the only element of our population on which I would like to see a Jim Crow policy inaugurated.

Suspected Spies Purged By Macon KKK

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—When the Ku Klux Klan met in Macon last week, Grand Dragon Green held a press conference at which someone asked if he had caught "Drew Pearson's spy."

"He's within ten feet of me now," replied the grand dragon, staring straight ahead, "and we're going to 'get' him Monday night."

PEARSON

Last Monday night the grand dragon presided as usual over the meeting of Klavern No. 1, Atlanta, and one klansman asked him about Pearson's spy.

"You won't have to worry about him any more," replied the grand dragon. "I have 'attended' to this man."

If the grand dragon continues to banish klansmen suspected of being "Pearson's spies" he may soon be short of members. It also looks as if the grand dragon will have to do some more housecleaning because here is a play-by-play account of last Mondays' meeting—after the "spy" supposedly was banished.

Klan Minutes.

100 KLANSMEN present, five new members, no reinstatements . . . Sam Roper, exalted cyclops of Klavern 197, was a visitor, made a long talk on the Macon meeting, congratulated the Klan on the fine Macon attendance and the great job they were doing for the South . . . Grand Dragon Green urged klansmen to consult Klavern officers before taking law into their own hands. Klansmen can call him at his house or office any hour of the day or night if "things need to be straightened out." . . . The grand dragon also told how he handled the boys of the press at Macon, said he had had one reporter from a Pittsburgh paper thrown out. (Obviously referred to Boyack of the Pittsburgh Courier though he pronounced the name "Bodkin.")

Grand dragon was boiling mad over the fact that "some sorry, low down scoundrel" hung up an effigy of a klansman in full robes. He was having the robe examined for laundry marks or any telltale clues that might identify the owner . . . "If necessary, we will have all robes called in and each exalted cyclops check to see who is short of a robe in his Klavern," said the grand dragon . . . Exalted Cyclops Roper described Drew Pearson as "such an obnoxious liar he wouldn't believe him on his deathbed." . . . Cliff Vittur attacked Methodist ministers who passed resolution critical of Chief Ellis of the county police force for allowing the Klan to parade Dec. 4. "They are so-called preachers who are trying to condemn everything except Methodists," said Vittur.

There will be a Christmas party Monday night (December 20). But because the grand dragon was presiding, the boys were careful not to say anything about the present they have ready for him and his secretary.

High-Flying Senator.

THE Wilmington, N. C., Chamber of Commerce which gave free hospitality to the Donora, Pa., smog victims, has written the Civil Aeronautics Board asking why Senator Brewster of Maine was able to get free airplane transportation, while the smog victims couldn't. Capitol Airlines wanted to give the poison-gas sufferers a free flight to Wilmington, but the CAB said no.

At about the same time, however, Maine's high-flying Senator Brewster got a free ride in a CAB plane to San Antonio, Texas. CAB's official excuse is that the first part of the trip (to Indianapolis) was an inspection flight with other congressmen along.

However, the CAB can think up no good excuse for sending Brewster the rest of the way to San Antonio (plane NC212, pilot J. Chester Shimp) to accommodate the senator in delivering a paid lecture before the Automobile Dealers Association.

Brewster even had the gall to ask the CAB to send a plane all the way to Dexter, Maine, to pick him up at his home, but at the last minute changed his mind, and left from Washington, D. C., instead. After delivering his lecture in San Antonio, Brewster also got a free ride back to Washington.

McKellar Won't Yield.

TENNESSEE'S never-say-die Senator Kenneth McKellar won't step aside for anyone else to become president pro tem of the Senate as long as he has strength enough to swing a gavel.

In fact, the Democratic dean is privately campaigning for the office which he is supposed to inherit under the Senate's seniority system. When he heard that dapper Millard Tydings of Maryland might take the job away from him, McKellar promptly dictated an appeal to his colleagues.

"Some have asked me," he wrote, as tactfully as possible, "whether I will be an applicant before the Democratic caucus for the position as president pro tem of the Senate.

"Should my colleagues elect me to the place, I would esteem their action very much."

When an unsuspecting newsman innocently asked Senator McKellar his age the other day, the Tennessean flew into a rage and actually beat and kicked the startled reporter.

"What are you newspapermen trying to do," he shouted, "put me in my grave? You keep calling me a tottering, ailing old man because you don't want me to become president pro tem!

"Why," he added, "I haven't been in the hospital for over four months."

Assignment: America

After Thinking It Over

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON — Every now and then you think of the things you should have written. And when you do it worries you. And this is why:

When it was funny, you didn't mind so much. You figured that, after all, it was just a gag. Like that time in Chicago, when you saw Jane Russell having a few lemonades with a bunch of the boys off the football team.

So you went over to see her, figuring it was a good story, and promptly ran into her husky quarterback husband, Bob Waterfield, who said, "Look, bud, we've had too much of newspaper men. Now go away."

You can't argue with that many pounds, so you go away and you don't write your story. It's only later that you remember that you might have written a story etntitled "I tried to Tussle with Russell."

When it was tragic, you couldn't write about it. Like that time when a kid laid beside me on the hill at San Pietro and told me that he always knew he'd be scared, but he never thought he'd be lonely.

But all of a sudden he was lonely, and desperately lonely. We had had a bad time of it, crossing the valley from Mount Rotundo, and most of his outfit, a rifle company, was gone. But the kid wasn't surprised about being scared, really. It was just that he was lonely, terribly lonely. That, he hadn't expected.

He didn't have to live with it long. He was lonely for less than one day after that. Then, when I found them laying the bodies along the pathway on the hillside where the olive trees grew, I asked his sergeant about him. He pointed at one of the blanket-covered bodies, with its muddy GI shoes pointing upward. The kid's loneliness had ended.

* * *

Vivid Recollections.

WHEN it was dramatic you didn't want to write about it. Like that night outside Velletri when the battalion infiltrated the German lines and broke the back of the last defense before Rome. Only we didn't know it then. All we knew was that we were sick and scared, and they said we couldn't even put a cartridge in our rifle chambers.

Then the moon came up and caught up slipping through a vineyard and they threw flares over, and twice the boys had had to use their knives, and the screams came back. We kept on going, because there wasn't anything else to do.

When it could have been pleasant you overlooked it. Like the Honey Bowl football game in Birmingham, Ala., which you were invited to attend in the role of a sportswriter.

The invitation specifically read, in bold print, " . . . for four quarters of hair-pulling and lipstick smearing on the gridiron." Both female teams, according to the sterling publicity reicase, were reputed to be experts in pass defense, but previous contests had indicated they were more vulnerable than they knew.

The only thing that plagues you now is the realization that after every football game there must be dressing room interview. That's basic journalism. And this thing, of all things, you passed up.

When it was preposterous you ignored it because it might have hurt a pal. Like the time that mid-western reporter, fresh back from the combat lines, decided to demonstrate the efficiency of a hand-grenade.

In the middle of a night in Naples he was caught hanging over an elevator shaft, pulling the pin from said grenade, purely because of a bet with a staff sergeant that he could make it explode exactly three stories below—where a brigadier general was sleeping. Unfortunately, somebody stopped him.

Yes, every now and then you think of the things you should have written.

It Says Here:

—By KEN WOODMAN

RIGHT on top of your Christmas stocking when you reach for it next Saturday morning, we hope you find good health—the best health you've ever enjoyed. When you're well you can lick just about any troubles that come along, singly or in a bunch.

* * *

When you dig a little deeper into your Yule stocking, we hope you find contentment and happiness with those you love. There's nothing more important than that in conquering the vicissitudes, big and little, which come everybody's way now and then.

* * *

And in the toe of your Christmas sock, we hope you find a sense of humor. We want you to be able to laugh at a joke, of course, but we wish you more than that: a deep, warm feeling that many of life's complications can be solved as well with a grin as with grimness. In short, we wish you the merriest of Christmases.

Listen World

Develop An Interest

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SOME DAY, when my copy is all ahead and I've finished the darning and made the holiday mincemeat, I'm going to stand up and take a big stretch and give myself a New Interest. For there's just one best way to keep young and flexible and current and that is to keep as many new interests going as possible and to start it now.

We all think we think. We read a snappy article in some digest and assume we are as fresh as new paint. Or we clip our favorite column (which I hope is mine) and hand it to the other fellows in the office just to prove how dumb they are.

But that's no way to be young. That's no way to keep current. That's just peddling second hand rags. The only way to keep young and potent is to grab a lot of new ideas and interests and experiments and squeeze all the juice out of them.

Never mind if you get laughed at. Never mind if you fail. The big idea is to keep young by thinking young, not just quoting your favorite author.

Don't believe that you can stay young by buying that latest face cream. You can't. The only thing about you that can really stay young and not kid the neighbors is your mind. Yes, I could name a hundred people who can talk brilliantly on one idea or one trade and aren't worth a darn on anything else.

Don't be one of those single track minds. Don't have one favorite subject which you exploit at every public meeting. Pick a new adventure and follow it through as far and as fast as your legs will take you.

And follow it joyfully even though there are a lot of unhappy detours. Give each interest all you have to give. Don't be a spectator sport. Jump right in and sweat with the best of them.

Will you get into messes?

Will you raise Cain?

Will you be laughed at and sneered at and scorned?

Of course you will. But that's the very sign that life is moving in you and that you're getting somewhere with yourself and not stagnating down by the bridge.

Get an interest. Get an interest no matter how trivial it seems as long as it keeps you in contact with current life. If you can't do anything better than make a patchwork quilt, then make the best patchwork quilt on your street.

If you think you could be a writer, then try being a writer. Try being a cook. Try being the best fisherman on the block. Try being something that is new and alive—something that is born afresh every morning instead of lying down and letting them measure you for your coffin.

Dave Boone Says:

ROSWELL MAGILL of Columbia University, a tax expert, made a statement that had people everywhere staggering and swooning in amazement the other day. He came out with the startling suggestion that maybe taxes could be cut a little here and there.

* * *

On a tax study committee appointed by a New England state which, like most states, is hard pressed for money, Mr. Magill floored 'em by saying "everybody talks about increasing this tax or that tax. Isn't it possible that here and there a tax could be cut? I don't say it could be done, but it should be thought about at least."

* * *

I understand everybody was left so breathless the conferees sent out for oxygen tents.

* * *

The very idea that when a city, state or national government considers its financial plans it might ever find one or two spots where a tax could be cut is epochal. You can get into trouble for an idea like that.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

The "One-horse Town."

It is difficult to think back far enough to when any American town could seriously be characterized as having only one horse. Indeed one may hope that the time does not come when any town might have only one horse—or no horse—because horsepower has become too old-fashioned for America!

Exactly where or when the words were first spoken in the sense in which they are familiar in common speech today or whose imagination furnished the idea, this column cannot say. It is certain that the expression is an Americanism of the native brew called slang.

If the vintage can be stated from the earliest recorded usage, it is not very old; the second half of the nineteenth century was in progress before any note was made of it.

Daily Bible Thought

For thou has delivered my soul from death: Wilt not thou deliver my feet from falling, that I may walk before God in the light of the living?—Ps. 58:13.

Young Mother

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

Day after day, the same sweet chores
Keep her young feet on a narrow way;
Toys to pick up from familiar floors,
Baby to feed from a shining tray;
Junior, who recently started to school,
Needs her direction plus teacher's rule.

Day after day, her world extends
Only as far as her swift steps run.
In spite of her tasks, there is time for friends,
And a book to read when the day is done.
A neighbor sometimes will spend an hour
And a game of cards has relaxing power.

Day after day, the children grow
Out of the realm of her loving care,
Learning from her to fan the glow
Of life, and finding each phase more fair
Than the last; discovering on the way
The value of love, day after day.

Vast Plane Network Links Ocean Isles

HONOLULU—(AP)—In the Pacific the U. S. Navy operates what is perhaps the world's farthest flung airline.

It's Navy Transport Squadron 23, which has 22 airplanes—Douglas DC-3's and PBY Catalina amphibians—and more than 300 men.

VR-23 bases are scattered all around the perimiter of the world's largest ocean—at San Diego, San Francisco, Seattle, Samoa, Guam, Kwajalein, Shanghai Tsingtao and Sangley Point, Philippine Islands.

The squadron's job is to serve the hundreds of isolated Pacific regions not on the main line of MATS (Military Air Transport Service).

Planes from the squadron fly regularly from Saigon and Bangkok in Southeast Asia, to the Aleutians, and to hundreds of small islands and atolls in the widespread trust territory.

"Our airplanes are the only air contact with the outside world for many of these small islands," Commander Rice said in Pearl Harbor after a 23,000-mile inspection tour of VR-23's operations.

The planes carry passengers, mail and cargo to areas where often there are no established land and sea bases. Seaplane anchorages in the atolls sometimes are only mooring buoys dropped by planes, sunken ships, coral heads or reefs.

"Our planes haul an endless variety of unusual cargo," Rice said, "including boots, bugs, babies, buggies, bottles and boatswains."

Black wasps were flown from Singapore to fight beetles destroying coconut palms in the Palaus; a load of chickens was hauled to the natives of the Marianas and Carolines; 270 white rats were taken to Ponape for disease control experiments; and snakes were flown from Palau to Guam on their way to the San Diego zoo.

Airmen of VR-23 refer to their planes as the "tramp steamers of the airways."

A pilot back from Ebon, the southernmost atoll of the Marshalls, said an elderly native asked: "How President Truman and will he win election?"

Ebon has no radios or newspapers, and ships stop there only at two or three month intervals. The next VR-23 flight to the atoll will answer that question.

Lower Food Prices Seen

Grocers Expect Improvement

CHICAGO— (AP) —Some pre-holiday cheer for the person who has to buy food came from two fronts Saturday.

First, various food authorities predicted increased supplies and slightly lower prices for next year. Their comments were contained in the annual food industry review issue of the National Grocers Bulletin, a publication of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Second, various indexes of wholesale prices show the food price level has been declining. Along the important meat sector, the agriculture department said that slaughter steers average prices at Chicago sank this week to the lowest level since early last March.

In the Grocers Bulletin, Agriculture Secretary Brannan said the United States had "entered the door of the era of plenty."

This, he added, had brought up "the greatest agricultural problem—the marketing of the abundance "produced" produced by America's farms.

Food retailers said that prices, besides declining slightly, will be more stable in 1949 than they have been in the postwar years.

Other developments seen by the retailers include: Improvement in many kinds of food; smaller retail store inventories; greater grocery store sales; a more widely varied diet on the part of the American people.

Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., said, "Food prices have evidently reached their peak and will stabilize at somewhat lower levels."

Along the statistical front, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said its primary market index is now 163 per cent of the 1926 average. It is down eight-tenths of one per cent from four weeks ago and only fractionally above the 1947 comparative week.

The food component in the Associated Press index of wholesale commodities reached a new low for the year this week at 133.11. A year ago it was 165.54.

ITALIAN DECLINES

ZURICH, Switzerland — (AP) — Italian is one of Switzerland's official languages, but in German-speaking Zurich school authorities are finding it difficult to get enough students together to make up classes in the Italian language. Too many students are choosing English as their second language, the teachers say.

Chilled Berliners Eke Out Warmth From Soviet Gas Leak

BERLIN, — (AP) — The Soviet zone of Germany has sprung a gas leak. For cold Berliners, groping in the dark of their power-short, blockaded city, that's good.

Every week daring Germans slip through the Russian blockade with tanks of the synthetic gas known as "propan." It heats cooks, makes hot baths, provides light and even serves as fuel for automobiles.

A thriving business in the gas has been organized by an enterprising German in the British sector. At least he says he is a German, although he looks more like a Czech or a Pole and his accent definitely is eastern.

However that may be, he is a one-man blockade buster and that's okay with the blockaded. The business operates on the oldest business principle. Eastern Germans and Poles make the gas. They want west marks, rather than the Soviet-issued east marks, The Berliner has west marks, but little light or heat. Add ingenuity and transportation and you've got a deal.

The operation is a curious mixture of open publicity and veiled mystery. For instance, the Berlin boss issues little handbills advertising:

"Gas in each home for cooking, frying, baking. No pipes, no installations. Usable at once. High heating value. Approved by authorities. No danger of explosions."

The mystery, of course, is how the gas tanks are smuggled through the tight blockade and who is doing it. The "factory" headquarters here hums with activity. Rough looking men and occasionally woman hold whispered conferences in corners. No names are divulged, but they do not object to photographs.

Outside stands one of the "six by six" U. S. army trucks that supplied World War II armies. It still has a coat of khaki paint. The license plate bears A "P." That means Polish. In the trucks are two dozen tanks of the gas being unloaded in broad daylight.

The "boss" confides that business is so good, although his black market prices are high, that he is working on a deal now to bring the gas in by rail. That would be quite a feat, but it is possible. Germans once made away with a whole trainload of coal in the Ruhr, took it to the hook of Holland and swapped it for potatoes.

Some of the gas originates in Poland, some in Silesia and other parts of eastern Germany where the coal or lignite for making it is available. Tanks of it are hauled by trucks over backroads in darkness toward Berlin. Official-looking papers-kind just so they have some kind of a round, red stamp—help get the cargo through.

Shedding Too Far Annoys Strip-Teaser

BOSTON — (AP) — "Strippers who strip illusion from their acts by shedding too much clothing should be treated no better than jockeys who throw races."

That's the opinion of Miss Lois de Fee — a stripper herself — who thinks a few "incorrigible strippers" are threatening burlesque in the cities that still permit it.

"Scores of innocent employes occasionally are thrown out of work and theatres and night clubs darkened because a stripper left too little to the imagination," says Miss de Fee.

"That's an injustice to the chorus girls, musicians and other innocent employes," she declares, adding:

"They don't close a race track every time a jockey pulls a horse."

The Amazonian disrober, who is billed as six feet, four inches tall, believes the full wrath of the authorities should be brought down only on those found guilty of breaking moral codes—"and no one else."

Miss de Fee advocates that a commission be set up to govern entertainers, particularly strip women and comedians inclined to be smutty.

"Then, when entertainers remove illusion from their acts they could be barred from playing any dates in any part of the country for a period set by the commission.

"As things stand now," Miss de Fee says, "strippers have found it to their financial benefit to be dragged into court for lewd performances. The publicity tends to make her a bigger drawing card."

"Strip women," Miss de Fee adds, "are never encouraged by the management of a night club of burlesque house to strip down even to their net underthings because when they do they jeopardize the jobs of too many innocent people."

Communists Have Worry In Hungary

Political Pains Disturb Nation

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — (AP) —Hungary is having severe political stomach pains.

A stubborn Roman Catholic church head, stubborn farmers, single-minded communist leaders, and treachery to communist ideals in high government places furnish indigestible chunks in Hungary's post-peace stew.

What is going on in that ancient country cut in two by the Danube is being watched with wary condescension by Czechoslovaks.

These two countries, once ruled by the Hapsburgs in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy and unfriendly then, lately were bitter war enemies. Now they embrace madly in public as sister "people's democracies."

Czechoslovakia has similar troubles, but not with the same intensity so far.

The Communist party has undisputed control here. All other parties that remain in nominal existence, follow it slavishly.

Some threats have been voiced here, too, about the Catholic church. But the Czechoslovaks are not so outspoken or intently religious as the Hungarians.

The Czechoslovaks are proceeding slowly but surely to the collective farm idea, Russian style.

But since the February revolution, the communists have provided a comparatively stable government. The things that have happened in three weeks in Hungary have been spread out over 10 months in Czechoslovakia.

Three weeks of ferment in Hungary have brought these events to the top of the bubbling broth:

Matyas Rakosi, deputy premier but leading communist and therefore the real spokesman, has threatened to use "the force of the state" to solve differences with the Catholic church.

He has also spelled out for farmers and all others to read: Hungary must quickly come to collective farms on the Soviet pattern.

Miklos Nyarady, Smallholder party finance minister, built up a reputation for working right along with the merged communist-social Democrat Workers party on the road to socialism. With that reputation he took his wife and went "to see about Hungarian property in Austria." Safely out, he resigned and stayed out.

As a result the Smallholder party premier, Lajos Dinnyes, had to resign, and another wave of purging hit the party—one of a series that it has undergone since 1945.

Nominally a party of shopkeepers and peasants with farms of various sizes, the party included right wing sympathizers from the professional and so-called bourgeois classes. Apparently the communists think it has not got rid of all of them yet.

NAMED DIRECTOR

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Donald Hagaman, executive director and a founder of the American Foundation for High Blood Pressure, has been named director of publicity for Western Reserve university, effective Jan. 3.

AIR FORCE'S NEWEST—Intended to explore flight characteristics at subsonic speed, this is Air Force's newest research plane, the semi-tailless Northrop X-4, at Hawthorne, Cal. It is 20 feet long with 25-foot wingspan, has tricycle landing gear, pilot ejection seat. It's been test-flown at Muroc Air Base.—(International)

Baby Specialists Agree With Grandma

Good psychological care makes for happier babies and may prevent troubles later, doctors agreed at a recent meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics. Parents are happier, too, because child rearing is made easier when they follow the rules of common sense.

Dr. Harry Bakwin, associate professor of pediatrics at New York university medical school, said there was general agreement at the meeting on these ideas:

Don't be too rigid about training and feeding schedules. Children go through stages of development and growth. Their care should be adjusted to these changes.

"The demands of the child in what he wants to eat should be listened to, and often accepted," Dr. Bakwin said. "In general, children are better judges of what they need in foods than our own preconceived ideas based on findings about the 'average child.' Each child is an individual, and his needs vary."

Thumb sucking is more or less a natural habit. It brings satisfaction, like chewing gum or smoking does later in life. It doesn't distort the shape of the jaws, and is only a minor factor in distorting teeth, the physicians agreed. Usually, the child quits the habit by the time he gets his permanent teeth, If he doesn't, the distortion can easily be corrected.

MIGHT CAUSE UPSET

If parents get upset and try to make the child stop the habit, they stir up his resistance and may upset him emotionally.

A mother's instincts to pat and rock her baby are normal, and are good for both mother and child, Dr. Bakwin continued. Many pediatricians now feel that what a mother instinctively wants to do for her baby is what is most pleasing and helpful to the baby.

"Mothers shouldn't lean too heavily upon a doctor or nurse. They must try to learn to make decisions from the start about what their babies want, and what is good for them. They needn't be afraid that they don't know enough Their natural instincts are good guides. It helps when women learn in advance what to expect in the different stages that normal children go through."

Doctors are encouraging a return to breast feeding whenever possible. Many feel that it's psychologically better for the baby and the mother. They reported a recent increase in the number of women who nurse their babies.

They also approved the rooming-in plan recently adopted in some hospitals. It gets back to old times when most babies were born at home, and the mother had the child close beside her from the start.

Psychologically, that's better too for mother and baby, Dr Bakwin said. Father gets a break also in being able to see and get acquainted with his baby earlier.

New Plan Simplifies Blood Transfusions

NEW YORK — (AP) — The first blood that is safe for transfusion for all groups, A, B or O, is now made by a process discovered at the University of Buffalo and manufactured by Sharp and Dohme, of Philadelphia.

O group blood always has been fairly safe for transfusion with different blood groups. But doctors seldom took chances, except in emergencies, because sometimes the O failed to work

The Buffalo discovery is two chemicals, one for A blood and one for B, which when added to O blood make it always safe for the other groups. This treated O blood still is not the universal transfusion blood that doctors would like to have, because it also has to contain the right RH factor. There is yet no way of making a universal RH blood.

One In 5 Children Have Vision Defects

NEW YORK — (AP) — More than 4,500,000 U. S. school children—about one in every five—have defective vision, a test survey by the National Society for the prevention of Blindness, Inc. shows.

Dr. Franklin M. Foote, society executive director, urges five steps

Medical care and examinations to discover serious eye defects at an early stage.

Regular vision-testing programs in all schools

Proper lighting of classrooms and proper choice of paints and decorations to avoid glare.

Desks and chairs so designed as to allow children to read with body, head, and eyes in the correct position, plus more legible reading material.

Special care, including improved lighting and larger-type books, for children with subnormal vision.

'Children's Evangelist' Dies at 92

YOUNGSTOWN —(AP)— Frank G "Grandpa" Shafer, known throughout the country as the "children's evangelist," died Saturday at his home here at the age of 92.

Religion was Mr. Shafer's lifelong hobby but he sold men's clothes, books and furnaces before he retired 22 years ago.

Since then he founded the Scriptural league and has financed and given away more than 5,000,000 tracts and 10,000 Bibles.

Shafer was born March 20, 1856, in Sharon, Pa. He spent three years studying the ministry at Capital university in Columbus.

The American Bible college later offered him the degree of doctor of divinity but he refused it.

He founded the Rose Hall Mission here in 1896, which later became the Grace Lutheran church.

Hitler's Pledge Kept In Ironic Manner

Germans Build 'People's Car' For Export

HAMBURG, GERMANY — (AP) — Hitler promised the Germans a cheap "people's car" to run on the grandiose new motor highways built across Germany by his labor front.

Ten years ago 280,000 hopeful would-be car owners subscribed 1,000 marks (then about $450) each. But it was just another of Hitler's many broken promises. They still haven't received their cars.

The factory was built before the war. Test models were made. But the plant produced only a kind of jeep for the German armed forces.

Now a civilian model is being produced at the rate of more than 2,000 a month—but mainly for export. Germans can buy them only if they get official sanction for "essential purposes," if they wait six to eight months—and if they are prepared to pay 5,300 D-marks $1,590).

That 280,000,000 marks subscribed before the war was "frozen" by the occupying powers. Then it was wiped out by last June's currency reform.

The Volkswagen (people's car) now is earning export dollars for the British-American bizone. They are being imported by Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Switzerland. Negotiations are being conducted to sell them to Norway. In a recent trade agreement with the bizone, Belgium contracted to buy $35,000,000 worth.

They sell for $800 each in bulk. Individual sales may make the price as high as $1,500. In Switzerland the car sells for 6,500 Swiss francs. The German manufacturers say their foreign sales are restricted only by lack of dollars in neighboring European countries

GAS CONSUMPTION LOW

The car's low gasoline consumption (40 miles to the gallon) makes it a popular buy in western Europe, where gasoline is either strictly rationed or very expensive —or both.

The Volkswagen's air - cooled engine (about 11 horsepower British rating) is in the rear. Its streamlined body, like the chassis, is in one piece. It weighs only 1,600 pounds.

The present model is the prewar design of Dr. Otto Porsch with a few improvements learned about the military model in Russia. Rommel's Afrika corps used it in the western desert.

The makers claim it is almost entirely a German product. The only imports are rubber and raw materials for paint, which come from Britain. These materials are paid for out of dollar funds from bizonal exports. A British military government spokesman said it was hoped the factory would benefit from Marshall plan

For a time Britons in Germany could buy the Volkswagen for 175 pounds ($600). But the British treasury soon stopped that because expenditure of sterling for foreign cars was not approved under currency restrictions. The ban boosted the value of second-hand British licensed models to almost double their original sale price.

One-third of the factory near Hannover was knocked out by allied bombing. The British started production soon after the occupation began and almost 30,000 have since come off the assembly line.

At first most of them went to the occupation forces. They soon outnumbered the jeep in the British zone and became a common sight in the American zone. British forces have used nearly 11,000 and the American army received more than 3,000.

So far 5,424 have been exported. Another 2,525 were sold to allied nationals in Germany for dollars or sterling.

Ferguson Eyes Taft's Senate Post

Friends Say 'Joe' Will Be Candidate

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Don't sell State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson short in the 1950 race against Sen. Robert A. Taft.

The fiery Democratic auditor has raised his sights from the governorship and trained them on the U. S. Senate, friends disclosed definitely yesterday.

Taft already has announced he will seek reelection to a six-year term and most Republicans concede him the nomination.

Much long-range speculation over his Democratic opponent has centered on Frank J. Lausche, former governor who starts a two-year term Jan. 10, and Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland.

Lausche customarily withholds his plans until late and Mayor Burke says he hasn't decided anything. The usually loquacious "Little Joe" isn't talking either—yet.

But Taft's unusually early declaration has added grist to the rumor mill. Many things can happen in two years, but there's how it looks now:

SERVING 4th TERM

Ferguson, a stellar vote-getter, has been reelected to his third four-year term as state auditor. That puts him in position to run for senator two years hence without risking his job should he lose the nomination.

If Laushe runs for senator instead of reelection and fails, he would be out of a job and lose prestige for later candidacies. Should Laushe and Ferguson slug it out for nomination, both might lose to a third aspirant such as Burke.

That happened in 1944 when Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, then attorney general, battled Paul M. Herbert for the gubernatorial nomination. Their vote was split and James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnait, now a state supreme court judge, won nomination only to lose the election to Laushe.

If a Lausche-Ferguson battle turned out similarly, Ferguson still would be auditor for another two years but Lausche would be out of elective office. It may be a tough situation because both probably would ratheir oppose Taft than Sen. John W. Bricker should Bricker run again in 1952.

Lausche is an acknowledged political wizard. He ran away with the Democratic nomination against Cleveland's Ray O. Miller, who was backed by the state organization.

Lausche got the most Ohio votes in the last general election, far more than President Truman, but Ferguson's plurality was higher. And he carried 42 counties to Lausche's 35.

Freguson could expect strong union support in any battle against Taft, the man organized labor wants in political oblivion. Lausche hasn't obtained such backing.

BACKED BY KROLL

At the recent state CIO convention, Jack Kroll, national CIO PCA chairman, said "Ferguson will beat Taft."

Lausche rode President Truman's campaign train through Ohio last fall and both handed the other verbal bouquets. Freguson also was aboard.

After the election, Ferguson received a letter from the President in longhand. Beginning "Dear Joe" and ending "Sincerely yours, Harry S. Truman," it read:

"I want to thank you personally for the splendid support you gave me in Ohio. I am looking forward to seeing you in Washington."

Lausche now controls Democratic state headquarters through his hand-picked chairman, Eugene H. Hanhart of Dover.

Hanhart took over when Albert A. Horstman of Dayton resigned after Lausche beat Miller. Horstman, however, will direct federal patronage in Ohio through his post as national committeeman.

Although Horstman supported Lausche after his nomination, the Dayton party leader never set foot in his office while Lausche was governor. That indicates he probably would throw his considerable influence elsewhere should Lausche seek senatorial nomination.

Numerous county chairmen have expressed favor towards Ferguson as a senatorial candidate, friends of the auditor aver. What, if anything, will come of it remains an interesting enigma on the Ohio political horizon.

ADDS TO LIST—If seven-year-old David Innis has been singing "All I Want for Christmas Is My Two Front Teeth," he changed his tune after trying out the "galloping" horse on display in a Mansfield store. The horse actually runs when a little effort is exerted by the rider. Although it appears to be a bit on the small side for David, he decided it would be a handy thing to have around. David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Innis of Shelby. The galloping horse is one of many new toy creations this year which demonstrate that the mechanical age has arrived for children as well as grown-ups. Shoppers are finding the stores filled with a dazzling arrays of toys—the most complete since pre-war days. Although many of the old favorites, such as blocks, cut-outs and games, are still in vogue, more emphasis is being put on true-to-life toys. Estimates made on a national scale are that toy sales this year will amount to $300,000,000.

Human Guinea Pigs

Heroes For Science Often Risk Their Lives

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, AP Science Editor

NEW YORK—The most underpaid job in the world, in terms of cash, is that of a human guinea pig in medicine.

It always has been so. The first recorded human guinea pig was a man who did it for the privilege of looking upon a king. He appeared before Charles I. of England, about the year 1628.

This man's heart had been bared by an accident, and Dr. Harvey, as part of his discovery of the circulation of blood, showed the King that there was no pain when this bare heart was touched. Harvey used animals too in his discovery.

Lack of such tests had delayed this discoverey for about 1300 years during the Dark and most of the Middle Ages. One of the barriers was a ban even on dissecting a human cadaver.

Human guinea pigs began to be numerous about 1850, but they worked without pay, for in most cases they were scientists who were willing to risk their own lives. Many of these swallowed newly found poisons, looking for medical uses.

★

PIERRE CURIE, co-discoverer of radium, tested himself when he heard that radium would cause skin burns, by wrapping some radium in salts around his arms for several days. Curie's arm bandage is probably the last thing any atomic scientist of today would risk.

Apparently the first use of prisoners as guinea pigs was in 1904, in the Philippines, among convicts condemned to death. Their reward was tobacco.

But since then the guinea pig business has boomed.

In World War II many prisoners submitted to tests for malaria and other diseases. Their rewards were sometimes as much as $100, and also in nearly all cases, certificates of merit. These certificates were supposed to be useful in advancing paroles but the holder had to argue.

Now, in the last of the malaria experiments, at Seagoville, Texas, on prisoners of the Federal Correctional Institution, the Under Secretary of War has ruled that certificates of merit will be accompanied by some reduction in time of sentence. Seagoville prisoners also receive $100.

The historical facts are from a study by Dr. A. C. Ivy, University of Illinois college of medicine, who explains that Hippocrates, father of medicine, four centuries before Christ, set the moral principle for doctors in his oath for physicians, to which every young doctor swears to this day. The oath, to give others freely of medical discoveries, recognized the fact that every patient is to some extent a guinea pig.

From that day to now, medical authorities have insisted that human guinea pigs should be volunteers.

ARITHMETIC MADE EASY—The scale balances only when numbers on both trays equal same amount.

Cold Realism Hits Land of Make-Believe

Stark realism has invaded the never-never land of make-believe, represented by the toy industry in the United States.

Displays on the shelves and counters of local stores reflect the trend.

Today's children want toys which mirror as exactly as possible the real-life things which they represent, or at least the toy makers believe so if their 1948 Christmas products are a criterion.

New toy items include chickens that lay eggs, cows that can be milked, dolls that eat, dampen diapers, sleep and cry. Some dolls even talk with the aid of miniature phonograph devices hidden away inside of them.

There are copies of vacuum cleaners, electric irons, stoves and other household items which really operate.

For boys who like to build things, toy manufacturers have brought out an assortment of kits for nearly every type of building. If the lad leans to house-building, there are realistic balloon-tired earth movers and conveyors for excavating, plus a complete miniature lumber yard packed with tools and blueprints.

Among scores of other new toys introduced this year, most notable are the doll that eats crackers and another that blows bubbles. There is a "cry baby" who desists only when a pacifier is placed in her mouth.

For the youngster of a mind to go hitch-hiking, one velocipede has taken on the "new look" in the form of a good-sized platform and handles in the back.

If it is music the child leans to, there is a one-octave easy-to-play plastic accordion. If there is a budding editor in the family, his request to Santa Claus can be satisfied with a small printing press complete with ink and a rack of type.

This being the atomic age, one chemistry set offers a sample of uranium—guaranteed not to raise any mushroom shaped clouds when Junior starts making like a chemist.

CLUCK! CLUCK!—After laying eggs, toy hen nonchalantly strolls away.

FACTS-OF-LIFE—A miniature bossy actually gives real milk.

"May Day" was selected a an international labor holiday th the International Socialist Congress in 1889.

Switzerland Gives Refuge To Royalists

Oldest Republic Welcomes Kings

GENEVA, — (AP) — Switzerland, one of the world's oldest republics, has become both a refuge and a holiday center for the world's royalty.

Five kings and an emperor have permanent residence in Switzerland or come frequently on pleasure trips. Lesser members of the royal dynasties of Europe and Asia come and go in such numbers that even the Swiss press pays them scant attention.

Many are exiled from their own countries and dare not or may not return. Of the five kings, only one—Phumiphon of Siam—is an unchallenged reigning sovereign. Phumiphon, however, does not exercise his royal functions while studying law at Lausanne university.

Phumiphon lives in a villa near Lake Geneva with his mother, Princess Sanwalya, and several relatives. His brother, the late King Ananda, also studied at Lausanne. Phumiphon succeeded to the throne when Ananda was assassinated in Bangkok in 1946. There are rumors that a Siamese revolutionary group plans to assassinate Phumiphon, too, and he has a permanent Swiss police guard.

Police guards are assigned to all important members of royalty in Switzerland, whether in exile or merely on vacation. The Swiss, who take their royal visitors seriously, have lived in fear of an assassination on Swiss soil since Empress Elizabeth of Austria was stabbed to death in Geneva by an Italian arnarchist in 1898.

While unquestionably opposed to a monarchy as far as their own country is concerned, the Swiss see in their royal visitors a priceless advertisement of the attractions of their country as a pleasure ground. They also regard the exiles as a confirmation of their traditional neutrality and their avowed hospitality to political refugees.

The usually canny Swiss will even forgive a member of a deposed and impoverished house if he runs up bills beyond his means.

The strictest condition the Swiss place on their royal visitors is a ban on political activity. The ban applies to all political exiles granted refuge in this country.

The ban, however, is sometimes liberally interpreted. The ex-Emperor Bao Dai of Annam several times has met the French high commissioner for Indo-China, Emile Bollaert, in Geneva to discuss the Viet-Nam situation. With the knowledge of the Swiss government, the former emperor acted as unofficial intermediary between the French government and moderate groups in Viet-Nam.

Official records of the proceedings of meetings were originally called minutes because they were recorded in minute or smallwriting, and later transcribed in a larger hand.

Guard Group On Freedom Train Busy

Task Handled By 30 Marines

NEW YORK, — (AP) — It's a lucky thing the marines were picked to guard the Freedom train.

Any outfit less familiar with the know how of keeping situations well in hand might have had some trouble

The exhibit hall on wheels, in which priceless documents of American history have been touring the country for 16 months, has an honor guard of 30 marine combat veterans, headed by Lt. Col. Robert F. Scott of Blacksburg, Va. The train will end its official tour here on Jan. 2.

Almost four million people passed through the Freedom train's corridors during its 36,000 mile journey, but keeping the crowds in line on 394 exhibit days in 320 cities from coast to coast has been only a small part of the job tackled by the leathernecks.

The marines have reason to remember Brooklyn, for instance, and the mystery of the disappearing stripe. Normally the gleaming white train has red, white and blue horizontal bands around it. In Brooklyn the three colors blended into two—just red and blue.

A bewildered leatherneck who could scarcely believe his eyes made a quick investigation. Four thousand high school girls had been standing in line. Their heads were on a level with the white stripe. One girl impulsively kissed the train. Thousands of others did, too, and their lipstick completely blotted out the white line.

Brooklyn also is the town where workmen spent most of the night building a speakers' platform to be used by visiting dignitaries at opening ceremonies. They did a superb job—except that they built it on the wrong side of the tracks.

Then there were the missing bronze stars. In the first month of the freedom train's tour 1,100 of them disappeared into the pockets of young souvenir hunters. The star-headed bolts were used to anchor the documents into their cases, between sheets of clear plastic.

Although the marines exercised the greatest vigilance, no one ever discoverd how the bolts were removed The strongest leathernecks tried to extract the stars, taking plenty of time and without secrecy. They couldn't do it, but the youngsters were so successful that a new filch-proof anchorage had to be devised.

Life might have been peaceful for the marines after that, if it weren't for the "soap boxers." These would get aboard the train, find an audience in front of a popular exhibit (the bill of rights was a favorite) and start to harangue with much hand waving and shouting.

The nearest marine guard would ask the orator, to pipe down. The speechmaker invariably dared the leatherneck to make him stop. The marines worked out a system.

At a signal, the guard stationed at the nearest vestibule unlocked a door on the off-side of the train. Then two marines escorted the protesting offender, as gently as possible, to the exit. Safely deposited outside, the soap boxer usually found himself permanently locked out.

Hawkers were another source of headaches. The Freedom train out-pulled the circus as a crowd-getter in most towns, and ambitious souvenir salesmen couldn't resist temptation.

In one town, an energetic gentleman sold thousands of gas-filled toy balloons before the police stopped him. The marines refused to permit the souvenirs aboard. Each person getting onto the train passed his balloon back to the next in line, or simply released it. Before long, the area was filled with the pop-pop of bursting balloons.

The Freedom train might have made its record tour without a scratch if it hadn't been for one enterprising lad. No one knows how he evaded the marines, but he managed to carve his initials on the head of the locomotive. What instrument he used is still a puzzle. It dug through seven layers of paint, so deep that the finish had to be sandblasted off to repair the damage.

LEGGO MY NECK!—This goose probably uses stronger language as the girl crams food down his gullet with a funnel mill. This is known as "gorging the goose," an old Gallic method of fattening the birds. From the enlarged livers of such geese comes the cocktail party delicacy known as pate de foie gras. (International)

Clubs Win $20 In Scrap Drive

A Richland county 4-H club and an Ashland county Future Farmers of America club have been named winners in the Mid-Western Scrap Metal Drive in a four-state area.

The contest was completed in mid-November. Receiving a $20 award was the Little Capitol 4-H boys club of Little Washington. A similar award went to the Olivesburg FFA club. Max McFarland is adviser of the 4-H club.

The money was distributed by the Crosley Broadcasting corporation of Cincinnati. The four states were Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Conqueror In Shabby Clothes Gains Power In China

Scholarly Man of Iron Leads Red Armies

By JOHN RODERICK
(AP Foreign Staff)

(Editor's Note: John Roderick, author of the following personality sketch of Mao Tse-tung, driving force of communist China, lived with Mao for many months in Yenan, the communist capital, and probably is the best acquainted with him of any American newspaperman. Roderick, now stationed in the Middle East, was assigned to Yenan in 1945 and spent three years in China.)

★

A modern day conqueror in shabby clothes stands across the body of prostrate China.

He is Mao Tse-Tung, chairman of the Chinese Communist party. He is the leader of the greatest ideological and military struggle in the world at this moment.

As this is written, his communist armies are overrunning a nation nearly as big as the continental United States. The face of 3,000 year old China will undergo a revolutionary change should he gain the ultimate victory.

He lives of 450,000,000 human beings will be affected

Who is this soft spoken man? How does he live? What is the secret of his enormous hold over the minds and bodies of millions?

Surrounded for years by an impenetrable wall of government troops and official silence, buried in the flinty hinterlands of the remote Chinese northwest, his name until recently meant little to the outside world.

I first met him at Yenan, the Spartan communist capital, in the closing days of 1945. He was wearing the patched, padded clothing and carelessly tied boots of the peasants among whom he lived. A faded blue cap was perched rakishly on his massive head. At 55 he is a man of dreamlike quality in his soft, almost flabby waxen face, of nervous energy in his long slender hands.

CURIOUS MIXTURE

When he speaks it is with the roundness of the southern dialect he learned as a child in his native province of Hunan. A curious mixture of the peasant and intellectural, he is a product of the 1911 revolution which swept the Manchus off the celestial throne and divided China into two warring camps—the extreme right and the extreme left.

A young man of peasant stock, he chose the left and ten years later joined 11 companions at Shanghai in forming the Chinese Communist party.

The years that followed were hard and bitter. There were days of cooperation with the Kuomintang—China's present rulers. At the height of their joint success over the northern warlords in 1927 he took part in the bloody fighting.

Later driven underground, fleeing for his life, he helped organize the party and advanced a new revolutionary idea—that the peasants and not the working proletariat should form the basis of the Chinese revolt.

For this heresy he incurred the displeasure of Moscow. Later he broke with and defeated his chief Chinese opponent, Li Li-San, who fled to Russian in the 1930s.

Finally, at the head of the party, harrassed by the troops of Chiang Kai-Shek, he launched one of the boldest retreats in history—a 6,000 mile forced march from coastal Kiangsi province to the interior. Starved, exhausted and decimated by constant warfare, he brought 10,000 of his 70,000 followers across mountain ranges, over deserts and through swamps to the province of Shensi. He was then 44 and in the vigor of his life.

Under these circumstances, in one of the barest and most forbidding areas in China, he set about to expand the hold of communism. He did so by savage expropriation of landlords, a redistribution of land to the peasants and a system of political and moral indoctrination without parallel in modern society.

FOLLOWERS GROW

When I met him ten years later, his band of 10,000 had swollen to a million party men and he claimed for his group a third of China's land surface and population.

He won most of these adherents in the days of the Japanese war, when he became the first to advocate an all-out struggle with the enemy. On the strength of this he was able to form a brief reconciliation with the Kuomintang, forging the United front which brought a period of success to Chinese arms. The freedom of action he gained by this internal peace gave him the chance, which he seized, to win thousands of converts among the students, professors and working classes of the depressed Chinese society.

A bold stroke at war's end gave him nearly the whole of Manchuria—with an undeniable bit of aid from Russia whose withdrawing troops left behind mounds of captured Japanese rifles.

When peace talks with the Kuomintang, encouraged by General George Marshall, broke down in 1947, Mao and his communists vowed they would not stop making war until Chiang Kai-Shek's power was broken.

Today, Mao's mind is obsessed with the belief that one day China will be completely communist. He has no delusions of grandeur. His mental processes are deliberate, unruffled either by success or catastrophe. He is constantly looking into a future in which he sees China as a socialist state whose backbone is the peasant and whose brain is industrial greatness.

If communism means sharing the burdens and poverty of the people, Mao and his followers are perfect examples of the term. In Yenan he lived in a one story, three room house of mud and straw. He dressed as meanly as his peasant neighbors. There were no expensive bullet-proof automobiles to speed him to his destination.

Usually he walked through the dusty streets, sometimes with a single bodyguard, often alone. At times he rode in a creaking 1936 ambulance fitted with hard wooden seats and—lone concession to luxury—worn blue cotton curtains to keep out the mountain sun.

Physically, he seems almost tireless. All night conferences in freezing rooms are commonplace. His chief relaxation is attendance at a four hour performance of the raucous Chinese opera, usually given in barn like halls open to the chill winds of winter.

Although he is a modernist who believes the status quo philosophy of Confucius holds back China's development, he is an accomplished classical scholar. His poems in classic Chinese, done with a bold brush, often hang from the rafters of party meeting places

He talks little of his personal life. Four times married, his present wife is a former Shanghai movie star who shares his simple way of life. She is a woman of admitted charm who does not smoke or use rouge, lipstick or nail polish.

Mao's first wife was bestowed on him in the old manner by his father. He never recognized or lived with her. His second was killed by one of Chiang's generals. The third divorced him and went to Russia One of his brothers was tortured to death by the Nationalists.

Schooled in the doctrines of Marx, Lenin and Stalin, Mao speaks little or no Russian. He has never gone to Russia.

To critics who say his party is one of agrarian reform only, he retorts sharply:

"Make no mistake about it. Ours is a party of communism It must and will be our glorious goal"

He maintains that the communists, once in power, will deal equally with Russia and the western democracies in foreign affairs. Next to the Kuomintang, he considers the United States his chief enemy because of American military aid to Nanking.

A fearless man, driven by conviction, he probably would balk at no measures which would insure success. A woman correspondent once asked him if the Chinese reds, once in power would follow the same path trod by Russia.

"Don't worry," he said, "everything will be all right."

Millions of Chinese are wondering.

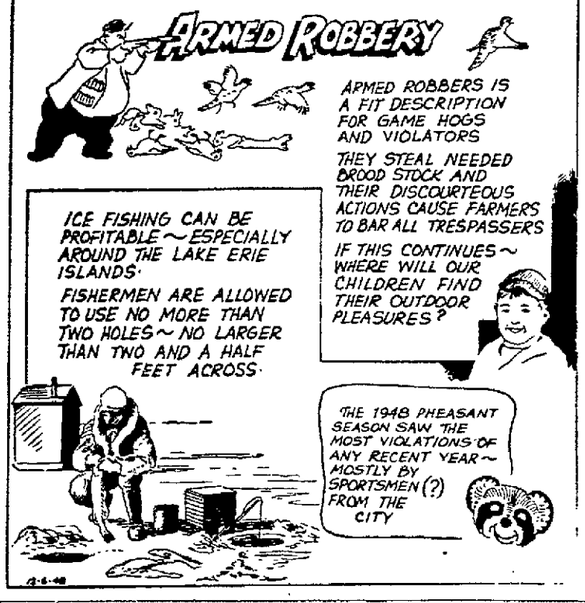
Under Ohio Skies
AS TOLD BY THE CONSERVATION DIVISION



ARMED ROBBERY
ARMED ROBBERS IS A FIT DESCRIPTION FOR GAME HOGS AND VIOLATORS

FISHERMEN ARE ALLOWED TO USE NO MORE THAN TWO HOLES ~ NO LARGER THAN TWO AND A HALF FEET ACROSS.
THE 1948 PHEASANT SEASON SAW THE MOST VIOLATIONS OF ANY RECENT YEAR ~ MOSTLY BY SPORTSMEN (?) FROM THE CITY

Random Shots . . .
With Don Miller

Talk among area sportsmen centered around deer this week inasmuch as pheasant season is over, rabbit season wound up Saturday, and a highly successful deer season has just been completed.

The usual oddities and big kills were made, but honors for the largest deer went to Kermit Lewis of Pierpont, who dropped a 14-point buck opening day. The deer dressed out at 325 pounds and was the largest reported in Ohio for years.

Someone had to get the first deer, naturally, so who should be better qualified than Sam First of Conneaut? Just as last year, First was first. He bagged his deer, a 120-pounder, within an hour after the season opened, and nailed it within 300 yards of where he shot the first deer last year.

★

A Canadia paper carried a big headline recently telling of three hunters who face court charges for game violations. Included among the charges were possession of three fawns, killing does, not reporting kills, transporting game without attaching a license, etc.

In another section of the same paper a columnist told of hunters who shot a fawn, froze it in a lifelike position then stood it against a fence to draw the fire of other hunters.

You may ask what connection this has with Ohio hunting, or why I even mention the illegal slaughter. That's easy to answer. The same type of slaughter and game violations occur in Ohio each year and are not confined to deer!

So-called 'sportsmen' have shot away hen pheasants until years of restoration and propagation work has been ruined, farmers have had livestock killed and crippled and had their fences torn down, traps are stolen and now our public hunting grounds are facing a serious threat

The answer, in my opinion and undoubtedly that of all others who love hunting and want to see it remain a clean sport lies in two phases These are education and enforcement. Wildlife associations are best qualified to accomplish the former by carrying out a planned youth program each year and educating the future hunters As for enforcement this lies right squarely in the average sportsman's lap

Few violations are reported even when noticed, and the understaffed conservation and game officials can't possibly cover all the ground in the state.

The primary factor to remember is that more than one and one-half million hunting and fishing licenses are sold in Ohio each year. If these same sportsmen will back a concerted effort to gain more funds for conservation work and for game law enforcement, the annual violations can be cut to a minimum

By the time the violations have reached as low a point as possible, the educated youngsters will be stepping into our shoes and will know enough not to destroy all our wildlife

There you have it, sportsmen, what are you going to do about it?

Class Holds Game Supper

Wildlife of the cooked variety held sway for one night the past week in Galion.

The Men's brotherhood of the Peace Lutheran church held their annual meeting and game supper The menu consisted of rabbit, coon, and venison, topped with a dessert of wild game motion pictures

Officers of the group were elected to 1948-49 offices They were Francis Schalip, president; Wayne Nelson, vice-president, Harold Hartman, secretary, and James Wittibschlager treasurer.

MANAGER, SCOUT GET BUCKS

COLUMBUS (AP) - Nick Cullop, manager of the Milwaukee baseball club and Marty Purtell, Boston Brave scout had perfect percentages Friday after a deer-hunting expedition into Jefferson county Cullop shot a five-point buck weighing 110 pounds and Purtell got a six-point buck weighing 160 pounds

Mansfielders Have Colony Of Hamsters

Many sportsmen have odd hobbies, and one of the oddest is that of Cliff Bennett and Edward Gloom who raise 'toy bears' as a sideline.

Together the two men have more than 60 of the latest novelty to hit the pet world, the Syrian Golden Hamster.

The tiny creatures, first discovered in 1930 by a Hebrew zoologist, have multiplied at such a rate that they are now becoming familiar sights all over the world.

Ed and Cliff got together a couple of years ago, bought their first hamsters, and settled down to serious business They knew the little animals were prolific, but didn't realize the full extent of their capabilities.

In a matter of days they learned that the female hamster has a gestation period of only 16 days and that the young can be weaned at the age of three weeks.

Friendly and inquisitive by nature, the shiny, golden-haired animal has won himself a large following. Part of this is due to his appearance (very small, golden hue, four pink toes on the front feet and five behind, and large food carrying pouches on the side) and part to his susceptibility to virus injections. Hospitals and health laboratories all over the country have become familiar with the little creatures and are using them to replace the more expensive guinea pig for experimental purposes.

POUCHES LARGE

One of the most interesting facts concerning the hamster is that he can carry half his body weight in the pouches which are found along either jowl In times when food is scarce, he will fill the pouch, carry the food to his den, then kick it out of the pouches with his hind feet

In appearance they resemble the chipmunk but lack the wilderness instinct which makes the latter a ferocious fighter when captured. They can cling like a monkey and often walk along their pens upside down.

Hamsters will eat almost anything and enjoy it. Table scraps, dog food, nuts, celery—they take it all in stride. They have no natural diseases of their own and have no digestive troubles.

As to their breeding habits, well let's count. The female has her first litter when she's two months old, then adds another litter two months later. There will be from eight to fifteen in each litter. Supposing each of these litters contain four females and four males (the minimum litter) and each of these offspring produce a litter by the time they are two months old, then their offspring start reproducing at the age of two months—figuring that would take an adding machine.

By careful mating control Cliff and Ed have held their hamsters to the 60 mark for the past two years, selling all above that number.

Several of these unique creatures are on display at "Shorty" Turner's news store on South Main, according to Bennett, and will remain there until after Christmas

A KISS FOR PAPA?—No, "Jake," grandad of many of the 60 hamsters owned by Cliff Bennett and Edward Gloom, isn't favoring Cliff with a kiss. He's hungry for some walnuts and since they happen to be in Cliff's mouth—well, there's nothing to do but go after them. "Jake," one of the larger specimens of the unusual animal family, has been taught to play dead as well as to "kiss" his owner. Nothing like gratitude, we hamsters always say!—(News-Journal photo)

Bowmen and Bow-women Find Happy Deer Hunting

A TENT IN TUMWATER CANYON, Central Washington—Hiawatha would have liked it here.

Melodious names like Tumwater and Natapok go with the canyons and forests (there's even a Lonfellow mountain!) and through the autumn the area was peopled entirely with wild game and archers. Yes, Hiawatha would have felt right at home.

The state of Washington didn't wax poetic when it drew a line around an area nine miles by three and a half miles. It merely told the archers to go in and kill themselves some deer—if they could. Guns were taboo. To make it a bit easier the state said the bowmen (and bow-women, too) could shoot buck or does, whichever happened to stumble into the path of an arrow.

"The archers proved to be catfooted and deadly. They seemed to know how to get their game with one shot," said Game Protector Tom Inions, who has seen many a rifleman splatter a hillside with bullets where a deer had just been. That's what they call "buck fever."

The archers didn't have time for buck fever. After hours of stalking, or of waiting near a game trail, the efficient bowman would get his one chance. If he missed, the hunt probably was ended for the day—some 10 hours of daylight wasted with one twang of the bow.

About 200 men and women from Washington, California, Oregon and Idaho took part in the special hunt. The kill was about one deer to each eight archers.

"When one got a deer the rest joined the search to help bring it in," said Inions. "We found them a fine group of sportsmen."

"It was a successful hunt," said Glen St. Charles of Seattle, a vice president of the National Field Archery association. "We got quite a few deer and enjoyed the evenings around the campfire." Hiawatha couldn't have had it any better.

VFW Backs Conservation

Students in the sociology and economic geography class of Mrs Claude Ewing at Madison high school are keeping up-to-date on the topic of conservation in Ohio. Pupils are receiving copies of the Ohio Conservation Bulletin for which 42 subscriptions have been furnished by the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post

Walter Rusk, who heads the post's conservation committee, announced that the same offer is open to other schools in the county which have classes in Ohio history, or other classes in which the study of conservation is stressed.

Conservation promotion is the VFW's major civic activity in the state and national organization, Rusk explained Local post follow the same course of action in most cases.

In Coshocton county, nearly every student receives the Conservation Bulletin through subscriptions supplied by the VFW post there, Rusk reported.

Experts say that during a violent storm you stand a good chance of being struck by lightening if you are standing, walking or running on a beach, playing golf or standing under a tree.

Buffalo Off Patch, Goes Down Hatch

A touch of the old west enlivened Bucyrus this past week (or more correctly was sliced) away.

Slightly more than a week ago William D. Sharrock of R. F. D. 1 bought an 800 pound cow buffalo at Allentown, Pa., and brought it to the Bucyrus farm of his parents. Bill intended to keep the buffalo at the farm, but faced a rising objection on the part of his parents.

After seeking in vain for someone who needed a buffalo to fill out a Christmas stocking, Bill had to resign himself to seeing the animal go the way of all good things. Buffalo steaks were available in Bucyrus last Monday.

The young farmer undoubtedly winced as the butcher's implements finished his brief experiment at raising cattalo, the hybrid buffalo and cattle cross.

WHO SHOT IT?

It comes up every year, and 1948 is no exception. The old argument of whose shot actually killed a deer has landed in court again.

This time a Caldwell man shot the deer, it ran into a farmer's shed, and another hunter shot it again. Then the row started, and the matter ended up in court.

Hunting and Fishing In Dixie

Duck Hunters Take Casting Rods Along

What is the most essential equipment of a duck hunter (excluding the all-important shotgun)?

Some sportsmen will claim it's a natural sounding call, others that a good retriever is a "must"; but around Stuttgart, Ark., heart of the rice belt, it's a good casting rod and reel!

No, the hunters don't cast for the ducks as they fly past although the rod and reel make excellent retrieving equipment for downed birds They merely shoot until the main flight has passed, then continue their day's sport by casting for bass

Nearly every rice farm has its own small reservoir, and these are loaded with stumps, logs—and big bass.

A common sight during the duck season on this Mississippi flyway hotspot is a hunter sitting on a flooring of boards raised above the water and casting in all directions. If a flight of ducks comes within range he drops the rod and reel, picks up his shotgun, and is back in business

The reservoirs are so filled with debris that weedless plugs or baits are almost a necessity In addition, it is almost impossible to get an average boat through many of the small lakes. From personal experience I can vouch for the fact that its no fun to wedge your boat between a couple of sturdy trees. Someone gets out to push and its a mighty wet job! I pushed!

BEAUTIFUL SIGHT

These rice fields are a beautiful sight when the grain is about half green, broad acres stretching out from the highways. Cutting through the edges of the various fields are small canals or ditches which carry water from the reservoirs to the growing plants. ditches in turn are excellent feeding grounds for large bass, and many an eight-pounder has given up the ghost in a small stream only two or three feet wide.

To top it all off, ducks often make a landing in the reservoir, then feed their way along these tiny canals. This in turn means the hunter has to be on his toes even as he goes to his favorite blind. Anything can happen!

Inasmuch as this Stuttgart area is one of the best in the world for ducks, the annual world's championship duck calling contest is held there. Two years ago the first caller was taking his place behind the screen, loosed a faint 'quack' as a warm-up, and a large flight of ducks zoomed over the heads of the callers, judges, and audience

The flight was nothing unusual, the contestant hadn't called the ducks in, but the timing was perfect. It so happened that I was on the way back from a fishing trip (had a nice string of bass with me) at the time the contest was starting.

Yes, bass and ducks make a swell team for the sportsmen around Stuttgart!

(Next week: America's fightingest fish, bar none)

Plans Arranged For Fox Drive

BUCYRUS - The Crawford County Conservation League made preliminary plans this week for a fox drive to be held sometime after the first of the year. Date and place for the drive will be announced within the next few weeks, league officials said.

The group also is planning to purchase 120 rabbits for release in the county next spring.

Oddendia

Confucius say: Rabbit very holy creature—becomes sacred ancestor fast

While those might not be the words of the famous Chinese philosopher, it is a fact that in his time the rabbit was bred for sacrificial uses.

Rabbits have a long history Besides being known in China at an early date, they were domesticated by the ancient Greeks and Romans. The rabbit matures at six months and frequently bears as many as four litters a year.

For the benefit of crossword puzzle fans, the four-letter word "ibex" is the name of the Alpine wild goat, now found only in three areas of Switzerland The ibex inhabits the line of perpetual snow of its native mountains, but descends at night to graze in the highest woods.

Perhaps the ibis had parcel post rights on Egyptian babies This sacred bird of Egypt is related to the stork.

Please place your orders early for Leghorn chicks from our own high producing pullorum tested flocks. Start hatching in February.

Girls, Here's How to Avoid 'Untidy Teens'

(Editor's Note: Emily Wilkins, clothes designer especially for the teens, started a whole new cycle of teen-age fashions, teen-age cosmetics and teen-age magazines. She is the author of a new book, "Here's Looking At You," for teen-agers).

By EMILY WILKINS
(Written Exclusively for AP Newsfeatures)

It's sad, but true, that most girls between the ages of 12 and 16 deserve the title, the "untidy teens."

That's the age when too many think it's smart to be sloppy, when unbrushed hair, unpressed skirts, untidy sweaters are a defiant badge of growing up.

But growing pains needn't be so difficult. The reason for the still sloppiness of the average teen-ager is simply that she doesn't know the rules for glamor. Rather than make a mistake, she pretends a profound disinterest in the whole subject of good looks and grooming and adopts a protective covering, endeavoring to look just like all other girls her age.

I've worked with a lot of teen-agers, including my own sisters, and I've seen the joy and increased poise that comes with an understanding of a few basic rules of grooming and dress.

Most of the pointers I have passed on to my sisters I have learned from working with the young models in my business. After a while you come to know that there are a certain set of rules that are sure fire, that can't miss, that can make the most undistinguished girl attractive if she follows them.

I don't blame most of these youngsters for being confused. There are so many well-meaning columns, articles and lectures directed at them these day that they don't know what advice to follow. It's like walking into a department store with its array of "little deb shops," "teen corners," "misses departments" and so on. A girl doesn't know which one is for her.

TEEN-AGE BEWILDERED

There are relatives, friends and radio commentators who love to give the teen-ager free advice. Advertisers entreat her to buy everything from false eyeglasses to false bosoms. She has become an important consumer. The trouble is that usually she consumes too much.

Having little training in sales resistance, the bewildered teen-ager is likely to fall for each fad of the moment, and find herself with a closet full of unrelated items, and actually nothing to wear.

The rules I have worked out for my models have been tested enough times to prove that they are unfailing short-cuts to good looks. They are basic rules which will serve a girl for a lifetime if she learns them well and early. They stress subtraction rather than addition. They are easy to follow and fun to do.

Here they are:

1. Keep clean. This means clean skin, clean hair, clean finger nails, clean clothes. It's the one most important ingredient of glamor, charm or whatever you want to call that quality possessed by all beautiful women. It doesn't require a large array of expensive cosmetics. Soap, water and elbow grease are the principal requirements.

2. Keep simple. Don't wear too many bracelets, ornaments, accessories. Select a simple basic outfit and good basic accessories such as shoes, gloves, belt and bag, but choose them to go together. Plan your outfit as a whole, and consider the picture it will make. Don't do your shopping helter-skelter.

3. Keep neat. This means well-brushed, shiny hair, clothes pressed and brushed, shoes shined, handbag neat and not bulging, no buttons missing, no rips unmended.

4. Keep in shape. This means eliminating hot fudge sundaes and candy bars as a steady diet, eating sensibly, exercising daily, getting eight hours sleep every night, making the most of your figure, when you're young you usually don't need to diet strenuously to keep your weight where it should be. This also means proper posture—head up, shoulders back, chest lifted, tummy flat, back straight. Exercise and practice are all that's necessary to achieve it.

5. Keep to your type. If you're small, dimpled, blonde and curly-haired, don't try to be a femme Fatale. Accentuate your own best points. If you're tall, rangy, athletic, don't try to look like a clinging vine. Stick to tailored clothes, play up the wholesome outdoors look.

Those are the basic rules, stripped of frills and nonsense. And outgrow her growing pains with the girl who follows them will dispatch.

In Medieval and Tudor England "May Day" was a great public holiday.

Russians Free Six Prisoners

BERLIN—Six British soldiers held by the Soviets after a shooting incident with a Russian border patrol in Germany were reported released Saturday.

British informants in Berlin said the men were freed after a joint inquiry by a Red army general and British officers.

Another Tommy involved in the incident — which occurred last Wednesday near Gottingen, when the Britons strayed into the Soviet zone—was at last reports in critical condtion. He was shot by a Russian machine-gunner.

GREENHOUSE FIRE

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Fire in a Rocky River greenhouse yesterday threatened Christmas stock valued at $20,000.

Eugene Case, owner of the W. L. Case greenhouse, said he had 18 hours to restore heat before his plants were ruined. The fire, which began in the greenhouse heating plant and burned out the boiler room, caused about $10,000 damages, firemen said.

Loudonville Lets Water Contracts

$130,000 Issue Awarded Concern

LOUDONVILLE—Contracts for $130,000 to $140,000 in municipal revenue bonds for improving the local water system were awarded to the Fox-Reusch company of Cincinnati at a special meeting of council here Friday night.

The firm's bid of 2.809 per cent was the lowest of the sealed bids received for the issue by Miss Margaret Weimer, village clerk. Among the 11 other bids submitted some went as high as 3.22 per cent, it was reported.

Representatives from 12 bonding companies attended the session and discussed with councilmen the type best suited for the local project. All bidders submitted bids on the basis of $130,000. The figure was estimated by the Columbus engineering firm of Burgess and Nipple, plus an additional $10,000 if found necessary.

Money from the sale of the bonds will be in the hands of village officials on or before Feb. 13, which is 60 days from the awarding of the contract. The bonds will begin maturing on Feb. 1, 1951 and will run a period of 30 years with a recall clause at the end of 15 years at a premioum of $102.

The Fox-Reusch company will bear all costs of preparing the bonds and legislation involved. All plans, specifications and estimated costs have been promised trustees of the Board of Public Affairs by March 1.

Plans call for the improvement and extension of the present water system, construction of a new pumping station building and installation of a water softening plant.

Revise Bus Schedules

ASHLAND—The new city bus line, Ashland Transit Lines, Inc., marks its fourth week of existence this week by adding sufficient equipment to provide half-hourly service during morning and evening rush hours. Service has been hourly thus far.

The increase in service is being made to accommodate the unexpectedly large demand for bus service during the periods when working people go to and from their work.

The buses also will operate each day until 10 p. m. up until Christmas to accommodate shoppers.

Bucyrus Knows Rhodes Scholar

BUCYRUS—Martin A. Rush, 29, former Air Force pilot who is a medical student at the University of Cincinnati and last week won a Rhodes scholarship, is the husband of a former Bucyrian. Rush's home is in Middletown.

His wife is the former Betty Miller, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. James D. Miller, residing south of here. The Rushs and their year-old son expect to spend Christmas with her parents here.

The scholarship provides $2,015 a year and Rush still has 14 months left under the GI Bill of Rights. He hopes to leave those unused until he completes his education at Oxford university in England.

$30,000 IN YULE BONUSES

ASHLAND—Yule bonuses totaling $30,000 will be presented to employes and supervisory officials by the Union Malleable Mfg. company of Ashland and its two local subsidiaries, Ashland Malleable Iron company and Union Brass and Copper company.

Marshall Gets Support of Plymouth Club

PLYMOUTH — The Plymouth Community club last week commended Marshal Robert Meiser for his zeal in enforcing safe traffic rules here. The action followed publicized criticism that the enforcement officer's strictness was curbing trade in the downtown area and scaring prospective customers away.

Mayor Carroll Robinson said he was at a loss why such a story should appear as he has had no complaints about Meiser's activities. While there have been several arrests for speeding, the majority of them have been for traveling more than 20 miles an hour through school zones.

Activity of State Highway Patrolmen in bringing many cases here for settlement doubtless has reacted unfavorably on the local marshal, residents believe.

One businessman stated: "Meiser is the first real policeman the town has had in 25 years, and he should be commended for his work."

Galion Man Passes Tests

LIMA—(AP)—A Galion resident, J. R. Gates, was among the 35 successful candidates who took state Board of Optometry examinations in Columbus on Nov. 28-30. The announcement was made here Saturday by H. J. Hanold, secretary of the state board.

Other successful candidates (no grades given) included:

Shelby Depot Seeking Salvage Material Bids

SHELBY—Bids are being asked on a number of lots of salvage materials at the 831st Air Force Specialized Depot here by Col. R. W. Dyer, commanding officer. The bid will be opened in the office of the contracting officer here at 10 a. m. on Jan. 4.

Inspection of the materials may be made Monday through Friday, 8 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., until time of opening of bids.

$100 Yule Gift Voted Boys' Village By Group

ASHLAND — Ohio Association of Emblem clubs, of which Mrs. Otto Duncan of Ashland is president, last week voted $100 as a Christmas gift to Boys Village at Smithville during a meeting in the Elks home.

Mrs. S. C. Scott, Kent, welfare chairman for the association, reviewed work done at the village and spoke of its need for financial aid. Representatives attended the meeting from Akron, Kent, Bellaire, Willard and Ashland.

Busy Little Bees Perform Big Service For Farmers

By BILL HERRING, News-Journal State Editor

Busy little bees.

There's nothing trite about that statement.

Honey bees work themselves to death within six weeks after going afield for nectar. Even winter finds them continually on the move within their shelters. A hiveful of bees is referred to as a "colony."

As for the little part—bees are counted by weight with 3,000 to the pound. A large colony will house 10 pounds of bees.

"Cleansing flights" are the only outdoor excursions to break the monotony of the cold months. On sunny days the bees make circular flights around their colony. Last winter when there were no sunny days for a six-week period 35 per cent of Ohio's bee population perished. That set a 50-year high mark in the state.

About 24 per cent of these bee fatalities have been replaced but Ohio still needs more to retain its rank with California as top-producing states in the country's honey statistics. This was explained by Floyd R. Stumph, Richland county bee inspector who resides here at 489 Woodlawn avenue.

Bees are important to agriculture from a pollination angle and are worth 10 times more for pollination than for the honey they produce. Farmers are anxious to accommodate city residents who are bee hobbyists for pollination by the bees proves helpful with crops.

The law requires beekeepers to have modern, moveable frame hives and bees can't be kept in barrels or cases. Inspectors condemn and burn equipment which violates regulations.

Stumph reported one instance where adjoining farmers, growing clover, received different dividends due to bees aiding pollination. One farmer had a 20 times greater yield per acre because bees were kept on his place. Bees are invaluable in fruit pollination and orchard growers welcome bee colonies.

Cooperation with the county bee inspector is stressed as he checks on all colonies yearly. Any beekeeper buying bees should report transactions so an accurate location report may be kept and forwarded to state officials.

Inspecting primarily deals with checking on diseased colonies. The most common one is American foul brood which is contagious among bees. Its presence results in the burning of colonies as the bees are destroyed and only the hive body, tops and bottoms are salvaged. No bee disease is ever transmitted to humans, Stumph declares.

Only two per cent of beekeepers object to the annual inspections, he stated.

Stumph admits bees sting inspectors, too, but a person who works with bees builds up a certain immunity. Stings still hurt but the after-effects are minor, he explained.

AVOID DISTURBANCE

Ordinarily bees won't sting humans unless disturbed. Bees become cross and unpredictable when nectar is unattainable. In good nectar hunting seasons there are no sting casualties.

Many people have the impression you set a colony out and forget it—only returning later to get the honey-filled combs. Stumph says they require lots of attention—to the queen, feeding and equipment.

Most beekeepers are middle-aged hobbyists residing in cities. Few young people evince interest in the hobby, due doubtless to the lower price honey commands on the market in comparison to other foods. Stumph says this territory isn't attractive to commercially-minded beekeepers.

A hive produces from 15 to 20 pounds of honey a year. The honey flows are intermittent with the first spring flow of fruit blooms and dandelion starting June 1 and extending into September. The olg one is the white honey flow from the last week in June until late in July.

Buckwheat honey flow occurs in August, with the fall flow of golden rod and aster starting Sept. 1 and ending with the first killing frost. After the frost the bees 'hibernate' for the winter. Bees never freeze to death but too much body moisture often causes death.

There are three honey bee classifications—queen, drones and workers.

The queen bee is actually the only bee in the hive which has the power of reproduction. She is twice the size of the other bees while the drones are non-working male bees and the majority housed in a colony are workers.

Survival of the fittest is the life in a colony. A queen lays from 1,500 to 2,000 eggs daily. When she starts to fail the workers place an egg in an enlarged cell and feed it 'royal jelly', which is a super-dooper vitamin, and which makes the larva grow tremenduously and produce another queen. The new arrival kills the old queen and assumes command of the colony.

HATCHES IN 21 DAYS

It takes 21 days for an egg to produce a bee and two weeks are required ere the bee goes afield for nectar. Old bees die before spring and the great turnover finds a new batch of bees starting the honey search. The workers have their own code and kill off the drones, who are non-workers, rather then feed them during the winter. Drones never fight among themselves.

When a queen lays an egg that's not fertile it develops into a drone.

The colony tries to keep the number of drones down by having good queens and a good comb in the hive. Beeswax is used as a foundation for the comb. If the comb has cells too large it produces too many drones. Beeswax is a by-product of the honey business and is used in making church candles and cosmetics.

The fast disappearing bumble bee is a good pollinator. It makes only enough honey for its own use. The honey bee is a provident substitute for the bumble bee as a pollinator.

There are three main varieties of honey bees. Italian bees form 90 per cent of the Ohio bee population with the remainder either Russian mountain bees or Carnolians from Austria.

Clarence W. Vogel of Plymouth, who teaches in a centralized Huron county school during the winter, is president of the Richland County Beekeepers association. His 110 colonies pay their way in the summer.

HOBBYIST CHECKS COLONIES — Charles Armbruster (above) of 572 Bowman street who works nights in the Westinghouse plant and spends his waking daytime hours as a bee hobbyist, checks 60 colonies of bees kept on the Louis Lamneck farm, four miles north of Lucas. He has 135 other colonies at two other Richland county farms—the Shell farm on Lexington avenue and the Locke farm on the Little Washington road.

★

WORK SHOP HELPFUL — Charles Armbruster works at his powered rip saw cutting lumber to make hives for his colonies of bees on three county farms. He operates a truck to transport the bees and equipment to the places where his colonies are housed. Farmers are eager to house honey bees as they aid polination and assure greater crop yields.

★

COUNTY BEE INSPECTOR — Floyd R. Stumph (insert, right) of 489 Woodlawn avenue, is responsible for checking all bee colonies in Richland county and informing state officials of ones destroyed when disease was found and of any purchases changing location of colonies.

Holmes Lists Junior Fair

MILLERSBURG—Holmes county will have a Junior Fair in 1949 it has recently been decided. The Holmes County Agriculture society tentatively has approved the plan on a larger anticipated fair than the one held last fall. The dates for the 1949 fair have been moved back from early September to Aug. 18-19-20.

Reasons for staging the junior exposition are about the same as last year due to a financial status it is not deemed wise to hold a full scale fair. The society has not yet recovered from the losses caused by heavy rains during the 1947 fair and the county is unable to help with the expenses.

The agricultural society has elected these officers: Dr. Wade Lower, Millersburg dentist, re-elected president; Verle Spreng, Knox township, secretary; Bert Glaque, Millersburg, R. D. 2, treasurer; H. U. Steimel, Millersburg, R. D., concession manager.

Shelby Exchange Club Installation Tuesday

SHELBY—The Shelby Exchange club will install officers for the coming year at a Christmas dinner at the Shelby Inn at 6 p. m. Tuesday.

New officers who will be installed include Al Barkdull, president; Emanuel Mathews, vice-president; Elmer Lemmerman, treasurer, and William Sites, secretary. The guest of honor and speaker will be Rev. M. P. Paetznick, pastor of the Lutheran church in Plymouth.

Retain All Officers

LOUDONVILLE — Members of the Independent Workers association of the Flxible company held an election of officers last week with all the present officers returned to the same positions for the coming year. Re-elected were the following: Jack Riynock, president; Harley Harris, vice president; Dick 'Obrecht, secretary; Detroit Hiner, treasurer, and Donald Foster, delegate at large.

Iberia 4-H Club Boys Get Fine Corn Yield On Two Acres

IBERIA — The Iberia Triplet 4-H boy clubs are proud of their achievement of receiving a $250 check from a two-acre corn plot, which produced more than 100 bushels per acre. The project is an outstanding one, according to Elwood Davis, Morrow county extension farm agent, and F. W. Dalrymple, his assistint, who has charge of 4-H club work. The affair was planned by M. Doyle Rusk.

The check was presented to James Sautter, president of one of the clubs, by Melvin Sharrock of the Sharrock elevator in Mt. Gilead, who purchased the corn. Aaron Smith donated the plot of ground to the clubs. He is finance chairman of the 4-H advisory staff and placed the money in a Mt. Gilead bank.

C. E. Shumaker, local seed corn producer, and Horace Braden donated the seed corn and special tests and records compiled on field days were recorded for the group under the supervision of R. Stark Beard, Iberia and Mt. Gilead vo-ag teacher.

Albert Sautter donated his services to pick the corn and William Rinehart hauled the corn to market. A corn-husking contest, held the same day, was won by Floren Hildebrand of Mt. Gilead, James and Roland Sautter of near Iberia.

The project demonstrated the value of working together. The proceeds will be used entirely for boys 4-H club work.

25 War Brides Bid to Party

BUCYRUS — Overseas war brides of Bucyrus servicemen will be guests at a Christmas party Tuesday night at the home here of Mrs. Carl Ide, wife of a Bucyrus physician.

The 25 brides, natives of England, France, Poland, Germany, Australia and New Zealand, held their first get-together last month when the local chapter of the Red Cross sponsored a Thanksgiving party for them.

All the traditional American holiday customs will be introduced at the party including the appearance of Santa Claus. German, French and English Christmas carols will be sung.

CHILDREN TO BE TREATED

LOUDONVILLE — The local IOOF lodge this afternoon sponsors an annual Christmas party for children of the Ashland County Children's home. Santa will give treats and presents to the children with an entertainment program to follow.

A Cappella Choir Billed In Ashland

ASHLAND — Ashland high school a cappella choir will give its annual pre-Christmas twilight concert at the McDowell auditorium at 4 p. m. Sunday under the direction of Dr. Louis E. Pete.

Appearing as soloists will be Patty Wait, Carol Ann Norris and Raymond Neikirk. Dorothy Wiltrout will serve as accompanist for two numbers.

Polio Victim Said Serious

BUCYRUS — Attaches at Children's hospital in Columbus reported Saturday the condition of Barbara Ann Ehmann, 14, local polio victim there, took "turn for the worse" during last week.

Barbara Ann was stricken on Oct. 10, nine days after her sister, Nancy Jo, 8, contracted the disease.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Ehmann, who reside east of here on the Galion road, are at the hospital bedside.

Achievement Day Plans Under Way In Ashland

ASHLAND — Ashland Home Council is in charge of arrangements for Ashland County Achievement Day, planned for Tuesday, March 29, under the direction of Miss Julia Steiner, Ashland county home demonstration agent.

The Achievement Day annually bridge hundreds of home-made articles for display by the rural women in the various township groups. An all-day program also is planned.

Lexington Cousin Informed of Death

LEXINGTON—Mrs. Walter B. Frizzell, local resident, received word of the death of her cousin, Ashby Herbert Boyd, 52, Monday in his Charleston, W. Va., home following a stroke suffered the day before.

A native of Alderson, W. Va., Mr Boyd was a member of a prominent Charleston family and St. Mark's Methodist church there. He was an employe of the state liquor commission and former doorkeeper of the House of Delegates. Rites were held Wednesday in St Mark's church with burial in Spring Hill cemetery at Charleston.

Woman, 100, Marks Birth Date Today

Morrow County In Same Class

M. DOYLE RUSK
(N-J State Correspondent)

IBERIA—"God has blessed our family with good health," says Mrs. Sarah Rhodebeck, of Morrow county, who today is celebrating her 100th birthday anniversary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gallegher, near Mt. Gilead, with open house being observed during the afternoon.

All members of the family are living. This includes five living generations. She has lived to see her two oldest children observe golden wedding anniversaries.

Thursday was the birthday anniversary date and she enjoyed it at the home of a daughter, Mrs. David Snyder, near here. She expressed delight for the interest and kindness of her many friends. She takes great pride in her tatting and demonstrates how it is done to visitors.

Mrs. Rhodebeck shares birthday honors with Morrow county, as both have arrived at the delightful age of 100 years. She received a thrill recently in riding with Gov. and Mrs. Thomas Herbert during a five-mile long Morrow Centennial parade.

Looking to the future, Mrs. Rhodebeck plans to alternate visits at the homes of her daughters.

The news reporter waved goodbye to the lovable character, assuring her he would return to write up her 200th anniversary.

Firm Honors 9 Employes

LOUDONVILLE—Nine employes with at least 10 years of service with the Loudonville Milling company received service awards from Joseph C. Bevan, president of the Standard Milling company. Standard purchased the local firm in 1947. Awards included a pin and certificate for the veteran employes.

Earl Teeters was awarded a 25-year diamond studded service pin. Earl Seig, Alvin Fliger and Lawrence BeBout each received 20-year pins studded with two rubies. Frank Sprang and William F. Weaver, 15-year men, were given pins studded with a single ruby. Those receiving 10-year pins were George McCloud, Duane Simmons and William Etwiler.

Bevan explained the company's plan of giving awards to employes. This also covers 35, 50 and 60-year awards. There are 365 of the 1,000 employes who have been with the company for 10 years or more. Two employes will reach the 60-year stage in two years and eight have at least 50 years of service on their company rolls.

150 Attend Party

BUCYRUS—More than 150 attended a party last week for Bucyrus high school members and their parents under the sponsorship of the Band Parents' association. A gift exchange was held by band members and Christmas carols were sung to the accompaniment of a nine-piece brass choir.

53 Crawford Home for Aged Residents Feted By Groups

GALION—Christmas cheer in the form of an inspirational program, gifts and a dinner, was given the 53 residents of the Crawford County Home for the Aged, seven miles west of here Friday afternoon. The donors were the four unions of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Crawford county, Galion, Bucyrus, Holmes-Liberty and Leesville.

Arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mrs. Fred Long of Galion, county director of flower mission and relief of the WCTU.

The impressive Christmas setting which had been planned by Mrs. Dinkel, matron of the home, consisted of a large lighted Christmas tree in the entrance hall, a smaller one in the room where the program was presented, a large "Merry Christmas" sign over the arch to the dining room where the tables were tastily decorated in keeping with the season.

The program was opened by Mrs. O. E. Knapp of Galion who gave the Christmas story, and led the entire group in the singing of familiar Christmas carols; Mrs. Ida Weirick of Bucyrus, county WCTU president, gave a reading and remarks; a trio composed of Mrs. Parks Stuckman, Mrs. Helen Hoover and Mrs. Harold George, all of Bucyrus, sang.

Sidney Long, Fred Long III and Dell Long, Mansfield children, gave readings; Kathy Jo Kleinknecht of Galion gave a reading; Kay Johnston of Galion, sang; Ruth Ann Bersinger of Galion, played the accordion; a Christmas message was given by Rev. H. Leslie MacKay of the Church of the Nazarene, Galion; June Stuckman of Bucyrus, played the accordion; a group of readings about the Christmas story was given by 84-year-old Mrs. O. H. Laughbaum of Bucyrus, in a pleasing manner; June Metz of Galion, sang a group of numbers; and Morris Martin of Galion, played trumpet selections.

Besides the program, the county unions served the evening meal, presented each resident of the Home with a Christmas gift in addition to a half pound box of candy.

School Adds Farm Shop At Iberia

Members Plan Use On Monday

IBERIA—The new farm shop of the school vocational agriculture department will be utilized by its members Monday, it was announced Saturday by Preston Burggraf, school superintendent. The new structure, divided into four rooms, gives the school a modern farm shop designed to make better agriculture in the community's main industry.

Additional improvements listed on the school board's program include a new maple hardwood finish floor in the gymnasium. The new farm shop was erected with insulated metal on both roof and sides and will be heated with a special stoker furnace.

The building, 88 by 32 feet in size, contains a large farm shop, a class room, library room and a soil and milk testing room. R. Stark Beard, vo-ag instructor will assemble woodworking tools and farm machinery repari equipment together with animal clippers and a seed treating outfit in the new shop room. He plans to add welding for metal work in the future.

Galion Garden Club Enjoys Supper, Party

GALION — Twenty-five members of the East Side Garden club enjoyed a pot-luck supper at the East school Thursday when they held their annual Christmas party.

For the program, Mrs. Clara Diesem gave a Christmas poem and a Christmas story, and slides were shown of various flowers, giving the names, origin and history of the blooms. Members also exchanged gifts, and the white elephant prizes were won by Mrs. Rymal Poast and Mrs. Geneva Austin.

Galion Plans Party For Parochial Pupils

GALION — A Christmas party for all children of St. Patrick's and St. Joseph's parochial schools of Galion, and other children under school age, will be sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Wednesday. The affair will be held in St. Patrick's auditorium.

Plans for the party are in the hands of a committee composed of George Doran, Bob Quinn, Leonard Rauth, Herbert Black, Melvin Enders and Nick Sinclair.

Community Clubbers Line Up Stops For St. Nick

Lucas Area Giving Santa Claus a Boost

By VIRGINIA LEE
(N-J State Correspondent)

LUCAS—Santa Claus will come to everyone in the Lucas area this Christmas!

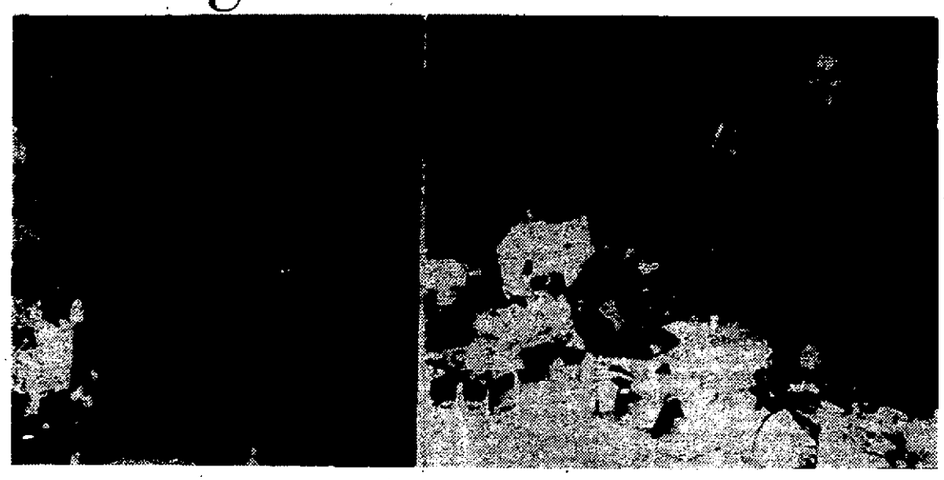
At least that is the goal of the more fortunate in the community who are sharing of their plenty mindful that they may be among the less fortunate another year. The Lucas school office has been "drafted" to act as more or less of a clearing house for the Lucas Mothers club and the Lucas Community Garden club, leaders in the Yuletide campaign.

Mothers clubbers will have a small treat for every pupil just before they leave school for their vacations. The school also will add to the spirit of festivity by serving ice cream and Christmas cookies, made and donated by the Future Homemakers of the school, at the various room parties preceding the dismissal. But the Mothers clubbers are checking further to see if Santa knows the home addresses of the youngsters.

Warm winter clothing and gifts of all sorts, all in gala holiday trimmings, have been contributed by members of the two clubs. Other organizations and individuals stand by if demand exceeds supply. Garden club members also send greetings or small remembrances to the aged and shut-ins, regardless of their need.

Surveys show virtually all families in the community have means to provide food and absolute necessities, but there are some who lack funds to provide additional things that everyone likes at Christmas time. Should this be you or some person you know in the Lucas community, that may not be included on the list, please send a note to the "Christmas Committee" at the Lucas school or notify any one of the following women who represent the two organizations: Mrs. Bayard Jones, Mrs. R. W. Slater, Mrs. Ray Muth, or Mrs. Bertha Dome.

All communications and presentations are strictly confidential, with the gifts for the children to be given anonymously to the parents in advance of the holiday.



CONTRIBUTED GIFTS AMAZE CLUBBERS—Officers of the Lucas Community Garden club and the Lucas Mothers club regard pile of gift donations to be distributed to area folk whose addresses Santa Claus may have lost. At extreme left is Mrs. Ellsworth Secrest, secretary-treasurer (standing), and Mrs. Bayard Jones, vice president of the Garden club, while at the right are Mrs. Russell Kohler, vice president, and Mrs. Doyle Stake, president (both standing), and Mrs. Ellsworth Secrest, secretary-treasurer of the Mothers club.

Chest Clinic Tests Conducted In Ashland

ASHLAND—Dr. O. A. Beatty, Mansfield chest specialist who conducted the December chest clinic at the Ashland county board of health offices, reports 134 examinations made, 124 for residents of Ashland and 10 for residents of the county.

The specialist reports negative findings for all 70 city food handlers examined. This includes six-rechecks made.

Area Yule Programs Listed During Week

Christmas music and programs garner this week's spotlight in the Mansfield area. Students will put their best foot forward to establish parental confidence as vacation days are at hand and many school auditoriums will be the scenes of Yuletide programs before the holiday arrives Saturday.

Shelby has three programs billed today. Two of these will be held in the Knights of Columbus Hall—a double program — sponsored by the K. of C. and Daughters of Isabella for grade school pupils of St. Mary's and the Shelby Settlement.

At 1:30 p. m. pupils of the first four grades will be guests while the upper four grades will take the spotlight at 4:30 p. m. The pupils afterwards will present a Christmas play and recital. Santa Claus is to appear and distribute gifts to all the children. Rev. Michael McFadden will be the speaker.

At 4 p. m. the 33 members of the Chancel choir of First Methodist church in Shelby, under the direction of Howard Wildman, will present the oratorio, "Messiah" at the annual vesper services.

Bellville-Butler Women's Music club is sponsoring the "Messiah" at 7:30 p. m. in the Butler Presbyterian church by a chorus composed of Bellville, Butler and Lexington residents.

Guest soloists at the Butler affair include L. L. Shackton, Otterbien college voice instructor; J. K. Stonebrook of Mansfield; Miss Emily Severson, Bellville resident now teaching music at St Mary's college, Xavier, Kan., and Miss Barbara Clelland, Bellville resident who had voice training at Ohio State university and now is in her second year of training in New York City.

CHURCHES PLAN PROGRAMS

Trinity Lutheran church in Willard tonight will hold candlelight services in which 70 will participate. The junior choir will be in the chancel and the children's choir will sing from the balcony. Mrs. Forrest Fink is general chairman with Mrs. Tom Frye as organist. Mrs. Frye and Paul Bugbee will play an organ-piano duet.

On Sunday evening the Methodist choir will present a Christmas cantata in Nova. Mrs. Alberta Andrews is director with Dannie Nanville pianist.

The Franklin Methodist church choir will present a Christmas music program at 7:45 p. m. Sunday. The choir is directed by Mary C. Smith with Elizabeth Grimes as pianist and Elsie Ireland as her assistant.

Some 800 musicians will be heard during the series of hour-long concerts at the Crawford County Children's Home. They started last Tuesday and conclude Thursday evening. The series was planned by Superintendant and Mrs. Marvin O. Adams to bring the real meaning of Christmas not only to the 62 children at the home, but to the community as well.

An enclosed platform on the front lawn at the home has been decorated and colorfully lighted with evergreen entwined around the edges. Lights on life-size figures of a Nativity scene, to one side of the platform, adds to the beauty. Two half-hour-long concerts are presented nightly with the first at 7 p. m.

SHARE BILLING

On Sunday the Galion barber shop chorus gets first billing while the Johnsville Men's Class follows. Monday's program is opened by the First Lutheran church choir of Crestline with St. Patrick's choir of Galion following. On Tuesday Peace Lutheran church choir of Galion and the Men's Chorus of Bucyrus are booked.

The Christmas story will be told Wednesday night by Mrs. Ralph Spaid of the Crawford county welfare staff. The concert offers the First Methodist church choir of Galion and the Woodlawn United Brethren church choir of Bucyrus. On Thursday the Crestline high school choir will be heard.

A Christmas program will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Butler high school auditorium while the Bucyrus Men's Chorus, directed by Dr. A. D. Bumstead, returns from the Children's Home concert in Galion to give an outdoor program in Bucyrus at 8:30 p. m. At 9 p. m. Santa Claus arrives in a jeep at Washington Square to distribute treats to children attending the annual program there.

Wednesday finds the school music department and the community chorus singers presenting the annual Christmas program in the Tiro school auditorium, at 8 p. m.

The Butler grade school operetta "Kidnaping Santa Claus" will be given at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the high school auditorium. It is directed by Miss Doris Forney and has Miss Annabelle Gower as piano accompanist. A 15-minute prelude will be given by the first, and second grade rhythm band and chorus.

Crawford Teacher Unit Elects Official Staff

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Iantha Cook, a teacher at Holmes-Liberty school, north of here, has been elected president of the Crawford County Teachers' association for the 1948-49 year, county superintendent S. K. Sollars reported.

Other officers elected include: Vice president, Paul E. Gettys, Holmes-Liberty superintendent; secretary, Mrs Lucille Durbin; Chatfield; treasurer, Mrs. Norma Durwell, Sulphur Springs teacher; executive committee member, Herbert S. Gary, New Washington superintendent; Ohio Education association delegates, Helen Weidemaier, Tiro, and Milton Harman, Mt. Zion superintendent.

ASHLAND DRAFT QUOTA 5

LOUDONVILLE — Ashland county's quota for the peace time draft will be five men for December. Orders were mailed this week for them to leave Dec. 28

State Opens 4 Area Road Project Bids

Three Counties Would Benefit

Two Huron county road project bids, and one each in Ashland and Morrow counties, were among 25 opened Friday in Columbus by the State Highway department.

A. J. Baltes, Inc., of Norwalk, submitted low bid of $220,786 to build a concrete arch culvert bridge over a branch of the Huron river on Route 61 and to pave 1.708 miles with reinforced concrete. The original estimate was for $212,900.

The other Huron county bid was one of $214,160 submitted by Banadrea and Hardini Construction company, of Lorain, to erect drainage facilities and pave with bituminous road mix 2.670 miles of Route 99. The original estimate was for $143,600.

The General Dredging company of Ft. Wayne, Ind. submitted low bid of $135,044 to build a steel bridge over Alum creek on Route 229 in Morrow county and pave 4.029 miles with waterbound macadam. The original estimate was for $148,150.

Manney and Skimp of Millersburg, turned in low bid of $51,271 for improving .15 mile of State Route 60 in Vermillion township in Ashland county. The original estimate was $56,900.

Overseas Flight Reunites Family

LOUDONVILLE — Mrs. Joe Bock and son, John of Lakeville will fly to Germany this week to visit her mother in Frankfurt, whom she has not seen in 23 years, during the Christmas holidays.

Mrs. Bock's two sisters, Mrs. George Pinis and Mrs. John Roll of Massillon also will make the trip. They will leave New York Monday via American Overseas airlines and plan to make the return trip Jan. 17

2 Pioneer Concrete Roads In Huron County Revived

COLUMBUS -- Concrete highways brought national fame to Huron county, back in 1916.

Take it from Wilbur Terry, Huron county engineer, the county had more miles of concrete in that year than any other county in the United States, save Wayne county, Mich., where Detroit is.

Friday bids were opened here at a highway letting that will put two of those pioneer roads into the discard, but portions of one of them on State Route 61 will be used as a base for a broad new concrete highway, and a portion of another on State Route 99 will take a new lease on life as one lane of a 20 foot highway for 2.67 miles south of Monroeville.

There will be a total of 1.7 miles of 22 foot concrete paving on State Route 61 near Berlinville. There will be considerable realignment to improve sight distances, but a third of the improvement will be five inch concrete resurfacing over the original concrete pavement, part of it built by the county in 1914 and a portion by the state in 1926.

On State Route 99 there will be 2.67 miles of soil-cement road provided for in the letting. The original concrete pavement for that distance south of Monroeville, was built in 1924, and has served the taxpayers well for more than a third of a century, and now will start on its second third.

Ashland Deputy Buys Dry Cleaning Business

GALION- The dry cleaning business at 230 Harding Way east has been sold by M. G. Thompson to Kay Powers, it was announced last week.

Powers who has been a deputy in the Crawford county sheriff's office since last Aug. 15 when he succeeded the late Clyde Richardson, will assume the proprietorship Monday. Thompson purchased the dry cleaning business about a year ago from Arthur L. Manzer.

Driver Fined $100 In Galion

GALION — Gerald Morrow, 27, yesterday was fined $100 and costs in Mayor H. H. Hartmann's court on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. His companion, Wilbur Love, 29, of North Robinson, was fined $10 on a drunk and disorderly charge.

Burt Colin, 51, of Cleveland, forfeited $10 bond posted for appearance yesterday on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge.

PROGRAM SET SUNDAY

SHILOH—A Christmas program will be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday in the Methodist church here by the youth chorus and church school members. Mrs. Edith Huston is directing the affair.

BEGINS JAIL TERM

BUCYRUS—Joseph Sharp, 42, of 924 W. Bucyrus street, Crestline, Friday started a one week sentence in the Crawford county jail here.

He was sentenced by Probate Judge Constance Keller before whom he appeared on a non-support charge.

Waves Get Training, Dose of Discipline

The lady boots are nearing the end of a 12-week training program that began Oct. 5 at the Great Lakes naval training center. They range in age from 20 to 30. They come from all parts of the U. S.

Many of them enlisted because they thought it was a good chance for a career or for travel. Irene Fizell, 28, a tall, blonde bookkeeper from Brooklyn, put it this way:

"I wanted something different. I'm getting it, and I love it. I hope they send me to Hawaii or Guam."

The girls are known officially as "seaman recruits" and unofficially as "Ripples." They live on an island of women in a sea of 30,000 men—but they don't get closer than whistling distance.

The feminine tars stay in their own bailiwick, Camp John Paul Jones. They are taught and directed by a staff of Wave veterans headed by Lieut. Kathryn Dougherty of Ottumwa, Ia.

The wavelets, all single, wouldn't have much time for men anyway. They hit the deck at 6 a.m., and put in eight hours of study, drill, classes and exercise.

TURN IN EARLY

They take turns swabbing floors, dusting and serving food. At what would have been the middle of a date night back home, they climb into a double-deck bunk. Lights are doused at 9:30.

Their recreation room is a thing of beauty and a joy for two and a half hours of evening leisure. The big—75 by 75 feet—room is done to a movie queen's tasts in blue, green and wine shades. There are sectional sofas, easy chairs, flowered drapes, a grand piano and a radio-phonograph.

The decorating was done by a professional and the bill was paid with profits from a ship service store on the grounds.

The Ripples also have their own game room, gym, swimming pool, soda fountain and beauty parlor.

The girls get off their own little section of the world's largest naval training station three times a week. They go to weekend movies in Ross auditorium and the religious services of their faith.

The big break in the routine is on Thursday nights, when the men boots put on a round of boxing bouts and amateur entertainment. The Waves march in and sit in platoon blocs. The lads greet them with warm applause—but keep out of woo pitching range.

NAVY REGULARS

The Waves, reserves in World War II, now are navy regulars. They get much the same general training as the men, but they don't have to learn how to run ships or fire guns. They address their skirted officers with a respectful if incongruous "sir."

Ripples wear blue dress and working gray uniforms, and dungarees when they are on mop and broom duty. They can use fingernail polish, lipstick and powder. Their chow is heaped on huge, compartmented metal trays.

These recruits and others—the second company of 160 arrived Nov. 16—will get "seaman apprentice" ratings when they graduate. They will work as yeomen (secretaries, stenographers), storekeepers, dental or electronics (radar, radio) technicians, aviation machinists mater, or in the hospital corps or control towers at navy air fields.

Slim, brown-eyed Margie Kent, former reporter on the Wichita, Kans., Eagle, finds the life "A lot like college except for the discipline."

"It's great—if you don't mind these GI shoes and hose," she says.

"And you don't have to worry about what you're going to put on in the morning. You know."

DAV Host At Yule Party

Mansfield Chapter No. 21 of the Disabled American Veterans will hold its annual Christmas party for the children of members and friends Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the chapter club rooms, 102½ North Walnut street.

The party will be in charge of the Women's Auxiliary assisted by members of the chapter.

Commander Walter Bogantz announced that the chapter will not hold its regular meeting this month because of the Christmas holiday. The next meeting will be Jan. 9 at 2:30 p. m.

He added that after the first of the year, regular meetings will be held on the first and third Sundays of every month.

Vogue to Quit Business Dec. 31

The Vogue, 86 North Main street, managed by J. S. Roth for the past 22 years, will go out of business on Dec. 31.

Roth said yesterday he plans to retire, at least for the time being, and will continue his residence here. The Vogue has handled women's clothing more than 20 years.

The Vogue started in business at the site now occupied by Scattergoods. Later it continued at 6 South Main street before moving to the present site six years ago.

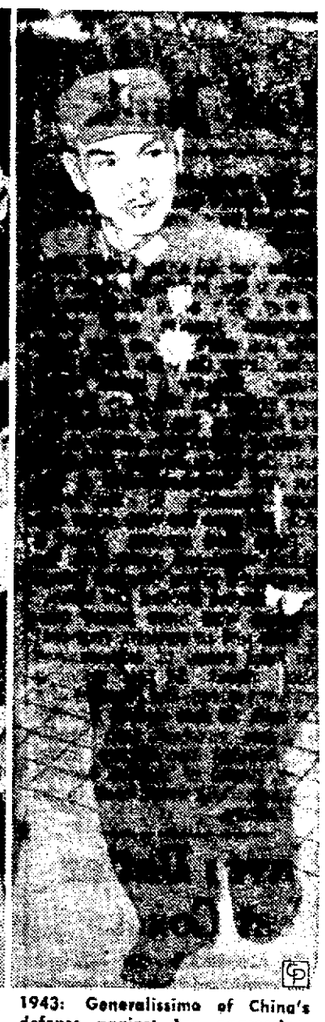
Mayor's Secretary To Resign Post

Mrs. Harold J. Davis, secretary to Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison, will leave her present post about the middle of January, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Davis, who was secretary to the mayor of Bexley, O., before coming to Mansfield, lives at 521 Park avenue west. Her husband is a salesman for the H. J. Heinz company.

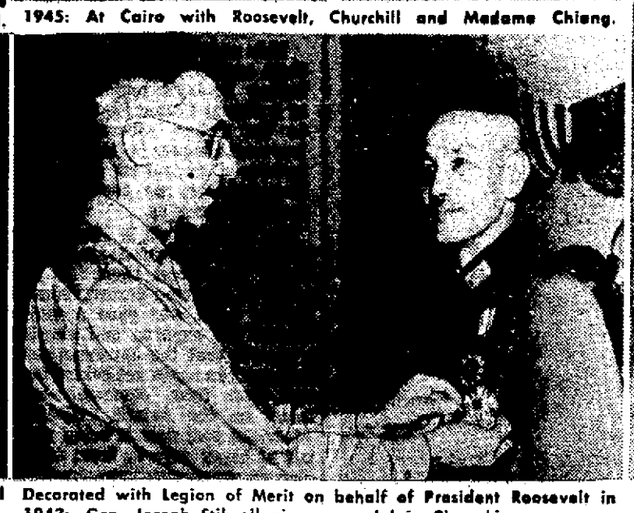
Madame Chiang . . . from the U. S. a warm but empty hand.

1945: At Cairo with Roosevelt, Churchill and Madame Chiang.



1943: Generalissimo of China's defense against Jap aggression.

1937: Chiang mourns at funeral of a revolutionary comrade.



Decorated with Legion of Merit on behalf of President Roosevelt in 1943: Gen. Joseph Stilwell pins on medal in Chungking ceremony.

REPORTS THAT CHINA'S President Chiang Kai-shek seeks to form a new cabinet containing men favoring peace with the communists spotlight the generalissimo's quarter-century career as a military and government leader. As Red forces thrust closer and and closer to Nanking and Madame Chiang's appeal for U. S. aid meets failure, Chiang is reportedly urged to resign by advisers.

They Pull Your Beard!

Professional Ohio Santa Gives Advice

By RICHARD WESP

COLUMBUS, —(AP) — Amateur Santas can take a tip from William F. Davis, a yuletide thespian for 40 years:

"Don't wear your own beard."

"The kiddies will pull it out by the roots," he explained. "A falsie does just as good a job—and it's painless."

Perched on a golden throne in a downtown store's toy department, the 54-year-old trouper beams Christmas cheer on better than 1,000 tots a day.

Davis, who up to a few years ago spent his summers as a circus clown, first donned the red uniform of his trade when he was 14 years old. He was a hit from the start—he had to be, it was in Santa Claus, Ind.

"The business has grown up since those days," Davis chuckled. "There's real competition in the field now. It seems like everyone wants to get in on the act."

Kids are the same as they were in the old days, though, Davis said. They still believe in Santa Claus—and they still expect him to do miracles.

Trying miracles was hardest during the war. "I was the saddest Old Nick in the business then," Davis recalled. "Tots would ask me to bring back their fathers for Christmas. You try to think up an answer to that one."

Davis doesn't try anymore to make his youthful admirers believe he travels in a reindeer sleigh.

"They're too modern-minded for that," he explained. "I tell them I make my rounds in an airplane. Of course, a lot of them have been in airplanes, so it doesn't have the same mystry as a sleigh used to."

One happy innovation in the Santa Claus routine, Davis thinks, is the introduction of "Santabelles" in toyland. Santabelles are attractive girls who keep children happy while the younsters await their turn to shake the famous hand.

Dressed in peaked caps and long, red robes, four of them work in turns, acting as Santa Davis' hostesses.

"That's really progress," Davis laughed.

Old Nick is getting more pay these days, too, Davis said. "When I started in the business, the standard salary was a dollar a day. Now, a good Santa can get anything from ten to 13 dollars a day."

And, he added, Santa can use the extra money. "Prices are the only things that aren't frozen up at the north pole."

19 Madison Pupils Win Places In Dramatics Organization

By ANN DIDICHER

Vacation at last! That means less than a week until Christmas. Hope all the boys and girls have caught up on their shopping.

Nearly 100 students tried out for the 19 open memberships with the Thespians. Those who made it were: Lydia Gross, Jo Ciraulo, Beverly Hunt, Reba Stoffer, Margaret Welch, Bonnie Mottayaw, Ruth Casler, Kay Jesson, Eugene Riblet, Larry Secrist, John Snyder, Mike Lalli, Bill Briggs, Ed Potter, Jack Bosh, Jim Gatton, Stanley Day, Chester Sprague, and Tony Schug.

On Dec. 13 the senior class heard a lecture by Dr. Guy Bingham on "Social Problems." He gave particular attention to marriage, listing six factors in acquiring a pleasing personality. Why don't we have more "guidance for living" sessions?

Eugene Riblet and Jim McMillin were busy the other day teaching Ann Dyson and Ann Didicher to bowl. Also bowling were Gloria Baumberger, Dick Fletcher, Norma Sowash, Shirley Beer, and Shirley Conroy.

Last Wednesday night 42 new members were initiated into GAA. Some unusual things went on, such as when Connie Koogle kissed Mr. Kissel. Carol Motter had to lead the group in a few cheers, because she says our regular cheerleaders aren't very good; Marilyn Hoover took one-handed cartwheels across the gym; Mary Lou Anderson had a raw nose from pushing a penny across the gym floor; Cynthia Laubscher came out attired in a diaper. Despite all that went on, everyone had a hearty appetite and was glad when refreshments were served.

Notes on last year's seniors:

Joanne Betz, Eldon Pritchard, Dick Poth, Alex Bosko, and Bob Kitheart are working at Westinghouse. Janet Zerby can be found in the office at Tappans. . . . Glenna Shade is still managing the lunch counter at Woolworth's. Mary Miller and Dick Schutters are engaged. Kenny Long is still at the Madison theater.

The class of '48 is planning a Christmas dance at the North Lake Park pavilion. It will be held Dec. 29 at 7:30, p. m, for last year's graduating class and their guests.

Don't forget the Christmas Dance at the YMCA on Dec. 20. Myron Hilligoss's band will play.

Excavators Uncover Oddities

Manhattan's 'Basement' Full of Junk

By SAUL PETT, AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK—It all started one day because I am lying on the bed trying to listen to the ball game and the riveters and blasters working on a new building across the street are giving me a bad time, so I got up and crossed the street, dressed, of course.

I should've stood in bed because before I got through making my little complaint about the noise I was all involved in rock fissures and bubbling streams under sky-scrapers and old sailing ships and cannon balls dating way back to the American revolution.

The construction foreman says, before you complain about building in New York, you ought to investigate around about the difficulties of building in New York, so I did. So I'm a blind reactionary for starting the whole fuss in the first place.

Because the building boys do have their problems, especially since this city has enough stuff under its basements and sub-basements to fill a small museum, and it makes you think maybe New York was built in layers. Every time they got tired of one town, they built another one on top without removing the first.

You see, building in upper Manhattan is one thing. It's expensive but not impossible. It's mostly rock, but even the rock takes some crazy turns like at 54th street and 6th avenue where digging the foundation they had to go down only one foot on one side but 90 feet on the other side before they found bedrock.

FIND WHARVES INSHORE

Building downtown is something else because that's where New York ain't what it used to be, according to veteran builders and foundation engineers like Alfred Rheinstein and August G. Sperl. Down there, there used to be lots of streams and ponds and the island was much narrower but a little after the revolution they started filling in all those places and a little later they were padding stuff around the edges to make the island wider.

So now they have to dig down into the fill to lay concrete piles for foundations and as recently as last month, while working on an east side housing project, they found wharves in the silt maybe 170 years old, or at least as old as Satchel Paige's great-grandfather.

Once down on Wall Street, some ancient bags full of Spanish wine were dug up only the wine had turned to vinegar. But another time, during the '30's it was, some excavation workers found crockery bottles full of old English ale maybe 100 years old and they drank the stuff before an uptown museum could lay its hands on it, but you got to remember that was prohibition time and a real drink was hard to come by.

On the lower east side they were digging down only about 12 feet and found the hull of an old sailing ship in the mud, and in the financial district they found human skeletons and Indian arrowheads. The arrowheads were given to a restaurant which prides itself on being historical but the bones were tossed into the city dump because the contractor didn't want his work interrupted by scientists puttering around.

Under the fill along lower Manhattan, if the buildings weren't in the way, you could find lots of submerged brooks and ponds which you can't see on any maps printed later than the early 18th century. There's a brook somewhere under the 102-story Empire State building, but it's bottled up.

Further downtown, under a big hotel, there's a stream still gurgling and this hotel has a big, pretty fountain in the lobby which still uses the very same water from that stream. Once a goldfish wandered down into the underground pipes, clogged things up and almost flooded the lobby.

Diggers also have found cannon balls and an ancient, four-foot wide road made of criss-crossed timber about 14 feet under a downtown street; the remains of a flour mill, 20 feet under; Spanish coins, one wrought iron candle stick, several hand-blown liquor bottles, pieces of English saucers which somebody dated back to the 17th century.

Waves Batter West Coast

LOS ANGELES— (AP) —High waves continued to batter nearby Redondo Beach yesterday, after smashing several houses and driving 20 people from their homes during a storm which brought welcome rain and snow to parched California.

Wind-whipped waves, which left about 250 persons without heat, water or light in the beach community, struck other coastal towns in the season's first major storm. Rainfall topped one inch in many communities and up to two feet of snow fell in the mountains.

All residents in a four-block area of Redondo Beach were evacuated as the surf roared over a seawall. Winds up to 90 miles an hour whipped over the Laguna mountains.

The term "mayor" or "maior" was first used for any person who had supervision of others.

America's Four-Year Plan In Japan Might Take Longer

WASHINGTON — (AP)—America's four-year plan for Japan's recovery may take eight years to succeed.

U. S. officials were reported Saturday to be coming around to such a view, unless the East-West global struggle ceases. They blame the march of communism in China and Japan's own internal troubles.

The prospective response of the state and army departments is a request to Congress next month for increased funds to speed up Japanese trade and industry. Coupled with this is a policy of exerting vigorous pressure by General Douglas MacArthur as supreme commander in Japan to require the Japanese to fight inflation and step up their production.

This outline of official intentions was given a reporter following Friday's announcement of a formal United States order to the Tokyo government to impose promptly a tough new system of control on the Japanese economy no matter how painful it may be.

The China crisis is blamed for adding to American-Japanese difficulty in several ways. It has added to Japanese unrest, reduced further what was once a major market for exports, and clouded prospects that the Japanese steel industry can again get coking coal and iron from communist-held mines on the Asiatic mainland. American coal now is being shipped at heavy expense from as far away as Hampton Roads, Va., to keep the steel mill going. (They are currently turning out about 1,500,000 tons a year, a fifth of the war time peak.

Also made uncertain by the communist march is an American official plan to shift the Japanese occupation gradually from military to civilian control.

There has been no confirmation of published reports that MacArthur already has advised the army department his forces must be increased rather than reduced.

A new austerity order requires Japan to meet the same standard as the western European countries receiving American aid to the economic cooperation administration. It was backed by an implied threat to scale down present assistance (presumably food) unless the Japanese take "resolute and intensive" action to curb mounting inflation.

Many stores will suggest packages of sewing notions for Christmas gifts.

Removal of Housing Chief Woods Demanded By CIO

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Approval of a 14 per cent rent ceiling increase for Wilmington, Del., Saturday drew a CIO demand for the removal of Housing Expediter Tighe Woods.

Woods' action "proves CIO's contention that he should be replaced by an able and fearless administrator," said Leo Goodman, director of CIO's housing committee, in a statement.

Goodman said the CIO notified Woods in early November that the Delaware rent advisory board was not set up in compliance with the rent control law.

"Mr. Woods promised to consider the complaint, but the next thing we heard from him is this public notice raising rents," Goodman said.

"I cannot understand Mr. Woods' determination to put Tom Dewey's rent-raising program into effect before January 20 (inauguration day). Maybe he fears Congress will not raise rents the full 20 per cent which Harry Truman said he would get from a Republican administration."

Woods could not be reached at once for comment.

The local rent board had recommended a 20 per cent increase. In granting the smaller increase, Woods said a rise in landlords' operating costs justify a boost.

The city has about 22,500 rental dwellings. The expediter's order does not affect units built during the war with rents fixed by the priority authorization. Neither does it cover dwellings on which "hardship" increases have been granted since August 27, 1947; units under legal leases, and units first rented after the rent-freeze date.

Goodman said that CIO "joins the city council of the city of Wilmington" in opposing the increase. He voiced hope that the emergency court of rent appeals would disallow it. Since the increase is smaller than requested, the case will go to the court automatically.

U. S. Trade Policy Faces Combing-Out By New Congress

Tariff Barrier Size Will Be Main Issue

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Not since the days of Smoot and Hawley, in 1931, has this nation's policy toward world trade faced such a thorough combing by Congress.

Congress will argue the same old issue: High tariff versus low. But this time it will also talk about the concessions other nations may be willing to make to us in return for lowered tariffs. Debate will rise on two issues:

1. Whether, and if so how, to extend the reciprocal trade agreements program. This is the plan under which the state department horse-trades with other countries to gain advantages for American goods sold abroad in return for advantages offered foreign goods in our stores.

2. Whether this government should sign the charter of the international trade organization (ITO), which the U. S. authored. The ITO was put together last year at Havana by 54 nations with the hope of cutting down world trade barriers.

Government architects of both plans state a broad purpose: To raise the world's living standards through better trade and thereby to stop the spread of communism.

Violent objections to the government program come from some sections of American business, in particular producers of wool, woolen textiles, ceramics, some glassmakers and some mining concerns.

They have told congressional committees that they fear lower tariffs will mean that foreign goods will get into our stores at lower prices. They fear they will lose sales and have to close down some of their business. They said they might have to fire some workers.

Smaller opposition groups include live-stock raisers and raisers of nuts.

This is the story on reciprocal trade agreements:

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce is much in favor of them. It says the way to a richer and more peaceful world lies in a world slogan which it proposes:

"More and more goods at less and less cost to more and more people."

Secretary of State Marshall, in pointing out how many people the rogram touches, said: "foreign policy has taken a seat at the dinner table."

Paul Hoffman, who heads the European Recovery program, and who used to be president of the Studebaker corporation, told a congressional committee:

"It has to be a two-way street. Sooner or later we have to wake up to the fact that unless we are willing to receive goods we cannot expect to receive payment. Tariff reductions should make payments easier."

STARTED IN 1934

The reciprocal trade program started in 1934 when the United States had the highest tariff act in its history, written by Senator Smoot (R-Utah) and Rep. Hawley (R-Ore.).

The Smoot-Hawley tariffs came into effect just when sales were dropping all over the world. They added to the price of foreign goods sold in our market. Foreign sales dropped off here. Foreigners earned fewer dollars and bought less here.

High-tariff men hoped that high tariffs on foreign goods would help keep up the price of American goods in American stores.

But low-tariff men say the Smoot-Hawley tariff caused other nations to throw up fences against foreign goods (many of them ours). Many of those fences remain.

The other nations didn't rely on tariffs so much. Instead they erected various stumbling blocks to foreign goods. They limited the amount of foreign goods their peoples could buy. They taxed foreign goods moving from city to city inside their countries. They told their citizens they could buy one type of foreign goods but not another. They told foreign traders inside their borders that they could only change a limited portion of their profits into other money.

Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull thought that if each country gave in a little we would all sell more to each other.

For example, the U. S. could lower tariffs on stuff brought in from Brazil in return for Brazil's making it easier for Brazilians to buy more American goods.

This was and is the reciprocal trade agreements program. In the past 14 years 41 nations have written trade agreements with us which in different ways cut down barriers to our goods in return for lowered tariffs for their goods.

The state department says that under the last set of trade agreements, written at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1947, we froze tariffs on goods worth $1,225,000,000 coming into our markets in return for the same favor from 22 other nations on American goods. We Actually cut tariffs on a half billion dollars worth of goods in return for reduced rates on the same amount of American goods.

Those deals are in effect now.

The administration will ask Congress to change two ways in which the program now works.

It will be asked to approve such a program for three years, the way the U S did it until the last Congress approved the program for a year only. Government trade experts think a year is too short for American business men to make intelligent commitments.

Congress also will be asked to go back to the old way of making tariff schedules through a committee from seven government agencies: State, Army, Navy, Commerce, Treasury and Agriculture departments and the tariff commission.

The last congress gave the job to the tariff commission, with permission to the President to charge rates, but only after explaining to Congress.

TB Funds $3,000 Short

The Richland County Tuberculosis association still needs more than $3 000 in health seal funds to meet its $14,500 quota for the year, Mrs H. C Brokaw, campaign chairman, said yesterday.

Receipts from the colorful little seals total $11,387, and the association hopes to meet its quota by Christmas, Mrs. Brokaw said.

She said the quota represents the minimum necessary to carry out the 1949 program for tuberculosis prevention and control

Of the funds raised in Richland county, she said, 95 per cent are used within the state and the rest is allocated to the National Tuberculosis association

"We know that many county residents have delayed answering their seal sale letters because they have been busy with other Christmas preparations, but we urge all who have not yet responded to get their checks in the mail at their earliest convenience," the chairman added

Work supported by the sale of Christmas seals in Richland county includes education, case-finding, rehabilitation and medical research.

Erasistratus of Chios developed an atomic theory long before the Christian era.

Stock Prices Held Steady

Most Issues Remain Stable

NEW YORK —(AP)— Enough demand developed in the stock market Saturday to keep prices steady.

Most issues moved only fractionally, if at all, from the previous close. Gains and losses were about a standoff.

Slow business was typical for the two-hour week-end session, with total turnover in the neighborhood of 400,000 shares.

A small amount of tax selling continued as a brake on rising tendencies but traders showed little inclination to get into the market on any scale.

Issues marked up included U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Douglas Aircraft, American Smelting, McIntyre Porcupine, American Can, American Woolen, Santa Fe, Paramount Pictures.

Under mild pressure off and on were General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, American Telephone, Johns-Manville, International Paper, Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, Mission Corp. and Twentieth Century-Fox.

ENJOY TURKEY DINNER

NEW LONDON — Ladies of the Methodist church WSCS here served the 20th annual Christmas turkey dinner of the C. E. Ward company to 225 employes and guests in the church annex Thursday. Rodney Ward, company president lauded the group and Frank Gardell, factory chef, and introduced long-service workers in attendance.

JACKIE AND JUDY UNDERWOOD . . . Children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Underwood, 513 Bowman street

Dear Santa Claus:

We are two little girls who can't write, but this is what we're thinking and we want you to know.

It seems, according to grown-up talk, that this is the time for the annual behavior report, but we aren't sure what Mommy and Daddy mean. We've been pretty good most of the year, but spankings have been needed once in a while.

We want lots of things like dollies, soft, cuddly toys to take to bed with us, pretty picture books so that Grandma can read to us, and lots of little dishes and pull-about toys, too.

This Christmas business is sort of a mystery to us, but everybody seems to be awfully busy getting ready for it. It must be fun. We're just waiting around looking at all those pretty packages, wrapped up, to be opened on that special day. They look like there's something special in them, but Mommy says we have to wait until Christmas.

Why, Santa, aren't you the one who brings all the gifts? They say you do, but still there are those packages looking so nice.

Anyway, Santa, please don't forget to stop at our house and bring us all those things we've asked for.

Lots of love,

Judy and Jackie.

Mansfielder Enjoys Mending Dolls

AILING dolls get a new lease on life after a visit to the doll hospital, operated by Mrs. Florence Donley, 94 North Linden road. Even dolls that reach the emergency ward in pieces are made whole again.

After 16 years' experience, Mrs. Donley can successfully perform just about any "operation," no matter how delicate it might be. Dolls are brought to her hospital from most of the counties in this section of the state, and some are even mailed here from other states.

Mrs. Donley began repairing dolls in Ashland, 16 years ago. Then a widow with a daughter to support, she hoped to develop a business which would provide a steady income. She came to Mansfield in 1933. In 1939, she married John Donley. They reside in a new home to which they moved in February from 827 Park avenue west.

The doll hospital is in the basement, which is neatly equipped and decorated.

Mrs. Donley, a deeply religious woman, saves dolls and at the same time seeks to save souls. Each customer is handed religious tracts, and given a few words of Christian advice.

"Doll repairing is just a hobby for me now," Mrs. Donley explained. "I use the profits to buy Christian literature."

Mrs. Donley began her unique profession without instruction. She had to learn the hard way—by experience, trial and error. Now she is capable of tackling any job in the doll repair line.

"Dolls have changed since I first began," she declared. "The modern rubber dolls are more difficult to repair than the older types."

In former days nearly all dolls came from Germany. They had china heads which never wear out unless cracked or broken.

"The old china dolls are now becoming antiques," said Mrs. Donley. "The better ones bring high prices, ranging from $25 to $75. I still get dolls of this kind from time to time. Some are passed from one generation to another."

During all the years she has been in the doll repair business, Mrs. Donley has purchased her supplies from one firm in New York. And during this entire period she has never received a communication from the firm — or even an answer to her letters. Her orders are filled, sometimes promptly, sometimes slowly.

At one time during war days she waited for three years—but finally the order was delivered.

She has always liked dolls, even as a child. And because of her hospital, they have played an important role in her life.

"But there's one peculiar thing," she mused. "My only daughter — she's 28 now, and married — never cared for dolls. She always wanted stuffed animals, and still has a collection of them."

WHILE CONVALESCING, dolls are kept on shelves which line Mrs. Donley's workshop. There are dolls of every type, along with a few stuffed animals. The doll hospital is located in the basement of Mrs. Donley's home.

DOLLS can be rejuvenated when Mrs. Florence Donley goes to work on them at her doll hospital, 94 Linden road. She is shown above as she prepares to replace a lost arm. Other nearby "patients" are awaiting their turn on the operating table.

Bank Employes Given Party

Employes of the Richland Trust company and their husbands and wives were guests this past week at a Christmas party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Sutton, 442 Parkview street. Mr. Sutton is vice president of the bank.

The guests were served a turkey dinner buffet style from an attractively decorated table. Twenty-two were in attendance. Games and cards were the diversion of the evening and at a late hour gifts were distributed. Prizes went to Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Crider, Mrs. Lewis Remy and Miss Helene Gilbert.

The committee in charge was composed of Miss Betty Hout, chairman, Miss Miriam Wolf, Miss Janet Hoffman, and Dale Arnold surprised the group by taking candid pictures.

Miss Marcella Grau to Be Wed to George Frank, Feb. 23

FRIENDS of Miss Marcella Grau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Grau, 628 Arlington avenue, learned of her approaching marriage to George Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Frank, 597 Maple street, at a lovely party Saturday evening, given at the home of her parents.

Recorded Christmas music was played softly as the guests arrived. The evening was spent in playing bridge at four tables after which dessert was served buffet style from a table decorated with evergreen and white tapers in crystal holders. The centerpiece was a bouquet of green and white carnations. The color scheme of green and white is that of Mr. Frank's fraternity.

Each guest received a small green and white feather trimmed hat with a green ribbon streamer to which was attached a white heart bearing the announcement, reading "I've been keeping it under my hat, but you don't have to keep it under yours, Marcella and George, Feb. 23."

For her wedding, which will take place at the First English Lutheran church at 1:30 in the afternoon on Sunday, the 23rd, Miss Grau has chosen her aunt, Mrs. Carey W. Futch jr., of Columbia, South Carolina, for her matron of honor. The ceremony will be open church. Miss Dorothy Weaver, sorority sister of the bride-elect, and Miss Janet Ackerman will be bridesmaids. Rev. C. P. Mitchell will officiate.

Miss Grau attended Wittenberg college where she was affiliated with Alpha Delta sorority. She is now employed in the office of the Hartman Spreng company. Mr. Frank attended Ohio State university where he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company in the laboratory department.

At the close of the party Saturday evening Mrs. Grau presented her daughter with a gift of linen.

Miriam Rebekahs Plan Installation

Noble grand, Mrs. Howard Markley, presided at the regular meeting of the Miriam Rebekah lodge, No. 388, held in Oddfellows hall.

The visiting committee appointed for the next three weeks is Mrs. C. V. Neff and Mrs. E. S. Beamer. The lodge voted to join with the Oddfellows in celebrating the birthday of Oscar Wylie in January.

At the next regular meeting Wednesday, January 5, officers for 1949 will be installed. The installing officers for the occasion is Mrs. George Heuss, deputy president.

The Past Noble Grand's club will meet Thursday, December 23. The committee in charge is Mrs. Frank Culp, Mrs. J. W. Leistensnider and Mrs. F. E. Domer.

The incoming officers are invited to come to Oddfellows hall at 2 o'clock, January 2, for installation rehearsal.

Banquet Club Has Christmas Dinner

A Christmas party and dinner was held Thursday evening at the Staiger Tea Room by the members of the Banquet club. Thirteen members were seated at one long table decorated in the holiday theme.

Each member was presented with a Christmas corsage from the president, Mrs. Edward McMahon. During the short business session the group decided to adopt a needy family to fix a basket for Christmas.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Eugene McMillen, Lucas road, on January 11. This will be election of officers and books for the new year will be distributed.

DISTRICT MEETINGS

Districts of the First Lutheran church will convene this week for regular session. Members of the Fifth district will meet Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. William Konves, 506 Kentucky avenue. On Tuesday the Eighth district will meet at 2 p. m. in the parish house. The Sixth district members will meet at 2 p. m. at the parish house Thursday.

Sturgeon-Ruby Nuptials Held At Central Methodist Church

TOPAZ satin brocade was used for the two-piece dressmaker suit worn by Mrs. Pauline Yeager Sturgeon Saturday evening when she became the bride of William Charles Ruby of Ashland. The ceremony was solemnized at 8:30 o'clock before the altar of the Central Methodist church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn W. Yeager, 216 Gerke avenue, and Mr. Ruby's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Ruby, 139 East Liberty street, Ashland.

Rev. Frank J. Stewart officiated for the service witnessed by many friends and relatives. A program of nuptial music was played by Miss Elizabeth Burneson, and Master Terry Moore, age 13, was the soloist.

Two seven branch candelabra and two beauty baskets of mixed flowers blended with the background of palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride approached the altar in a suit made with a stand-up collar and circular skirt. Her hat was of gold mesh with brown and gold ostrich trim. Other accessories were in brown and she carried two bronze orchids, tied with gold bow and streamers.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Benjamin D. Worley, sister, who wore a like-styled suit in ice blue brocade with matching bonnet of net with ice blue and pink ostrich trim. Her accessories were in black. She carried three pink gardenias with silver streamers and bow.

Mrs. Yeager chose for her daughter's wedding a gray dress with black accessories and a hat of black, trimmed with gray plume. Mrs. Ruby wore a black dress with black accessories with aqua and silver trim. Both mothers wore corsages of Talisman roses.

Ushering the guests to their pews were Rex E. Matthews and Elmer L. Burson, both of Ashland, close friends of the bridegroom. Serving as best man was Benjamin D. Worley, brother-in-law of the bride.

At 9 o'clock 75 guests were received in the dining room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. A three tiered wedding cake centered the table. Other appointments included a three branch candelabra and beauty baskets of pastel flowers. Hostesses were Mrs. Glen Lanning, who cut the cake, and Mrs. Joseph Beck and Mrs. Henry Mowers, who served punch.

When the newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip the bride wore a dark green gaberdine suit with matching accessories. Her bonnet was of rust transparent velvet and her topper was of beige brown with brown muskrat trim.

After the first of the year the couple will reside in Bellevue.

The bride was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school, Mansfield Business School and is a charter member of Epsilon Tau chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. She was formerly employed by the Globe Steel Abrasive company. Mr. Ruby is a graduate of Ashland high school and Ashland college, with a B.A. degree, also received his masters' degree from Columbia university. He is principal of the Lyme township school, Bellevue.

MEET MONDAY

Members of the Mansfield General Hospital Nurses' Alumni association will hold a Christmas party Monday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Lester Putnam, 177 Rae avenue. There will be a gift exchange.

Miss Sprunger Becomes Bride

er, 1040 Olivesburg road, and Mr. Turner's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James R. Turner, 215 West Kenworth road, Columbus.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Sprunger chose a heavy bridal satin gown, made with a yoke and wide bertha of imported Chantilly lace. The same lace was used as a peplum at the low waist line. The sleeves were long and buttoned with many tiny self-covered buttons at the wrist. The train of the gown was very full and long. Her veil of imported French illusion silk was attached to a tiara of pearlized orange blossoms. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls which had belonged to the bridegroom's grandmother.

She carried a white prayer book which was topped with a large white orchid, showered with baby breath and tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. William Snook, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Rollin Barr, a close friend, bridesmaid. Roberta Ralston served as flower girl. She is the niece of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor and the bridesmaid wore dresses styled alike. Mrs. Snook was attired in apple green and Mrs. Barr wore pink. They were made with sweetheart necklines, short puffed sleeves, tight fitting bodices and long full skirts. The flower girl wore powder blue, made with an off-the-shoulder effect with a wide ruffled bertha of the same material. The skirt was long and full.

The attendants all carried white prayer books, a gift from the bride. Topping the matron of honor's book was a yellow rosebud corsage, showered with baby breath and tied with satin streamers. Mrs. Barr's book was covered with Talisman roses and little Miss Ralston carried pink roses.

Mrs. Sprunger wore for her daughter's wedding a black crepe dress trimmed in pink sequins with black and pink accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias and white sweetpeas. Mrs. Turner chose an aqua wool dress with mink scarf and brown accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias and white sweetpeas.

Serving as best man was Donald Ralston, brother-in-law of the bridegroom's. Ushers were William Snook, brother-in-law of the bride, and Robert Frey, close friend of the groom.

Immediately following the service a reception was held in the church parlors. A four tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, centered the table. One hundred and fifty guests were received by the bridal party. The refreshments were served from a long table decorated with white snapdragons and greens with greenery twined around silver candelabra and tall lighted white tapers. Miss Jean Turner, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. O. L. Budd, aunt of the bride, poured. Mrs. Donald Ralston, sister of the bridegroom, cut the cake.

Later in the day the couple left for a wedding trip to Chicago. For traveling the bride wore a brown tailored wool tweed suit with tan tweed topcoat, brown accessories and a white orchid corsage. After Dec. 27 they will be at home at Cedar Heights road, Circleville, Ohio.

The bride attended Mansfield schools and the Mansfield Business college. She is a member of Nu Phi Mu sorority. Mr. Turner is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Michigan State college, with a bachelor of science degree.

He is employed as a field scout executive for the Central Ohio area council, Boy Scouts of America, in Columbus.

Guests from out-of-town were from South Bend, Ind., Michigan, Illinois, Boston, Mass., Akron, Circleville and Columbus.

PRACTICAL—A pair of smart, American-made gloves are a must for every well-dressed man. These are cape-skin. They are pull-on glace gloves with the vent on the wide and hand sewing around the wrists—a perfect gift for Christmas. You can get them lined with fur or wool too. You won't go wrong if you select a turf tan leather. It'll harmonize with almost everything.

Have You Thought of Gloves For That Last Bit of Shopping?

By ANN SCHOENMAN

IF YOU HAPPEN to fall into the classification of last-minute shoppers who wait until Christmas Eve to start your gift buying, here's a gift always popular, always welcome. A fine pair of leather gloves.

The American manufacturers have created a wide selection of leather gloves for both men and women. These creations which boast of fine detailing and styling make even more luxurious gift items than ever before.

Gloves have even taken on the "New Look" and the "Bold Look." Following the fashion trends, some of the dress gloves in fine doeskin and capeskin are nipped in at the wrist, giving a slender, fitted appearance.

Though simple in line, gloves are touched with lace and ribbon, or with ruffled cuffs trimmed with beading. They make lovely presents, too. For the outdoor girl pigskin gloves in the new trim looking styles are a must for any Christmas list.

There will be the usual blacks, browns, navy blues and whites, but cast an imaginary eye at some of the others which can be yours.

Baby pink ones, so soft and delicate, are made both in kid and suede. If you want a combination hard to beat, use your gloves with a matching scarf of sheer chiffon at your throat, you can find no more flattering accessories anywhere.

Most popular lengths in gift gloves are the short-short and "day-long" (six or eight-button). Day long gloves go particularly well with the three-quarter sleeve length currently popular. "Short-short" is a good rule to follow in buying gloves for the younger ladies.

There is a wide range of colors in gloves for Christmas—enabling you to make a selection that will contrast or harmonize with winter costumes according to your preference. Gloves come in navy, black, brown, popular fiesta wine, continental green, rose beige, balenciaga and other luscious shades.

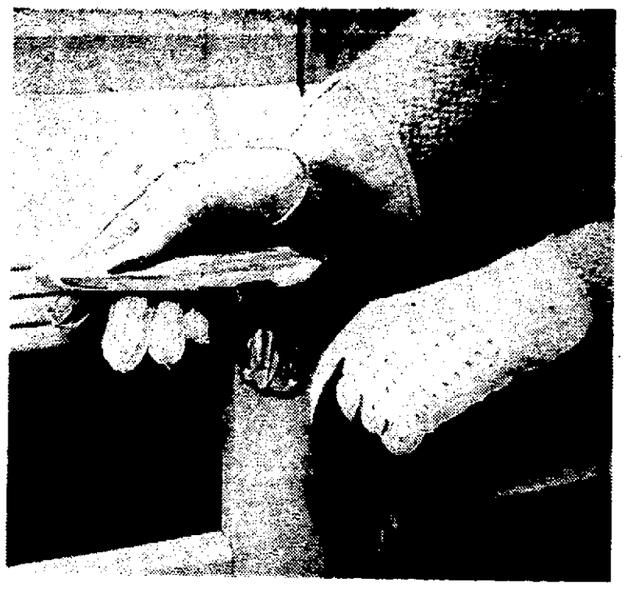
If you're searching for evening gloves, consider the new long kid ones embroidered in rhinestones. In snowy, snowy white they'll make you feel like a queen with the "diamonds" twinkling on your arms.

On the practical side, prices being what they are these days, few women need be reminded that it would take a sizeable bank account to afford all the accessory changes a feminine heart desires. But careful planning, ingenuity and a little labor can provide variety, leaving a little left over for those very special occasion details.

The men have not been forgotten in this year's selection of gift gloves. Store owners are displaying gloves in colors ranging from the usual browns and turf tans to the deep fiesta wine and continental green. This will add a much needed note of color to a man's costume.

Here's a few hints to the woman shopper on what gloves to buy for the men and boys on her list. Pigskin or deerskin for casual or sports wear; fine capeskin for the fastidious business man, and elegant mochas and suedes for dress or dinner wear.

Happy shopping!



DURABLE—Here's the answer to those women who make a point of looking well groomed at all times. For these gloves not only wear well but they're smart looking too. And whether you are driving a car or shopping, they'll give you lasting hand protection. This slip-on style from an American manufacturer, features a pigskin palm and a chamois back. Light in weight and washable.

FASHIONABLE — Quality is combined with fashion in these handsome American-made slip-on glace gloves. They're ideal for daytime suits and woolen or silk dresses. Note the hand stiching around the cuff and the white pearl buttons on either side of the vent to give that smart, new look. The cuff styling makes it easy to slip these gloves over suit sleeves too.

BRIDE-ELECT IS COMPLIMENTED

In compliment to Miss Florence Morris, whose marriage is an event of Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Vinton Childs was hostess to a number of young women at her home on Ausdale avenue, with Miss Martha Evans as associate hostess. Garlands of evergreens were effective in the decoration throughout the house with red roses as the floral adornment. Bridge occupied the early part of the evening and Mrs. Wayne Worthington made high score and presented her gift to the bride-elect. Miniature dancing girls in fluffy red and green skirts, poised on small boxes holding favors marked each cover at the luncheon served at small tables. The dancing girl marked the place of Miss Morris held a ribbon to which was fastened a note, addressed to her and advising her to follow the ribbon which she did and which took her throughout the house and up and downstairs uutil she came to the end of her journey and discovered a lovely gift, the hostesses and guests being the donors. Miss Frances Hughes will be hostoss to Miss Morris, tomorrow evening. Mrs. Charles Arbaugh of Shelby was an out-of-town guest.

ALTRURIANS HAVE ANNUAL PARTY

Mrs. Andrew Theiss of Parkwood boulevard, was hostess at the annual party of the Altrurian club, at her home last evening. Fourteen covers were placed for the covered-dish supper, the table decorations being very effective with poinsetta and red-lighted tapers. At the end of the repast, a large Jack Horner pie was placed upon the table. This bore red poinsettas which the guests drew therefrom, and found each flower attached to a Christmas gift. A social hour with music contributed to a charming evening.

CHRISTMAS FOOD FEATURES

By MARIAN WEST

SOON it will be Christmas, girls, and once again you'll be hard put to think of something new and different in the way of food. This is the time that really puts the menu maker on her mettle.

Of course, you'll hew to tradition in many of the foods you choose. But in the "extras," the relishes and side-dishes, the salads and other specials you'll have an opportunity to introduce a new note.

A friend in need for these subtle variations of the traditional Christmas dinner is the mellow banana. Bananas "as is" make a wonderful fruity salad to accompany dinner. Cooked, they offer still one more flavor variation on a well-liked fruit that you'll find deliciously different, thanks to its oven trip!

Very special, very new, are bananas baked with cranberries. This is a case where a fruit serves as a vegetable course at dinner yet with all the refreshing flavor of a favorite fruit! You might also consider this as a combined relish and vegetable course to set off the rich flavor of a Christmas bird or roast. Here's one you won't want to miss.

Take six firm bananas, two tablespoons melted butter, salt and one cup hot cranberry sauce. Peel bananas. Place into a well-buttered baking dish. Brush well with butter and sprinkle lightly with salt. Pour hot cranberry sauce over bananas. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees farenheit) 15 to 18 minutes, or until bananas are tender . . . easily pierced with a fork. If desired, bake until almost done, then place under broiler heat until tender and browned. Six servings. Serve hot.

By the time Christmas night rolls around no one will be able to eat much but a salad. A fruit salad is particularly refreshing after rich holiday food. But you'll want to make a little gesture of something special to go with the salad and that's where our quick-trick planning comes in. How about a wonderful hot bread, a hot bread fresh from your oven, fragrant with spice and all things nice?

What we suggest is a honey kuchen, made as quickly and thriftily as you please, with cereal for its texture interest ingredient. This hot bread boasts a delicious topping made with brown sugar, spice and cereal flakes. You can make it days ahead and store it until you're ready to use it on top of the bread.

As for the kuchen itself, here's the quick trick for that! You can measure and sift your dry ingredients the day before and keep them ready to mix. Then on Christmas night, you can add the liquid ingredients, put on the topping, and there's your surprise Christmas night feature all ready for the oven!

This is the recipe for the topping: ¼ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine and ½ cup bran flakes or wheat flakes. Mix together brown sugar, spices, melted butter and flakes.

Kuchen: ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flor, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup honey, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons melted fat and 1½ cups bran flakes or wheat flakes. Sift

Dorothy Tahsler Becomes Bride of Mr. Lynch

SIMPLICITY was the theme of the wedding of Miss Dorothy Margaret Tahsler and Robert R. Lynch Saturday at 4 p. m. in St. Luke's Lutheran church. The nuptial vows were spoken before an altar decorated with Christmas greens, palms, two altar vases filled with white flowers and two beauty baskets filled with white, yellow and bronze flowers. Candles lighted the scene.

The Rev. Herbert S. Garnes officiated for the single ring ceremony.

Miss Tahsler is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Tahsler, 1138 Lexington avenue, and Mr. Lynch is the son of Mrs. A. D. Lynch, Miami, Florida.

Mrs. Fred Cahall presided at the organ and L. J. Boylan of Cleveland, Ohio, was the soloist for the nuptial music.

An informal length gown with just a slight back sweep of swishing white taffeta was chosen by the bride. The gown was made with a draped V neckline. The double peplum over the very full skirt extended into the skirt in the back in a V shape giving a bustle effect to the gown. Miss Tahsler wore a bonnet type headpiece of very fine Venice lace to which was attached the imported French illusion fingertip veil. The only jewelry worn by the bride was her mother's pearls. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Tahsler carried a white orchid surrounded by stephanotis on a white Bible.

Miss Eileen Tahsler, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a gown of antique gold. This, too, was made of stiff taffeta with a sheer yoke with a slightly off the shoulder effect. The front of the yoke was squared, edged with a wide bertha. Gauntlets above the elbows were worn. The maid of honor used a little gold mesh bonnet similar in style to that of the bride's bonquet. She carried an arrangement of yellow and bronze talisman roses.

The bride's mother chose a jewel tone sapphire blue dress with grey accessories for her daughter's wedding. She had a gardenia corsage trimmed with a silver ribbon.

Richard J. Sargent, close friend of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Donald H. Tahsler and Arthur L. Weiss, both of Cleveland, cousins of the bride, escorted the guests to their pews.

Immediately following the ceremony 100 guests were present at the reception held at the Sky club. Miss Doris Bush and Miss Julianne Kelley presided at the punch bowl.

For her honeymoon the new Mrs. Lynch wore a copper rose suit with a black fitted coat with a white ermine collar. Her white winter hat was trimmed with seed pearls and rhinestones. She wore a white orchid corsage.

After January 1 the couple will be at home at 155 West Second street.

The bride is a graduate of West high school, Cleveland, and a member of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, Tau chapter. Mr. Lynch graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and Ohio Wesleyan university. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. Mrs. Lynch is a secretary in the sales department of the Westinghouse Electric corporation. Mr. Lynch is an employe of the sales department of the Westinghouse Electric corporation.

Chatter Club Has Yuletide Party

Appointments were according to the yuletide season and miniature Christmas trees formed the table centerpiece when Miss Erma Anderson, 700 Highland avenue, entertained the members of her Chatter club.

Games were the diversion of the evening and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Hazel Cole, Miss Florence Winkler, Miss Frances Desterhoft, Miss Adlene Arnold and Mrs. Marie Becker.

At a late hour refreshments were served and a gift exchange was held.

The Officers and Committee chairman of the Women of the Moose will meet at the Moose home today at 5 p. m. for a Christmas dinner at the home of Mrs. Michael Campanelli, senior regent, 38 Glenwood boulevard. Those attending are to bring their own table service and a gift for an exchange.

MONDAY MEETING

The Royal Regal Garden club will meet at the home of Mrs. Hazel Stough, 231 Rae avenue, Monday for dinner. The members will then go to Mrs. Wilmer Gross' home on Dawson avenue for the remainder of the meeting.

together flour, baking powder, and salt. Combine milk, honey, well-beaten egg, and add to flour mixture. Add fat, mixing only enough to combine. Fold in flakes. Put into greased pan. Sprinkle topping over batter. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees farenheit) 25 minutes.

The youngsters can feast happily on merry little apple cakes, baked in muffin tins and fairly oozing the juicy, fruity flavor of fresh, rosy red apples. Perfect for your holiday serving, you'll want to save this recipe to tuck into school lunch baskets, and for mid-afternoon snacks.

Merry Christmas apple cakes: ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup cold coffee, ½ teaspoon each cinnaron, cloves, nutmeg, ½ cup chopped nutmeats and 1 cup winesap apples, chopped.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add beaten egg and mix well. Measure sifted flour then sift again with salt, baking powder and spices. Add to egg mixture and stir in nuts, apples, vanilla and coffee and blend well. Spoon batter into greased muffin pans and bake in 350 degree farenheit oven 30 to 40 minutes.

When you want egg nog—and all who follow Christmas tradition do—it's easiest to use the ready-mixed kind from your dairy. If you want plain egg nog, it's all ready. You need add nothing. Simply keep it cold until serving time, and at the last minute beat it a little to get a frothy look.

Many families prefer to fold whipped cream into egg nog. This you do at the last minute whether you use the prepared product or mix your own. Also, it's good to shake a bit of nutmeg on top of each filled cup just before serving. If desired, liquor may be added to prepared egg nog as to the made-at-home type. To either, add the liquor before folding in whipped cream.

MEET MONDAY

Daughters of Ruth class of the St. Luke's Lutheran church will meet Monday at 8 p. m. at the home of Miss Mary Beilstein. Misses Martha and Josephine McFarland will have charge of the program.

Club Welcomes Five Members

Five new members were welcomed at the annual Christmas party for Colony club members Friday afternoon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Sixty-six were served at attractively decorated tables for the luncheon meeting. Tall lighted tapers and Christmas tree decorations formed unusual centerpieces for the long tables where the group was seated.

Those received into membership include Mrs. Richard Bates, Mrs. W. B. Kehr, Mrs. J. G. Barthelow, Mrs. Ned A. Thomas and Mrs. Roy Kent. Guests in attendance were Mrs. H. L. Kramer, Mrs. D. T. Crumrine, Mrs. G. F. Kavanaugh and Mrs. J. A. McKee.

The afternoon was spent informally with music as the program. Many favorite Christmas numbers were sung by the Senior high school carolers. Mrs. Joy Herbert favored with several harp selections. The stage was set with a large picture of Santa Claus and Christmas trees. The program was concluded with the group singing Christmas carols, accompanied by Mrs. Richard Wolford.

The committee in charge of arrangements consisted of Mrs. J. W. Culler, chairman; Mrs. A. H. Baerren, Mrs. H. C. Bourne, Mrs. Jay Chabbs, Mrs. R. O. Colwell, Mrs. R. W. Colwell, Mrs. Robert Paxton, Mrs. R. G. Toole, Mrs. W. J. Toole, and Mrs. Robert Wolford.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 13 at the Mansfield-Leland hotel for a luncheon bridge with Mrs. Harry Klee as chairman.

REIKER-RICHERT VOWS PLEDGED IN LOUDONVILLE

Akron Girl Weds Danville Man at Zion Lutheran Church With Rev. Harold T. Grabau Officiating.

LOUDONVILLE—Miss Shirley Reiker, daughter of Floyd E. Reiker of Akron, became the bride of Ralph Richert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Richert of Danville, at Zion Lutheran church in Loudonville, Nov. 27, at 7:30 p. m.

The Rev. Harold T. Grabau read the double ring ceremony, before a lovely decorated altar of palms, ferns and seven branch candelabra. Miss Mary Arline Smith presided at the organ, and Miss Susie Roller, sang several numbers.

Miss Reiker was given in marriage by her father. She approached the altar wearing a white satin gown, fashioned with a low yoke of illusion. Features of the gown were chantilly lace trim, long sleeves and a billowing skirt ending in a cathedral train edged in lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a headdress of seed pearls.

She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Thomas Schick of Barberton, sister of the bride, served as her attendant. She was dressed in a gown of jonquil yellow faille, with a cap of yellow lace, and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. Paul Pryor of Mt. Vernon was best man. Ushers were Neil Staats, Robert Reiker, Gene Horn and Thomas Schick.

For her niece's wedding, Mrs. Margaret Kennan appeared in a black crepe dress with aqua accessories and wore a shoulder corsage of red roses. Mrs. Richert chose a forest green ensemble with brown accessories and wore a yellow rose corsage.

Before leaving on a wedding trip through southern Ohio and Kentucky, the bride changed to a rose dress suit. The newlyweds are at home to their friends at Danville. Mr. Richert is engaged in farming. Mrs. Richert was a former employe of the Fixible company.

Sunday School Class Enjoys Yuletide Party

NORTH FAIRFIELD—Twenty-two enjoyed the lovely Christmas party of the Ready-To-Help class of the Methodist sunday school, Thursday afternoon, at the country home of Mrs. Wilma Smith.

A delicious one o'clock co-operative dinner was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Martha Maerkisch and Mrs. May Cherry. Following the dinner the president, Mrs. Lena Starkey, opened the meeting, and Mrs. Ethel Hankammer presented the devotions, in place of Mrs. Dorothy Mitchell, who was unable to attend.

Mrs. Hankammer read the Christmas Story from Luke, and followed with a chapter from Ben Hur, telling of the birth of Christ. All joined in the Lord's Prayer. During the business session it was voted that the Class contribute $5.00 to the Sunday school Christmas Fund for Chinese children's relief. Plans were also made for the Christmas plates of fruit to be taken to shut-ins and some of the elderly persons in the community.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: president, Mrs. Wilma Smith; vice president, Mrs. Lena Starkey; secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Edna Woodworth; teacher, Mrs. Anna Lee; assistant teacher, Mrs. Ethel Hankammer; flower committee, Mrs. Lou Hankammer.

For the program, Mrs. Grace Baxter, who just recently returned from a visit to California, told of some of the places she visited while there.

Mrs. Ethel Hankammer read a lovely story, "The Littlest Angel", and all answered to roll call with "Christmas Thoughts and Poems". A Christmas exchange, with the gifts surrounding a Christmas tree, which was arranged by Mrs. Mabel Woodruff, was enjoyed by everyone.

SORORITY ELECTS

BUCYRUS — New president of Alpha Pi Sigma sorority is Mrs. Lloyd Candel. Other new officers include: vice-president, Mrs. D. K. Auck; secretary, Miss Maxine Marquardt; treasurer, Mrs. Lawrence Frasch; prelate, Mrs. Richard Leonard; master-of-work, Mrs. Charles Robertson; sergeant-at-arms, Miss Irene Caldwell.

Social Items From Our Neighbors

GALION — Pine boughs were used in profusion with other yuletide decorations for the Christmas party of Olentangy chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which was held at the home of Mrs. Ralph H. Stevens, South State road, Wednesday night. She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Fred Vergon and Mrs. Donald Kelley.

Following a short business session for which Mrs. B. J. Heiser, regent, presided, a Christmas song story program was presented. This was planned by Mrs. Robert Larr who was narrator. The music which depicted the story was furnished by an instrumental trio composed of Miss Lenore Bowdle, violinist, Miss Barbara Triplett, pianist, Charles Halt, cellist, and Mrs. W. E. Lott, soprano solist.

The refreshment table covered with a lace cloth over silver, was artistically decorated. It was centered with a Christmas scene of figurines inside of a large victorian glass dome. Angel hair was used around the base of the dome, and white tapers were lighted on the table.

★

GALION — Past presidents of the Daughters of Union Veterans were entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Lusk. During the afternoon, the following officers were elected: president, Pearl Greter; secretary, Bertha Bower. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Harriet Logan, out-going president.

Buying Rush Draws Thieves

By MARGUERITE MILLER

At this season of "good will toward men," the stolen purse and shoplifting headaches of Mansfield police and merchants multiply.

Ironically, the Christmas spirit does not always bring out the best traits of the species.

"It's larceny," states Police Chief Jesse J. Schwab, "whether a person picks up a purse intentionally or finds it and keeps it for his own gain without attempting to locate the owner."

So, the police are reversing the old "finders keepers—losers weepers" axiom.

And merchants are spotting their "eagle eyes" throughout the stores.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Since the prevention of the crime saves anxious moments and, in many cases, permanent loss of money or valuables, Chief Schwab has these suggestions for the Christmas shopper:

1. Keep your purse in your hand and your packages with you CONSTANTLY.
2. If starting on a long shopping tour, involving many parcels, ask the stores to lay the packages back for you until you can pick them up and take them home immediately.
3. Use your charge account or write checks for your purchases whenever possible. This will eliminate the necessity for carrying much cash in your purse.
4. Never lay your purse down on the counter and walk or turn away even for a second.
5. When packages are left in a car to continue a shopping tour, be sure the car is locked.

As may be noted by the above warnings, most are directed to the women who reportedly lose more purses and packages than do the men. That can be explained by the fact that most women do the marketing and shopping for the entire family.

But it also is interesting to note that most shoplifting is done by women, who evidently know by first hand information the shopping of their sex.

Women and young girls are the worst offenders on shoplifting, agree Mansfield merchants who have recently trapped many a "slick sister" who sets her dishonest foot out the door.

Surprisingly enough, the merchants add that the greatest percentage of shoplifting is done by "people who can easily afford to pay."

One manager of a local department store has apprehended "mother-daughter" teams who work together in snatching as much as they can without paying. Highest "lifting traffic" by women is on cosmetics, jewelry and hosiery.

The slicksters who slip a neglected purse up a coat sleeve generally leave the emptied bag in a ladies' rest room in another store.

"We just can't trust anyone," said one merchant, "and if we catch anyone stealing anything they'll be prosecuted, regardless of who they are."

RIGHT WAY AND WRONG WAY—In top photo Mrs. Paul Lantz, 79 Massa avenue, demonstrates good shopping habits. She has her purse held snugly under her arm, and her parcels are directly in front of her. Instead of carrying a large amount of cash, she pays by check for the article purchased from the clerk, Mrs. Arthur Simpson, 195½ West First street. But, alas, Mrs. Lantz then grows careless. Insert photo shows her purse and packages neglected on counter—tempting bait for a sneak thief. Aha, sure enough, there comes a hand (lower photo) which obviously is up to no good. "Eek, my purse! It's gone!" screams Mrs. Lantz a moment later. Mrs. Lantz was merely posing for the pictures, so she didn't lose her purse. But the same thing can—and does—happen to many careless shoppers.

Navy Wants Ship Engines Made Silent

ANAPOLIS, Md. —(AP)— The Navy is trying to develop ship engines that are so quiet enemy listening devices will be unable to hear them.

The experts have to muffle engine noise to such an extent that it will be quieter than nature's underwater sounds.

"You can't hear a baby crying in a boiler factory," says Capt. Wilson D. Leggett, director of the Navy's new acoustical laboratory here.

In the laboratory's almost perfectly sound-proof compartments, huge ship engines will be hoisted up and turned over. Microphones will pick up the sounds and feed them into delicate noise-measuring instruments.

That's the first thing on the Navy noise doctors' agenda. After they've determined the decibel rating of the various types of submarine and battlewagons engines, they hope to be able to recommend changes to cut down the racket.

Charge Against Boy Dismissed

A theft charge against a 14-year-old boy was dismissed yesterday in juvenile court for lack of evidence. The boy had been accused in the theft of a billfold containing $54 in the YMCA dressing room. He had denied the charge. He had no previous record in court.

A nine-year-old boy accused in the same theft, was warned by the court and ordered to stay out of the downtown area unless accompanied by one of his parents. He was warned about running away from home.

All but $14 of the money, belonging to Robert Seitz, of Logan road, was recovered, officers said.

Rain Falls for 17th Straight Day In Brazilian Flood Area

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—Rain continued falling for the 17th day Saturday on flood ravaged areas of Rio de Janeiro and Minas Gerias states hampering relief operations and bringing threats of still higher water.

Morning newspapers estimated the death toll now had reached 600. Officials have announced the recovery of 310 bodies. Seven thousand persons have been made homeless and more than 1,000 have been injured.

The survivors, many of them huddled in the hills, face the threat of disease and starvation. Dispatches from the flood zone said starvation already has claimed its first victim. Many persons have lost their clothes.

Transportation and communication have been disrupted over an area of 1,200 square miles in the two Brazilian states. Army troops, sanitation crews and Red Cross workers struggled today to help the injured and homeless. Many roads and bridges were washed out, complicating the job of the rescue crews.

City Inspection Not Supervision

Inspection of a house by a municipal building department representative does not mean that construction was supervised by the municipality nor is it a guarantee that specifications were followed.

Granting a certificate of occupancy after such inspection merely means that the builder has conformed to the local building code which sets up minimum standards for structural strength, fire-safety and other factors. Codes do not guarantee quality of workmanship or materials.

Appeals Court Reverses Ruling

AKRON—The East Ohio Gas company is not bound by an injunction order issued by the court of common pleas.

That was the ruling handed down Friday in Akron by the Ninth District court of appeals in the case of Joseph C. Ruhlin, who had applied to the lower court for a permanent injunction restraining the company from shutting off his heating gas.

Soldiers Admit Killing Friend

TOLEDO — (AP) — Two AWOL soldiers, who admitted to authorities the fatal beating of an 80-year-old woman who had befriended them, were charged Saturday with first degree murder.

The soldiers are Harold Sweet, 22, of Johnstown, O., and Ira Thomas Howell, 17, of Affinity, near Beckley, W. Va. Authorities from Fort Jackson, S C, said the men had been absent without leave since Nov. 30.

The victim, Mrs. Lucille Harwold, was found bludgeoned to death last night in the living room of her west side home. The discovery followed a query about her from Erie, Mich., state police. The police said the youths had been picked up after blood stains were noticed on their clothing, and had admitted slugging Mrs Harwold with an iron bar while she was reading

Animal Actors Biggest Hams In Pictures

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Animal actors are the biggest hams in pictures, largely because they are so well treated—and so handsomely paid.

It wasn't always so. Early-day movies often were rough on horses, especially. But 10 years ago the film industry made a pact with the American Humane association.

Directors have learned happy animals speed production. Any infraction of rules these days would be purely accidental, and inspectors like Lloyd Feather are invariably on hand to see that such things do not occur.

Feather, a jovial fellow who looks a little like Santa Claus, is an important man on an outdoor film life "Calamity Jane and Sam Bass." He approves the setups for stunts and falls, and wanders around the sets making certain horses, cattle dogs, chickens and other beasts are properly housed and handled.

"Maybe someone forgets to water them," he said. "This isn't intentional, but it has to be watched."

Feather, born in Panama, Neb., and reared in Lincoln, is paid by the association, but on location trips the studio takes care of his transportation and lodging. The original agreement between studios and association on treatment of animals was arranged by Richard C. Craven, who retired last year as western regional director of the association, and his successor, Mel Morse.

Feather cited one instance in which a studio hired 500 horses from riding academies for use in a picture. Everything was ready to roll when the inspector discovered some of the horses were suffering from saddle sores, a sure sign they had been overworked. This was the fault of the academies, but the studio lost money, in production delays, while the animals were being replaced.

Directors George Sherman, John Ford and Orson Wells are outstanding animal lovers who know how to treat beasts on movie lots, says Feather. Sherman, directing "Calamity Jane," has made 50 films with animals in them.

SWEDISH STAR

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Here's a job for El Brendel:

Viveca Lindfors, the Swedish star imported by Warner Bros., has a Christmas problem. She needs a special St. Nick for her two children, Jan, 5, and Lena, 4.

"Last year," said Viveca, "I got a swedish young man to play Santa for them. They loved him. But he's gone back to Sweden. If I don't find another swedish-speaking Santa Claus, those children are going to be mighty uzzled."

JOAN CRAWFORD

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Joan Crawford, for no stated reason, has been doing some thinking about outstanding representatives of her sex The result is her list of the 10 leading career woman:

Eleanor Roosevelt. "for having the courage of her convictions .. she has no fear .. a brilliant, clear thinker."

Sister Kenny, "a great humanitarian, whose efforts (in combatting polio) are tireless ... "

Marian Anderson. "a beautiful voice and a splendid spirit ..... one of the great women of her race."

Helen Keller, "whose triumph over blindness almost surpasses belief.....her story is one of the great stories of all times, in my estimation."

Emily Post, "what a ruling force she is in society!"

Dorothy Parker, "whose name is synonymous with wit ....."

Elizabeth Arde, "who has done a great job for women ..."

Hattie Carnegie, "a magic name in the feminine world"

Garbo, "as great as she is as an actress, she has succeeded in making a great mystery of mystery.....a truly romantic figure.....fiction comes to life."

LONG-TIME

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Edmund Goulding, a movie director for 25 years, turns actor in "You're My Everything."

This musical, in color, stars Anne Baxter and Dan Dailey It has a Hollywood background, and Goulding will portray himself, circa 1928.

"I've already gone into training," he said on the Twentieth Century-Fox lot. I've got to lose 15 pounds to look my best."

Lamar Trotti, the writer and producer, told Director Walter Lang he had Goulding in mind when he created the story's character. "If you used Goulding as a model, let's try and get him," suggested Lang They did

Actually, Goulding's career began as an actor, in England. But he has never appeared in a Hollywood picture In enacting a silent film director he will furnish his own wardrobe of gray slacks and blue yachting jacket—the same outfit he always wears when actually directing

DEMAREST LOCATES

HOLLYWOOD—(AP) —Willia Demarest insists he has found something new: an Eskimo bobby-soxer.

She is Tutook Uniak (Snow Flower), and the only fan Demarest writes to regularly Tutook, mission-educated, writes English fairly well She saw "The Jolson Story" six months ago, during a visit to Nome, Alaska 350 miles south of her home on the Notak River.

Tutook wrote that she fell in love with Demarest's cello playing She saw the picture five times. and has been writing fan letters to him ever since Demarest is proud of his unique admirer, too.

"Gene Autry and Roy Rogers may get a couple of million letters a year, but I'll bet there isn't a single one from an Eskimo bobby-soxer."

Demarest said he asked her recently what she'd like for Christmas.

"Her answer floored me," he related. "She wants candles and lard. Candles to eat and lard for her hair!"

Party On Thursday

Governor Gets Medal Honors

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Herbert yesterday received a medal sent by the Burgomeister of Vienna, Austria, Theodore Koerner, for his efforts in behalf of the American Silent Guest committee.

The medal was presented to the governor's secretary, Arch Reilly, by Miss Iris Gabriel of New York, committee founder.

The committee asked Americans to put an extra plate at their Christmas dinner table and send the money that would have been needed to feed an extra guest to the committee The committee, Miss Gabriel said, would use the money to feed European children.

Gets School Board Post

Mrs Helen Wilson, of Bellville, was appointed to the Richland county board of education yesterday to fill out the unexpired term of Fred W. Dill. She was named by the board at its December meeting.

Dill, newly-elected county commissioner, resigned his post, effective Dec. 31, to take over his new duties. He was president of the county board.

Mrs. Wilson is president of the Bellville board and may hold both board positions Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said

The county board will reorganize, electing its officers, at its first meeting of the new year, Jan. 15.

Pointer Dies Holding Point

CENTERVILLE, Ia. — (AP) — A thoroughbred pointer paid with his life Saturday because he had been trained never to move off a point.

Earnest Talbert said his dog, "Sam's Airliner," was struck by a train as he pointed from the railroad tracks on a nearby covey of quail.

Talbert valued the five-year-old dog at $1,000 The dog became lost while Talbert was hunting south of here. Talbert said. An engineer on the Centerville, Ia., to Laclede, Mo., line told Talbert how he saw the pointing dog on the tracks as he came around a bend.

Arrest Chief For Murder

EVARTS, Ky.— (AP) — Police Chief Isachar Combs, 28, was charged with murder Saturday and released under $5,000 bond in connection with the fatal shooting last night of Bryan Middleton, 48, restaurant operator here.

Patrolman Lewis Deaton, 32, attempting to help Combs serve a warrant on Middleton, was wounded slightly in the hip. No charge was placed against Deaton immediately.

He said 33 shots were exchanged between the two officers and Middleton in front of the latter's restaurant.

At his hospital bed here, where he was removed from a Kenvir hospital, Deaton gave this account.

"It all started when Combs and I locked up three men last night. One of them had a pint of moonshine. We asked him where he got it and he said from Bryan Middleton."

Deaton said he and Combs obtained a search warrant from Evarts Police Judge J. C. W. Clem and went to serve it on Middleton.

"He came out just as we got there," Deaton said. "He drew two guns and shot I threw one on him and the shooting began I shot eight shots, Combs 10 shots and there were 33 in all."

Combs returned to his duties Saturday after being released on bond.

Fast-Moving Show Lined Up for Annual C. of C. Banquet

Vaudeville Talent Will Cut 'Capers'

Nationally Known Speaker Booked

A top-notch cast of vaudeville talent—many of them professional performers in the old days—will put on the fast-moving "Dixie Capers" at the 37th annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Jan. 14 at the Coliseum.

The 30-minute show will be emceed by Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch who is no stranger to Mansfield audiences in the role of an entertainer.

Rehearsals for the show have been held regularly at North Lake Park pavilion. In addition to songs, and comedy numbers, the capers will include acrobatic dances by Miss Lois Schnitzer, and vocal numbers by an outstanding feminine trio. There are 32 people in the capers' cast.

There will be special lighting effects installed for the Capers and for the other feature attractions. Costumes for the cast are being obtained from a famous theatrical costume house in Cleveland, R. F. Bisbee, chairman of the entertainment program, said.

Harp-violin numbers by Mrs. Joy Herbert and Mrs. Fred Walters and a 25-minue program by Mansfield's Choral society of 50 mixed voices are other feature attractions. A fun number called "Mystery in Bubbles," a 15-minute show by a cast of 14, is another feature on the humorous side of the program.

These numbers will precede the address by the nationally prominent newspaper publisher, Eugene C. Pulliam, of the Indianapolis Star-News. Pulliam also heads a number of other mid-western newspapers and his address in Mansfield will be on the subject, "The World Today."

C. L. VanDerau, who with Reese Mills is co-chairman of the general banquet committee, said yesterday that ticket reservation forms have been sent to all C. of C. members.

Chamber members, their wives and guests have first call on tickets. Letters to members urged them to return their reservation forms at an early date. The ticket sale will be thrown open to the general public after the C. of C. reservations are on file.

Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the ticket committee, said that a crowd equal or better than the 1,700 of last year is expected for the January affair. Seating accommodations are being arranged to provide for an even larger crowd.

The dinner menu consists of prime rib roast of rolled beef. No tickets will be sold after Jan. 7 since the banquet attendance must be known at that time in order to conform to food requirements.

Golden Notes Fade Away

'Sugar Blues' Man Hangs Up His Trumpet, Grows Flowers

MEMPHIS, TENN. — (AP) — The "sugar blues" man has hung up his golden trumpet.

Clyde Mc Coy, who tooted his way to fame in 31 years of dance band trouping, has given up his horn to go into the flower business here. His band played its last stand, several months ago.

He and his wife, Maxine, formerly of the Singing Bennett Sisters, have bought a home here, the first Mc Coy has had since he began his musical career.

"This is something I've been thinking about for a long time," he said. "I've made good money in music, and I've taken care of it. The business has been good to me, and I've had a lot of fun."

But, he added, it's time to quit while he has his health. He's 45, he said, and "a big percentage of band leaders crack up."

Mc Coy has been almost completely identified with the song, "Sugar Blues," which he picked up from the music rack of a Louisville dime store in 1922.

His profit on recordings of that one song has come to over $40,000.

"I never wanted to be at the top," Mc Coy said. Wayne King and I had a long talk about it once. I was right where I wanted to be, with some of them up over me and a lot of them down lower.

"When you're at the top there's only one way to go, and that's down. Fellows like King, Ted Weems and myself—we were in a good bracket."

Mc Coy has some advice for budding orchestra leaders. He said he looked around early and "knew that I wasn't going to drink." The same thing went for gambling.

And you know what kind of place this ex-orchestra leader likes for entertainment? Supper clubs...just music and food.

"Night clubs? I loathe them—the kind with strip teasers and floor shows and maybe gambling. I've never spent a minute in one that I didn't have to."

Angered Posse Nabs Murderer

HONESDALE, Pa.—The capture of a paroled murderer, who shot and stabbed to death a village store clerk and wounded two bystanders, Saturday climaxed a 24-hour manhunt by a shoot-to-kill posse.

A state police detail, part of a 54-man posse which combed mountain woodlands for ex-convict Claude Swingle, 50, seized him last night in a hayloft in a barn at Tresslarsville, Pa., six miles from the scene of the killing.

Matter Gives Light When Spun Swiftly

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—(AP)—A piece of matter will give light when it is whirled fast enough with the same motion as a stone tied to the end of a strong cord. The first practical showing of this light was made at the General Electric company, in a whirling device called a betatron.

The material particles in this whirl are electrons, the smallest known bits of matter. When they go fast enough they glow a dull red, and faster still, they become a blue white.

This is not ordinary light. The electrons don't get hot. They are traveling in a vacuum where there is no friction to heat them. Furthermore they do not give light all over.

In this whirl, the light comes from the end or side of the electron that is in front in the direction of motion. When the electrons are coming toward you in the tube you can see the light. After they have passed there is no light to be seen, because you are looking at their back. The light is due to the energy generated by centrifugal force, the same energy that gave force to the ancient spear throwers' sling.

Lloyd H. Yothers, a real estate dealer, purchased a lilliputian plot about 15 by 15 by 20 feet—sight unseen at a tax sale last March. Including fees, the lot cost about $15. Yothers says he will sell it for its appraised value of $60.

The triangular-shaped plat was the site of a watering trough for horses years ago. Today three heavily-traveled streets intersect where the island is located.

Yothers now is disputing ownership of the plot with the city. Yothers says he's the owner because he holds an auditor's deed. The city says it is the owner because the plot was unoccupied by any owner for more than 21 years and was used by the city for street purposes during this time.

The struggle for ownership started when Yothers dug up a few bricks and placed a "for sale" sign in the middle of the intersection. He said he previously had attempted to put up a building or a sign board, but was halted when the city building department refused to grant a building permit without a court order on grounds that a traffic hazard would be created.

The question arose as to how the island happened to be paved when it was privately owned. The city explained that through non-occupation by the owner and continued use as a throughfare, it was paved at the same time as the street.

While the sign war continues, two questions are unanswered: Who legally owns the land? If Yothers does, does he own the city for the several hundred bricks the city placed on his property?

ECA Imposes Gag On Misuse of Aid

WASHINGTON—The Economic Cooperation Administration has gagged all official talk about reselling of Marshall Plan aluminium and lead to businessmen in this country.

Bryan Houston, ECA's information chief, told newsmen "we are making no further statements on the matter until current investigations are completed."

Pickpockets Active

COLUMBUS — Detectives tightened their watch on downtown Christmas shopping crowds today after seven women reported pickpockets stole more than $425 from their purses while they were shopping.

Air Explosion Claims Seven

ROBELINE, La.—An air force bomber was blown to bits" in an explosion which took seven lives near here late Friday.

Authorities at Barksdale field, La., said five of the victims were air force personnel and two were Navy men. Sheriff Earl Norris reported that a woman's handbag was found in the debris.

The plane exploded as it struck the ground after a sudden plunge, said J. C. Doolittle, an eyewitness to the crash. He said the plane was about 300 feet up when he first noticed it and that its nose suddenly turned down.

Bucyrus Yule Postal Rush Gains Momentum

BUCYRUS—The annual Christmas rush was on in earnest at Bucyrus postoffice Friday.

Nearly 40,000 letters and parcels were dispatched from the postoffice Thursday, exceeding Wednesday's total by nearly 10,000 pieces, Postmaster Carl Young reported.

7 Women Acting As Morals Decoys

SHAMOKIN, Pa.—Seven young women, whose identity is unknown even to police, are patrolling the streets of this mining town after dark to help cut an "astounding" wave of juvenile delinquency.

The women, sworn in by Chief Burgess Thomas Landy, are between 24 and 28 years old and "well able to take care of themselves." They serve as decoys in an effort to break up a mounting wave of delinquency that started two months ago.

U. S. Home Ownership At New High

Fewer Families Rent Properties

More American families own or are buying homes today than ever before, according to the U. S. Census Bureau, which estimates that 15,250,000 are home-owners.

This is 51.4 % of the nation's 25,652,000 families living in cities, towns and villages, and is a 10.5% increase since 1940, when 40.9% of urban families owned their homes.

Of those now owning homes, 1,311,500 have annual incomes under $1,000; 2,226,000 earn between $1,000 and $2,000; 3,400,750 from $2,000 to $3,000; 3,085,500 from $3,000 to $4,000; 5,220,750 have incomes above $4,000.

Of the estimated 14,402,000 families renting their living quarters today, 1,281,778 earn less than $1,000; 3,413,274 earn $4,000 or more.

An estimated 2,200,000 homes (700,000 new houses, 1,500,000 used houses) were sold in 1947. Of these, 858,000 or 39% were bought by families with annual incomes under $3,000. Eighty per cent of all homes sold in 1947 were priced under $10,000; 40% under $5,000.

Rolling Shelves Under Basement Steps Save Space

Waste space under basement stairs can be put to use by fitting under them four or five shelf units built like open bookshelves. Each shelf unit fits under its step, and rolls in and out from under the step on casters.

The end supports of the shelves are boards the same width as the steps, so that when the shelf unit is rolled back beneath its stair-step the space is closed and contents of the shelves hidden. Each shelf compartment rolls on four ordinary flat-base casters bolted beneath the bottom shelf.

Under the average basement staircase, 5 such shelf units, graduated in height as the steps descend, can be fitted. These will contain a total of 10 shelves, each 30 inches long and 8 or 9 inches wide; and will store a three-month supply of canned goods. A list of contents can be attached to each compartment end.

Local Firm Named Agent

Announcement of the appointment of Bishop's Furnace and Sheet Metal company, 791 Springmill street as an automatic heating merchant for the Williams Oil-O-Matic line of automatic oil burners, winter air conditioners and steam and hot water home heating installations was made Saturday by W. A. Matheson, executive vice president of Eureka Williams corporation in charge of the Williams Oil-O-Matic division.

Grover L. Bishop, proprietor of the local firm stated that factory trained experts will be staffed to handle installations of all types of heating equipment from oil burners to completely automatic winter air conditioning or steam and hot water plants.

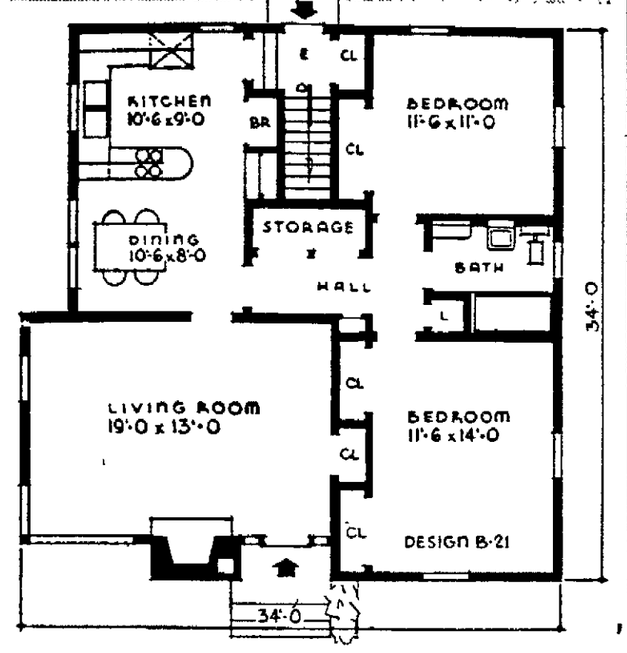
This is a part of an expansion program started last August when the firm opened its new building at the present location.

Modern Woodmen Schedule Party

The annual Christmas party for the children of members and friends of Courtney Camp, No. 3505, Modern Woodmen of America, will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Eagles hall.

The entertainment will be in charge of the junior members of the organization. Movies and a visit from Santa Claus will highlight the party.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS



FEATURES CLOSET SPACE—What every woman wants—closet space—is featured in this house. In addition to large wardrobes in the bedrooms, there is a coat closet at each entrance, a broom closet and storage cabinet in the kitchen, a linen closet and large storage space off the hall. The latter is 6x3 feet, large enough for storage of such items as sewing machine and golf bags. This plan, B-21, by the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn., is adaptable for basement or slab construction. The cellar stairway space offers room for a heater. The house covers an area of 1,084 square feet, and with a 7-foot, 2-inch basement ceiling and 8-foot, 3-inch first floor ceiling, it has a cubic content of 22,690 cubic feet. These figures can be used for local estimates.

Larger Garages Required Today

Today's automobiles are too large for many pre-war garages, since the cars approach 20 feet in length and 7 feet in width.

The difficulty often can be overcome by building a low bay about four feet deep and five feet high across the rear of the garage so that the car's hood can extend into this space.

Care Means Fuel Saving

Now that many homes have been winter-conditioned to make them snug and warm, the advantage gained by closing cracks, installing storm-sash and insulating will be minimized unless home-makers cultivate fuel-saving habits carefully through the cold months. Here are some important suggestions by government agencies and heating experts:

Set the thermostat no higher than 70 degrees. This is comfortable; five degrees higher wastes as much as 20 per cent of the fuel.

Don't keep doors open and hold long conversations with someone outside. For every minute a door is open the house cools one degree.

Don't obstruct radiators or warm air grills with furniture, draperies, dishcloths or drying laundry. Dust radiators regularly to permit maximum heat output.

Draw window shades at night, also in the daytime in very cold or windy weather.

Air the house only at mid-day when it is warmest outside; turn down the thermostat during that period.

Close fireplace damper tightly when the fireplace is not in use.

When bedroom windows are open at night, keep bedroom doors closed to prevent cold air circulating through the house. Bottoms of bedroom doors should be weatherstripped to seal the crack between door and floor.

Ash Routes Announced

City Trucks to Visit 5 of 6 Wards

Union Throws Kids a Party

LAWRENCE, Mass. —(AP)—The CIO Textile Workers union took 7,000 kids to six shows yesterday—and backstage in six theaters there was a sort of track meet.

The CIO hired a dozen movie houses for a Christmas party for the youngsters and gave them films and vaudeville. The union said the fun would cost their treasury "over $1,000."

It meant rushing each film out of one theater and on to the next and the same thing for vaudeville performers who streaked in cabs from one stage to another.

Coming offstage—panting—one performer said:

"We used to do six shows a day for vaudeville. But they were all in the same theater."

MAN'S DEN—One of the highlights of the newly re-decorated Grand Rapids Furniture Museum . . . the illustrated man's den combines the simple lines and warm mellow tones of pine furniture with soft shade of green and brown and accents of lemon yellow to provide a comfortable, inviting setting for the man of the house and his special guests. Principal piece in the room is a large pine Welsh cupboard holding glasses, steins, guns, books—all the accessories and mementoes that will be treasured by men. Unusual wall piece on the right is a pipe rack designed to hold a hundred briars. Simple Colonial accessories accented the conventional Colonial print wall paper in antique green and white—the paneled dado finished in antiqued green.

Improvements Check Loss Of Value In Older Houses

As the supply of homes in many sections catches up with demand, concern is felt by some that value of older houses will decline.

Such a decline need not occur, says the Construction Research Bureau of New York, clearing house for building information, provided owners keep their homes in repair, modernize where possible, and take advantage of materials and equipment now plentiful to add more comfort and convenience to their homes.

A recent national survey by the Bureau indicates that home prices are fairly well stabilized and that there is active demand for used homes.

Purchasers of the older homes demand equipment and conveniences on a par with those going into new homes, it was found.

Among the most-wanted items are up-to-date kitchens; modern bathrooms; complete insulation; efficient heating systems. The last two items are among those most often specified by prospective purchasers, largely because of today's high fuel prices.

Remodeling Changes Door

Once standard features in homes, large arched doorways between rooms frequently present problems for today's homemakers

A simple way to close off such an opening and insert a conventional door is to frame the sides with glass block. Plywood cut to fit forms a valance in the arch at the top.

Besides the block, only a standard door frame is needed for the transformation. If no door is desired, the frame may be left open.

Insulux glass block can be installed with prefabricated wooden strips. This makes it possible to remove the framing and use the block elsewhere, an ideal feature in rented homes or apartments.

The modern framing (above) allows daylight to flow from room to room without destroying privacy. It also gives more effective room space by permitting furniture groupings to the edge of the door jams.

Business World Has 'Revolution'

Profits Being Used to Finance Growth

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A Senate-House economic committee piled up evidence today that a new "revolution" is taking place in the American business world.

It is the growing practice among corporations of using more and more of their profits to pay, for new plants, new equipment and other expansion costs.

Less and less experts argue, is business depending on stock and bond sales to finance its growth. The consumer is footing a major part of the bill of the multi-billion dollar post-war expansion. Stockholders are getting a slice of the profits—but not a big slice.

One report given to the committee estimated business borrowed $4,200,000,000 this year. The securities and exchange commission says business has spent $18,800,000,000 this year for new plants and equipment.

"Undoubtedly," said Prof. Seymour E. Harris, Harvard economist, "a revolution has occurred in financing methods."

Whether this use of profits is right or wrong is a matter of debate.

Labor union spokesmen say it is wrong. But business leaders say they are using the only sound way to meet the demands of the people and the government for more production.

This evidence of a post-war change in business' methods of financing has been given to the Senate-House committee in its two-week study of business' record-breaking profits.

Prof. Sumner H. Slichter, another Harvard economist, believes business has been forced into this method of financing by a timid investing public, uncertain of the future.

There are a few examples of the use of profits for expansion:

The Allegheny Ludlum Steel corporation is engaging in a $25,000,000 improvement and expansion program made possible by better profits.

President H. T. Batcheller told the committee his company has more than doubled its investment in the steel plant since the war. Since 1940, the company has held out $16,000,000 of its earnings while paying "moderate dividends" to stockholders. During this time, net profits increased from $3,823,000 to $6,003,000.

Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, said the use of profits for expansion is a "practice rooted in the nature of our business."

The Studebarker corporation increased its net plant investment by $23,000,000 from an. 1, 1945 to Sept. 30, 1948. President H. S. Vance said the company has re-invested $20,865,000 from profits.

Robert F. Dunlop, president of Sun Oil company, said his company is holding onto the greater part of its profits. The company kept 61 per cent of the profits in 1940, 70 per cent in 1942, 82 per cent in 1946 and 1947, and 88 per cent in the first six months of this year.

Labor union spokesmen take a dim view of business plowing back a high percentage of profits instead of cutting prices or raising wages.

Nelson H. Cruikshank, AFL economist, estimates business is denending on profits to furnish 70 per cent of its new capital.

Stanley H. Ruttenberg, CIO economist, believes the use of profits for expansion is a "dangerous monopolistic practice."

The experts disagree on what should be done about this "drying up" of the investment market.

Meanwhile, business is waiting to see what the government's new tax program will do to their profits.

Ancient Rome had 14 aqueducts which brought in 300 million gallons of water a day.

Is your Furnace a FUEL HOG?
INSULATE
Authorized Baldwin-Hill Contractor
RELIABLE FOR 28 YEARS
Without question you are wasting fuel if your house is not insulated. And that means not just the attic floor but the walls as well. These are strong statements. We would like to prove them to you. Science says that a great amount of heat is lost through uninsulated walls, which comprise 60 to 80 per cent of the exterior surface of the house . . . HEAT YOU'VE PAID TO PRODUCE. But, Baldwin-Hill black Rockwool applied in the sidewalls and roof stops this heat loss. The result? Fewer drafts, a healthier home and savings in fuel up to 40%. It's worth investigating. Last Papers In Spy Case Made Public

Documents Bared By Investigators

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Top secret state department papers indicating Hitler claimed British agreement to the Nazis' moves against Austria and Czechoslovakia were made public Saturday by congressional spy probers.

They were the last batch of 58 documents constituting 114 pages of material which the House un-American activities committee said were filched from state department files and relayed to Whittaker Chambers, ex-communist, for transmission to Russia.

The committee has no evidence Chambers ever sent the documents to Russian agents. The former communist operative has named Alger Hiss, former state department official as one of the sources of his information. Hiss, pleading innocent, is under federal indictment on two perjury charges growing out of the case.

The documents are dated 1938 and 1937. Six of them were copied from microfilm found in a pumpkin on Chambers' Maryland farm. The others were typed copies of files Chambers gave the committee.

Only a handful of documents were withheld from publication at state department request. One of them, at least, referred to activities of Maxim Litvinoff, Russian foreign minister, and Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister.

Seven documents released yesterday were dated in February, 1938, and addressed to the secretary of state, then Cordell Hull. They came from William C. Bullitt, ambassador at Paris; John C. Wiley, consul general at Vienna, and Prentiss B. Gilbert, counsellor of the U. S. embassy in Berlin.

REVEALED NAZI MOVES

Besides referring to Hitler's profession on British support for some of his pre-war moves, the documents dealt with the Nazis' other plans for European conquest and primarily with the pressure applied by the Germans to Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria just before the Nazis took over that country.

In February, 1938, one of the documents related, Hitler's generals had advised against the display of force for another year because they did not believe the German army was ready to fight a major war with France and England.

Those two nations actually declared war on Germany on September 3, 1939, two days after the Nazis entered Poland.

The document in which Hitler claimed British backing was a "rush" and "strictly confidential" message from Wiley to Hull on Feb. 16, 1938.

Guido Schmidt, Austrian minister for foreign affairs, was represented as believing German troop maneuvers on the Austro-German border were not unusual and did not constitute a military maneuver against Austria. However, a month later the troops seized Austria and on March 12 Hitler himself entered that country.

Wiley's note told of Hitler's plans to have Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Austrian Nazi leader, unite Nazi elements in Austria. When Von Schuschnigg resigned as chancellor of Austria on March 11, 1938, Seyss-Inquart succeeded him.

A note from Bullitt, dated Feb. 15, quoted a French informant identified as "Leger" as having reported that Berchtesgaden the Austrian chancellor "had been received with the utmost brutality."

Bullitt sent a second note saying an informant in the Austrian legation had advised him that "for the past two weeks Italy has assured Austria that in the event of German aggression against Austria, Italy will mobilize."

Bullitt sent two other notes, on Feb. 16 and 17, relating conversations with the Belgian ambassador to Berlin and arrangements for a meeting between Joachim von Ribbentrop German foreign minister, and Francois Poncet, French diplomat

Film Writer's Claim Upheld

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A federal court jury took four hours to uphold film writer Lester Cole's suit for reinstatement to his $1,350-a-week job at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, but final judgment will not be made until Monday.

Cole, one of "the Hollywood ten," also sued for $71,550 in back pay. He was suspended a year ago after being held in contempt of Congress for refusing to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether he was a communist.

U. S. Judge Leon R. Yankwich will rule Monday on terms of the judgment.

Red Propaganda Builds New City

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A group of midwestern farmers just back from Europe said they picked up a sample of communist propaganda. It puts a new twist on UNRRA, the former international agency from which Europeans received large amounts of aid.

According to the communists, UNRRA is a Russian city near Moscow.

"Hark! the Herald Angels Sing"

Music's In Air

Second annual city-wide Christmas carol sing will be held tonight under leadership of Mansfield high seniors. The festival, in the making for weeks, has been planned by a Senior high committee headed by Dick Van Voorhis.

Fourteen groups of young people will take their places at an equal number of intersections in the city for their singing march to Central park.

The song-fest will last for half an hour, beginning at 9:45 p. m., the time when the hundreds of carolers are expected to reach the park. Bleachers will be erected this afternoon in the park. There, tonight, 31 members of the Senior class choir and 38 of the Junior class choir, carrying lanterns, will lead the singing for the crowd. They will be directed by Dick Butts.

The marchers who will converge on the park will include groups from the First Evangelical UB, First Presbyterian, First Christian, First Methodist, Park Avenue Baptist, St. John's Evangelical, First Congregational, Mayflower and East Mansfield United Presbyterian churches, and members of the Senior Hi-Y and Senior Blu Tri clubs, the Sophomore Blue Tri and a group of young people from Pavonia.

Mansfield Personalities During Past Week

REV. CARVETH P. MITCHELL

Heading the leadership training committee which met to set up a training course last week under the sponsorship of the Richland County Council of Churches and Christian Agencies was Rev. Carveth P. Mitchell, pastor of the First Lutheran church . . . The course is expected to start Jan. 10, running each Monday night for six weeks . . . Born in Cornwall, England, Rev. Mitchell came to the U.S. about 27 years ago . . . Graduated from Wittenberg college and Hanna Divinity school . . . Came to the pastorate at Mansfield in the spring of 1945 from the Hilltop Lutheran church in Columbus . . . Married, has a small son and daughter, and resides at 187 Western avenue.

ROBERT L. GARVER

As Acting Traffic Commissioner of Mansfield's police department, Robert L. Garver last week headed the committee in charge of the annual schoolboy patrol dinner which turned out to be a turkey feast for more than 200 of the city's youngsters . . . Has served as Acting Commissioner since Oct. 1 when he was appointed to fill the temporary vacancy brought on by the ill health of Fred C. Boals . . . With the department since Aug. 1, 1941 and has served most of the time in the traffic division . . . Spent 37 months in service as B-24 pilot . . . Member of the United Brethren church and the Fraternal Order of Police . . . Married, father of two small children and resides at 357 West Fifth street.

LOUIS G. DOERR

Announcing last week that the highly appreciated Amvet Minstrels will be taken to Crile hospital in Cleveland in January for the entertainment of hospitalized veterans, Louis G. Doerr, general chairman for the show, added that the minstrels have been established as an annual entertainment for the veterans' organization . . . Ohioan Will Get Big Job In Congress

Clevelander Has Long Experience

By FRED J. ZUSY

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Seventy-four-year-old Robert Crosser of Cleveland steps into a big job when the 81st Congress convenes Jan. 3.

In line with the seniority rule which controls committee chairmanships, the veteran Ohio Democrat will become head of the interstate and foreign commerce committee.

This will be Crosser's most important assignment in his 32 years in Congress. He first won his seat in the House in 1913 and with the exception of four years after the first war, has been there ever since.

His committee passes on all legislation relating to such major government agencies as the communications, interstate commerce and power commissions, the civil aeronautics board, the civil aeronautics authority, the public health service, the commerce department and the federal trade commission.

That means it plays an important part in shaping laws concerning radio and television, telephones, railroads, interstate waterways, interstate bus and truck transportation, natural gas, airways, air safety regulations, foreign commerce and other major subjects.

New legislation is likely to be proposed in many of these fields in the coming session.

Allocation of radio and television channels, for example, is a question that may come up. Crosser says it's "not unlikely" his committee will hold hearings in this field.

He intends, however, to confer with members of the committee before deciding on a definite program.

Studies in Ohio show that strip-mine areas, denuded by openpit coal mining, have great possibilities for wildlife and forestry use.

The wildlife management institute reports that C. V. Riley, a graduate student with the Ohio cooperative wildlife research unit has obtained "encouraging results" from research in rehabilitation of these areas.

It says that experimental projects, including planting of trees, bushes and other cover in Tuscarawas county, resulted in larger wildlife populations than on adjacent unmined agricultural lands.

The institute says that organizations working on the problem include the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources, the Ohio Cooperative Wildlife Research unit and the Association of Strip Miners.

Heart disease is the leading cause of death in Ohio, with cancer and other malignant tumors next in importance.

The public health service reports that 26,213 persons died of diseases of the heart in the state in 1947. Another 10,991 died of cancer or tumors.

The heart deaths comprised 31.9 per cent of the total 82,254 state deaths that year. The cancer or tumor percentage was 13.3. Both these figures are nearly identical to national percentages.

Automobile accidents rate 10th among the various causes of death. A total of 1,864 Ohioans, or 2.2 per cent of all those who died, lost their lives in this fashion last year. This is the same percentage as nationally.

Other accidents, exclusive of motor vehicles, took the lives of 3,687 persons in the state.

New Trial Ordered

A new trial of a $25,000 damage suit involving the accidental death of a Mansfield football player has been ordered by thhe Fifth district court of appeals.

An Ashland county Common Pleas court decision for the Pennsylvania railroad as defendant in the action was reversed by the district court. Attorney J. V. Will, representing the accident victim's brother, said yesterday.

The case grew out of the death of Michael Zivkoff, Senior high football star, in a grade crossing crash in Loudonville April 4, 1945. Miss Lois Veach, 16, of Loudonville, Zivkoff's companion, also was killed.

Peter Zivkoff, 470 Cline avenue, brother of the victim and administrator of his estate, filed the damage action against the railroad. He charged negligence.

Judge H. E. Culbertson last March directed a jury to return a verdict for the railroad company on grounds the evidence had showed that the deceased was guilty of contributory negligence.

The appellate court in its opinion held that the evidence and pleadings constituted a jury question as to the negligence of the defendant and no evidence was offered that the decedent was familiar with the railroad crossing or could see well enough at night to be adjudged guilty of contributory negligence.

The plaintiff is represented by attorneys Anderson, Will and O'Donnell, and the railroad by Russell Burt of Canton.

Roseland Grange Plans Dinner Party

Roseland Grange, No. 2668, will hold a covered dish dinner and entertainment Tuesday evening, starting at 6 p.m., at the Delano lodge hall on Bowman street.

The party will be open to Grange members and their families, Olin F. Moore, Grange secretary, said.

Eagles Battle Cardinals In National League

Browns Favored to Win Third Crown

Chicago Is Choice To Repeat

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —Threatened by two kinds of dark clouds — one bearing snow and the other filled with rumors — the Philadelphia Eagles and Chicago Cardinals meet today in the championship play-off game of the National Football League.

The weather threatens to be a major factor in the title tussle before a sellout crowd of 37,000 at Shibe park. The rumors, which have been growing daily, concern the league's draft meeting which will be held Monday, coinciding with the final session of the rival All-America Conference in Cleveland.

NOTHING BUT DRAFT

Officially, nothing is on the NFL agenda but the completion of the player draft. Unofficially there are hints that something more important may take place and discussions around headquarters yesterday were more deeply concerned with the meeting than the playoff game.

Alexis Thompson, owner of the Eagles, has been plumping for an agreement between the two leagues on signing players, a desire with which the All-America circuit is in complete accord. But Thompson is in a New York hospital following an emergency appendectomy and will not be here to argue with the league's "strong" members which are opposed to compromise.

Another situation which likely will come in for considerable discussion is the plight of Ted Collins' Boston Yanks, which have been consistently unsuccessful both artistically and financially. Indications are that the franchise may be moved to some other city before next season. Possibly the change may be effected at this meeting.

ALMOST EVEN

Clashing for the second straight year in the championship game, the Cards and Eagles were rated virtually even in strength. On the basis of past performances and season records, the local betting fraternity installed the Cardinals as 3½ point favorites but the coaches agreed it was a game that might be decided by the weather and the breaks.

The game is scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. and to continue to a finish. If the teams are tied at the end of the regulation playing time, they will continue in a "sudden death" extra period until one or the other scores. If they get bogged down in snow or mud, the "sudden death" period may be just that.

Mansfield Cadet Gives Impression Of Service Clash

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THE ARMY-NAVY football game has always been one of the nation's greatest gridiron spectacles. . . . This year's 21-21 tie was a great upset, since Army was a big favorite, and one of the most thrilling contests of the series. . . . Here's what a Mansfield cadet at West Point thought of the whole affair. . . . He pulls no punches so we give you Cadet Richard C. Cox's opinions in full.

Dear Mr. Tharp:

I don't imagine you've ever heard of me since I didn't participate in any athletics while going to Senior high, but I am really sports-minded and took part in many sports while in the army and do now here at the Point. The reason I'm writing is simply to get a load off my chest about the recent fiasco with Navy.

I don't pose as any authority nor do I fail to realize how little anyone cares for excuses, especially in a fray such as this one that all but avid Army fans were thrilled and pleased with, but I am, and I believe about 2,300 other cadets are also, mighty tired of this big build-up of the Navy and its spirit and the intimation that Army wasn't really so powerful after all and that maybe it should play Vassar (as the Middies taunted before the game). But the reason is not because Navy is our age-old rival—that has absolutely nothing to do with it. It is because not one sports writer has given a good account of the game that lost Army so much prestige and gained Navy so much, undeserved I think, glory.

I've read scores of different articles and comments on the game just looking for the one sports writer who would, after discovering the real reason for the "upset," release the facts, calling a spade a spade, and hence depriving the game of all its supposed excitement and exposing Navy's "near-miracle." However, I'm still looking. I'm sure almost everyone in the Corps of Cadets or anyone associated with it knows the real reasons. It's not like the Army, and in particular of Coach Blaik, to make excuses, no matter how good they are, and I'm not making them either. I just want to point out a few things and let anyone who wants to, think them over and draw their own conclusions.

In the first place, the teams at Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia last Saturday were very evenly matched at that time, and a tie should have been expected rather than marvelled at when it happened. But the Navy team was really the Navy team and it was at its best, physically and mentally. The Army team was not really the Army team—it was at its worst, physically and mentally.

If the team had played Navy any other Saturday of the season, I'd wager that Navy could have used the twenty-one points and possibly a few more that the bookies felt they needed.

And here are the reasons why it was a fact that Army was at its worst physically and mentally. They certainly both tie in together. Injuries to the best players, and the whole team half sick certainly does not build up morales. Army's was as low as Navy's was high. At the pep rally the night before the game, it was quite noticeable that the Corps, reflecting the team's spirits, had not even the spirit showed for the Lafayette or VPI games. Capt. Bill Yeoman himself expressed this thought and seemed quite glum about it. But then how could anybody, especially the captain of the team, feel anything but glum when their team was going into its hardest and most important game of an otherwise successful season when, placed in front of them, was the true picture, which looked like this: the fastest back and backbone of the offense would see little if any action; his runner-up in yards gained and called another "Doc" Blanchard would see little more; the captain of the team and one of the stalwarts of the line, also damaged with a leg injury, would not be at his full strength, and, as it turned out, could play only half his usual game and that half with the disadvantage of his bad leg; the star end and almost a cinch to follow his brother to a spot on the All-American teams within the next few years, was unquestionably out. However, all these facts totaled together still would not have constituted too much of a problem for Coach Blaik to solve with his host of good reserves; but the final blow was landed when the entire Army squad appeared on sick call Friday morning, approximately thirty hours before the big game.

An epidemic of dysentery had been prevalent in the Corps for several weeks, but not until Friday did it deal its crushing blow to the football team by hitting, almost without exception, the entire

Ontario Faces 2 Toughies

By CHARLEY STINE

The "zero hour" for the Ontario high school basketball team is here.

Coach Dick Casad's Warriors have run rough-shod over second-string opposition in five games but this week must beat the best in Richland county league or vacate first place.

Ontario is scheduled to invade Lexington Tuesday and play host to Bellville Thursday night. These two schools were pre-season favorites for the league title and unless the Warriors can make a favorable showing against them, Ontario's early season lead will be discounted.

COMMANDING LEAD?

A victory in both games would give the Warriors a commanding lead, while a defeat in each would leave Lexington and Bellville sharing the top spot. A split would tie Ontario for the lead with the team that beat it.

Bellville and Lexington are now tied for second place with three victories and one defeat each. Lexington defeated Bellville in the season opener and Lucas upset Lexington Friday.

Lucas has probably the easiest schedule of the week as it travels to winless Butler Tuesday and is host to Union Thursday.

Other games Tuesday send Plymouth to Union and Shiloh at Bellville. Only two games will be played Friday.

DONNENWIRTH ON TOP

Plymouth's Desmond Donnenwirth tallied 17 points last week to pull within five of league-leading Howard Sunnucks of Ontario. Donnenwirth, however, will have little chance to overtake Sunnocks this week as Plymouth plays only one game and Ontario two.

Don Smith of Lucas moved into third place with 42 points followed by Dick Dill of Lexington and Bill Smith of Bellville with 41.

Yale Pigskin Mentor Gets Fine Yule Gift

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) —Yale yesterday tore up Herman Hickman's three-year appointment as head football coach and handed him one—for five years. The poet laureate of the Smoky mountains who took over only this year offered no objection.

The action was not expected. Neither was it unprecedented.

Said Athletic Director Bob Kiphuth:

"The announcement speaks for itself. Herman Hickman has created a definite place for himself in the Yale family. I am certain that both Yale and non-Yale people are most gratified at the new appointment and wish Herman every success."

Hickman is at Miami, Fla., where he is preparing a team of northern stars to oppose a southern array in a Shrine-sponsored charity game on Christmas night.

Factually, Kiphuth's announcement came as a vote of confidence. The past season's Yale eleven won only four of nine, the worst record here since 1943. Two of the losses were to the Blue's traditional "Big Three rivals," Princeton and Harvard. Last time that happened was in 1941.

Everybody connected with Yale agrees, however, that Hickman got the most out of the material.

BeeGee 5 Breaks Losing Streak

TOLEDO—(AP)—Bowling Green's Falcons broke a three-game losing string last night by defeating the Valparaiso Crusaders 72-44 before about 5,500 fans in the first game of a basketball doubleheader in University of Toledo fieldhouse.

The victory was the fourth in seven starts for the Falcons, who failed to get rolling until the second half. The Indiana team took a 28-27 halftime lead.

FACE STIFF TEST—The Ontario Warriors, undefeated Richland county league leaders, face a stiff test this week when they meet the two pre-season favorites, Bellville and Lexington. Planning strategy for the games is Coach Dick Casad while listening to the instructions are: first row, left to, right, Jackson Perry, Howard Sunnucks, Charlie Hammer, Don Terman and Rich Hunt; back row, Gene Henke, Rich Miller, Ronald Metcalf, Ken Gabor, Paul Farst, Gerald Berger, and Carl Duffner. All-America Grid Moguls Agree Time For Pro League Peace Is Right Now

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

CLEVELAND — (AP) — All-America conference football owners counted the cash in their pockets yesterday before agreeing with a National league magnate that the time for peace in their gridiron war has arrived.

The conference moguls gave all their eight clubs a financial bill of health, including the dollar-starved Chicago rockets.

Then they agreed with George Halas, owner of the National league Chicago Bears, that the time for peace is now.

Halas, in Philadelphia for that circuit's playoff game, said a "sensible solution" of the situation was due and indicated he would introduce the subject at the National league meeting on Monday.

Jonas Ingram, commissioner of the conference, said he was glad. "I sincerely hope something along that line will develop."

FAVORS PLAYOFF

He added that he still favored a playoff game on Dec. 26 between the champions of the circuits and pointed out that the weather in Los Angeles would be favorable to such a contest.

Otherwise there was little peace discussion. The Moguls here spent the day tackling their own financial ills.

Ben F. Lindheimer, owner of the Los Angeles Dons and chairman of the Conference Executive committee, said that if the Chicago Rockets failed to post a $200,000 guarantee on Feb. 5 in the league meeting at New York another city was willing to take over the club.

He refused to identify the city but there were indications he meant Dallas.

Lindheimer added that financial structures of all eight clubs in the three-year-old professional football conference had passed the preliminary tests. The big question comes on Feb. 5 when the conference holds its annual business meeting in New York and each club must post $200,000.

NEED A RESCUE

This rule was enforced in 1946 but was dropped last year. It was returned to the code book today. During the campaign closing tomorrow with the annual title game, the Rockets had to be rescued by a $100,000 fund raised by other owners in midseason.

The Rockets also were allowed to waive the $15,000 payment to each visiting club in 1948 and finally struggled to the finish. Next year the Rockets must produce the $15,000 for each visitor. Brooklyn also must pay the visiting teams. This season the Dodgers had to pay only $10,000 to each of three other eastern clubs but paid the western teams in full.

The Rockets have had new owners each year since the loop was organized and also a new coach each term, Ed McKeever, current tutor, has two years of his contract remaining and R. Edward Garn, spokesman for the Chicago stockholders, said that virtually the same 1948 backers would operate the club in 1949.

READY FOR DRAFT

Lindheimer was so certain the Rockets would be able to produce their guarantee that he said that the present eight clubs would participate in the annual draft of college talent Monday.

The owners spent most of the day studying the financial ailments. But they also decided that in the future there would be no more share the wealth programs.

A year ago they forced some of the stronger clubs to turn playing talent over to the weaker clubs.

"It didn't work as we expected," said Lindheimer, "for instance neither Los Angeles nor New York was as successful as we had anticipated after losing some stars."

The owners also took a hurried look at the television problem but voted to delay any action until February. Only Cleveland, Buffalo and San Francisco did not televise their home games last season. The other five owners agreed television had hurt their gate receipts.

The suggestion to cut the player limit from 35 to either 30 or 28 was deferred until the February session at which time the owners also will study the possibility of adding more games to the schedule and the possibility of midweek playing dates.

Senior High Cage Outfit Battles Alliance Tuesday

With Madison idle until Jan. 4, Senior high school holds sway over the entire Mansfield scholastic basketball bill of fare during the holidays.

The Tygers entertain the Alliance Aviators Tuesday night and appear in the Lima Central basketball carnival in Lima Dec. 29 and 30. Mansfield battles Greenfield McClain and Central in the joust. The fourth team is the state championship Findlay quintet.

Madison, beaten by a superb Akron South combo Friday, reopens its campaign Jan. 4 at Willard. The Rams had won three straight before losing to Akron.

SPLITS FIRST PAIR

Alliance split in its first two outings and ran up against the strong unbeaten Massillon Tigers last night. The Aviators fell before Canton Lincoln, 52 to 40, but bounced back Friday night to trim East Liverpool, 28 to 25.

Football Coach Mel Knowlton has taken over as Alliance basketball mentor this season. Nip Heim left Alliance to coach the Case Institute in Cleveland. He has only one letterman on the squad — Glenn Likely. Jerry Thorpe, the great Alliance all-Ohio back, teams with Lipely at guard. Thorpe was a reserve last season.

Senior high went down to its first defeat Friday at Bexley, losing 35 to 30. The Bengals have now won three and lost one, averaging 47.3 points to 34 for the opposition.

OPPOSITION SCORES

Here's how some of the Bengal opponents made out Friday: Greenfield 46, Columbus Rosary 34; Canton McKinley 56, Youngstown East 53; Massillon 48, Canton Lehman 30; Ashland 68, Cleveland South 40; Bellevue 39, Willard 34; Port Clinton 46, Sandusky 40; Springfield 49, Lima Central 38; Fostoria 44, Fremont Ross 30; Cleveland Heights 39, Lorain 36.

Scores of Madison opponents were: Bellevue 39, Willard 34; Bucyrus 56, Galion 39; Columbus Central 51, Linden McKinley 44; Rittman 47, Loudonville 38; Lucas 39, Lexington 37; Shelby 42, Upper Sandusky 30.

Bulletin

NEW YORK —(AP)— The National Football league and the all-America conference have agreed to some type of truce, the Associated Press learned last night. An announcement is expected tomorrow. All-America conference officials are in Cleveland for their annual meeting. National league officials are in Philadelphia for a session Monday.

No details of the settlement were learned. The report came shortly after Ted Collins, owner of the Boston franchise of the National league, announced from Philadelphia that he was moving his team to New York.

The first official step in such a peace probably would be the resignation of Admiral Jonas Ingram as commissioner of the AAC and the elevation of Bert Bell of the National league to commissioner of all pro football.

Cleveland Club Has 14 Wins

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's twice-champion Browns go after the third leg on the all-America football conference title cup today.

The baffling Brownies, who have swept through 14 straight games this year for the new loop's only all-winning campaign, meet Buffalo's eastern division winners.

The game starts at 1:30 p. m. and the Browns are almost prohibitive favorites over the New Yorkers, who have lost seven of 15. In fact, should Buffalo win this one it probably would go into the record books as "the miracle of the bills" and erase the Army-Navy and Notre Dame-Southern Cal results from consideration as the surprises of the year.

BROWNS WIN THREE

The Browns have throttled the bills three times this year, once in an exhibition and twice in title games. The Clevelands have piled up 73 points to Buffalo's 27 in the two title games. That's the Browns' best scoring punch against any club, and the victory margin is the greatest.

On offense for the season the two clubs are only a point apart, the Browns having scored 389 to Buffalo's 388. On defense it's all Cleveland, the Browns allowing 190 points while Buffalo foes piled up 375.

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected to less than half-fill the Lakefront stadium, and some of them are looking for an upset. The bills, over the season, have out-gained the Browns 5,421 yards to 5,366, with a rushing edge of 2,738 yards to 2,557. Cleveland paced the passing, 2,809 yards to 2,683.

BILLS HAVE EDGE

While Buffalo had the edge in statistics, automatic Otto Graham, the Browns' pass tosser and wizard of T-formation legerdemain, was expected to provide the difference on the field. The former Northwestern All-America has completed 173 of 333 passes for 2,713 yards and 25 touchdowns, while George (The Kid) Ratterman, Buffalo's aerial artist, has pitched 16 touchdown tosses as he connected on 168 of 335 heaves for 2,577 yards.

Chet Mutryn, the Cleveland boy who spearheads the Buffalo ground forces, has carried the ball 147 times for 823 yards, but big Marion Motley, the line-ripping Brown fullback, has toted the pigskin 964 yards in 157 tries.

WESTERN DOMINATION

The Browns have dominated the Western division of the All-America for three straight years, winning 40 games, losing three and tying one over the long stretch, while Buffalo, twice runner-up for the Eastern division laurels and now the winner, is making its first bid for the overall laurels.

Cleveland has the opportunity to become the first professional club in history to win its league title three years in a row, and also to become the first modern club to win all its games. The Chicago Bears in the last 15 years, have twice won all regular-season contests, but each time lost the title playoff.

The Browns have been installed as 13-point favorites, and the weatherman says "snow and cold."

Cleveland Indians Get Emblematic Gold Rings

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Gold rings, set with half-carat diamonds, have been sent to 27 players and three coaches on the roster of the world champion Cleveland Indians, baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler announced yesterday.

Chandler said it was practice for the commissioner to give rings to the world championship team.

'Cat Fullback Named Big 9's Top Performer

CHICAGO—(AP)—Fullback Art Murakowski of Rose Bowl-bound Northwestern yesterday was named the Big Nine's most valuable player for the 1948 season by the Chicago Tribune.

Murakowski and a player from each of the other conference schools had been nominated most valuable on their respective squads by teammates.

An All-America selection, Murakowski was picked the league's best by a board composed of the nine coaches, officials, commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson, and sports editor Arch Ward and football writer Wilfred Smith of the Tribune.

Murakowski, a junior from East Chicago, Ind., will receive a silver football on the 25th anniversary of the most valuable award.

Runner-up Harry Szulborski, Purdue fullback, received seven mentions. Another fullback, Ohio's Joe Whisler was third, followed closely by guard Dominic Tomasi of Michigan, halfback George Taliaferro of Indiana, and Iowa quarterback Al Di Marco.

Will Justice Win This Duel?

NEW YORK—(AP)—What happens when the nation's record-breaking collegiate punter spirals one at the country's record-breaking punt runback combination?

You'll have to wait until next year for the answer to that one.

It'll be settled New Year's day at New Orleans when All-America Charlie Justice of North Carolina aims his distance-producing foot at the Oklahoma Sooners.

National collegiate athletic bureau statistics released yesterday show that Oklahoma set an all-time team standard of 22.4 yards per runback on 43 enemy punts this year.

A few days ago the bureau disclosed that Justice won the national punting championship with a 44-yard average per kick for 62 punts.

This means that unless he's sticking them out of bounds his net distance is going to be halved by the Sooners.

Oklahoma has a safety tandem of Jack Mitchell, who averaged 23.4 yards on 22 returns, and Darrell Royal, who averaged 30.2 yards on nine runbacks. Between them they hustled five punts back for touchdowns during the season just past. Mitchell ranked second and Royal 14th nationally in punt runbacks. Justice, incidentally, was the eighth-ranking safetyman.

Toughest team against which to return punts was Michigan, No. 1 in the AP poll. The Wolverines gave up only 5.1 yards per enemy return.

Wyoming averaged 27.4 yards on 24 kickoff returns to lead that classification.

The Citadel, Navy, Northwestern, Iowa State and Mississippi held rivals to fewer than 13 yards per kickoff runback.

Mansfield Relays 1949 Date Set

The date has been set for the annual presentation of Mansfield's biggest sports event.

That would be the 18th annual Mansfield Relays. Director Harry Mehock announced last night that the 1949 edition of the country's premier track and field carnival will be staged April 15 and 16 at Stadium field.

Two or three events on the 15th will open the show, with the preliminary heats and finals of most of the events scheduled for the 16th.

Mehock expects the biggest post-war field for the 1949 cinderpath festival. Last year, 65 schools and 949 individuals participated in the 17th relays. The largest field competed in 1939 when 110 schools and 1,500 individuals ran, jumped and threw at the Mansfield oval.

Springfield, 1948 state track and field champion, started its victorious season by copping the Relays with 31.7 points. Columbus Central, 1947 champion, and Dayton Dunbar tied for the No. 2 position with 23 points. Thirty-six of the schools from Ohio and Pennsylvania broke into the scoring column.

The Mansfield Relays holds an unique position in the track world. The local competition is the first big test of the season and enables Ohio coaches to get a look at their stars against the best talent available.

All of Ohio's great track and field stars of the past 20 years have appeared in the Relays which started in 1927. The list includes Jesse Owens, Harrison Dillard, Johnny Linta, Quentin Brelsford, Ollie Cline, Dave Albritton, Bob Wright, Bob Shaw, Mel Walker, and Jack Keller.

Eagles Battle Cardinals In National League

Chicago Is Choice To Repeat

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) —Threatened by two kinds of dark clouds — one bearing snow and the other filled with rumors — the Philadelphia Eagles and Chicago Cardinals meet today in the championship play-off game of the National Football League.

The weather threatens to be a major factor in the title tussle before a sellout crowd of 37,000 at Shibe park. The rumors, which have been growing daily, concern the league's draft meeting which will be held Monday, coinciding with the final session of the rival All-America Conference in Cleveland.

NOTHING BUT DRAFT

Officially, nothing is on the NFL agenda but the completion of the player draft. Unofficially there are hints that something more important may take place and discussions around headquarters yesterday were more deeply concerned with the meeting than the playoff game.

Alexis Thompson, owner of the Eagles, has been plumping for an agreement between the two leagues on signing players, a desire with which the All-America circuit is in complete accord. But Thompson is in a New York hospital following an emergency appendectomy and will not be here to argue with the league's "strong" members which are opposed to compromise.

Another situation which likely will come in for considerable discussion is the plight of Ted Collins' Boston Yanks, which have been consistently unsuccessful both artistically and financially. Indications are that the franchise may be moved to some other city before next season. Possibly the change may be effected at this meeting.

ALMOST EVEN

Clashing for the second straight year in the championship game, the Cards and Eagles were rated virtually even in strength. On the basis of past performances and season records, the local betting fraternity installed the Cardinals as 3½ point favorites but the coaches agreed it was a game that might be decided by the weather and the breaks.

The game is scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. and to continue to a finish. If the teams are tied at the end of the regulation playing time, they will continue in a "sudden death" extra period until one or the other scores. If they get bogged down in snow or mud, the "sudden death" period may be just that.

Mansfield Cadet Gives Impression Of Service Clash

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THE ARMY-NAVY football game has always been one of the nation's greatest gridiron spectacles. . . . This year's 21-21 tie was a great upset, since Army was a big favorite, and one of the most thrilling contests of the series. . . . Here's what a Mansfield cadet at West Point thought of the whole affair. . . . He pulls no punches so we give you Cadet Richard C. Cox's opinions in full.

Dear Mr. Tharp:

I don't imagine you've ever heard of me since I didn't participate in any athletics while going to Senior high, but I am really sports-minded and took part in many sports while in the army and do now here at the Point. The reason I'm writing is simply to get a load off my chest about the recent fiasco with Navy.

I don't pose as any authority nor do I fail to realize how little anyone cares for excuses, especially in a fray such as this one that all but avid Army fans were thrilled and pleased with, but I am, and I believe about 2,300 other cadets are also, mighty tired of this big build-up of the Navy and its spirit and the intimation that Army wasn't really so powerful after all and that maybe it should play Vassar (as the Middies taunted before the game). But the reason is not because Navy is our age-old rival—that has absolutely nothing to do with it. It is because not one sports writer has given a good account of the game that lost Army so much prestige and gained Navy so much, undeserved I think, glory.

I've read scores of different articles and comments on the game just looking for the one sports writer who would, after discovering the real reason for the "upset," release the facts, calling a spade a spade, and hence depriving the game of all its supposed excitement and exposing Navy's "near-miracle." However, I'm still looking. I'm sure almost everyone in the Corps of Cadets or anyone associated with it knows the real reasons. It's not like the Army, and in particular of Coach Blaik, to make excuses, no matter how good they are, and I'm not making them either. I just want to point out a few things and let anyone who wants to, think them over and draw their own conclusions.

In the first place, the teams at Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia last Saturday were very evenly matched at that time, and a tie should have been expected rather than marvelled at when it happened. But the Navy team was really the Navy team and it was at its best, physically and mentally. The Army team was not really the Army team—it was at its worst, physically and mentally.

If the team had played Navy any other Saturday of the season, I'd wager that Navy could have used the twenty-one points and possibly a few more that the bookies felt they needed.

And here are the reasons why it was a fact that Army was at its worst physically and mentally. They certainly both tie in together. Injuries to the best players, and the whole team, half sick certainly does not build up morales. Army's was as low as Navy's was high. At the pep rally the night before the game, it was quite noticeable that the Corps, reflecting the team's spirits, had not even the spirit showed for the Lafayette or VPI games. Capt. Bill Yeoman himself expressed this thought and seemed quite glum about it. But then how could anybody, especially the captain of the team, feel anything but glum when their team was going into its hardest and most important game of an otherwise successful season when, placed in front of them, was the true picture, which looked like this: the fastest back and backbone of the offense would see little if any action; his runner-up in yards gained and called another "Doc" Blanchard would see little more; the captain of the team and one of the stalwarts of the line, also damaged with a leg injury, would not be at his full strength, and, as it turned out, could play only half his usual game and that half with the disadvantage of his bad leg; the star end and almost a cinch to follow his brother to a spot on the All-American teams within the next few years, was unquestionably out. However, all these facts totaled together still would not have constituted too much of a problem for Coach Blaik to solve with his host of good reserves; but the final blow was landed when the entire Army squad appeared on sick call Friday morning, approximately thirty hours before the big game.

An epidemic of dysentery had been prevalent in the Corps for several weeks, but not until Friday did it deal its crushing blow to the football team by hitting, almost without exception, the entire

Ontario Faces 2 Toughies

By CHARLEY STINE

The "zero hour" for the Ontario high school basketball team is here.

Coach Dick Casad's Warriors have run rough-shod over second-string opposition in five games but this week must beat the best in Richland county league or vacate first place.

Ontario is scheduled to invade Lexington Tuesday and play host to Bellville Thursday night. These two schools were pre-season favorites for the league title and unless the Warriors can make a favorable showing against them, Ontario's early season lead will be discounted.

COMMANDING LEAD?

A victory in both games would give the Warriors a commanding lead, while a defeat in each would leave Lexington and Bellville sharing the top spot. A split would tie Ontario for the lead with the team that beat it.

Bellville and Lexington are now tied for second place with three victories and one defeat each. Lexington defeated Bellville in the season opener and Lucas upset Lexington Friday.

Lucas has probably the easiest schedule of the week as it travels to winless Butler Tuesday and is host to Union Thursday.

Other games Tuesday send Plymouth to Union and Shiloh at Bellville. Only two games will be played Friday.

DONNENWIRTH ON TOP

Plymouth's Desmond Donnenwirth tallied 17 points last week to pull within five of league-leading Howard Sunnucks of Ontario. Donnenwirth, however, will have little chance to overtake Sunnocks this week as Plymouth plays only one game and Ontario two.

Don Smith of Lucas moved into third place with 42 points followed by Dick Dill of Lexington and Bill Smith of Bellville with 41.

Yale Pigskin Mentor Gets Fine Yule Gift

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) —Yale yesterday tore up Herman Hickman's three-year appointment as head football coach and handed him one—for five years. The poet laureate of the Smoky mountains who took over only this year offered no objection.

The action was not expected. Neither was it unprecedented.

Said Athletic Director Bob Kiphuth:

"The announcement speaks for itself. Herman Hickman has created a definite place for himself in the Yale family. I am certain that both Yale and non-Yale people are most gratified at the new appointment and wish Herman every success."

Hickman is at Miami, Fla., where he is preparing a team of northern stars to oppose a southern array in a Shrine-sponsored charity game on Christmas night.

Factually, Kiphuth's announcement came as a vote of confidence. The past season's Yale eleven won only four of nine, the worst record here since 1943. Two of the losses were to the Blue's traditional "Big Three rivals," Princeton and Harvard. Last time that happened was in 1941.

Everybody connected with Yale agrees, however, that Hickman got the most out of the material.

BeeGee 5 Breaks Losing Streak

TOLEDO—(AP)—Bowling Green's Falcons broke a three-game losing string last night by defeating the Valparaiso Crusaders 72-44 before about 5,500 fans in the first game of a basketball doubleheader in University of Toledo fieldhouse.

The victory was the fourth in seven starts for the Falcons, who failed to get rolling until the second half. The Indiana team took a 28-27 halftime lead.

FACE STIFF TEST—The Ontario Warriors, undefeated Richland county league leaders, face a stiff test this week when they meet the two pre-season favorites, Bellville and Lexington. Planning strategy for the games is Coach Dick Casad while listening to the instructions are: first row, left to right, Jackson Perry, Howard Sunnucks, Charlie Hammer, Don Terman and Rich Hunt; back row, Gene Henke, Rich Miller, Ronald Metcalf, Ken Gabor, Paul Farst, Gerald Berger, and Carl Duffner. All-America Grid Moguls Agree Time For Pro League Peace Is Right Now

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

CLEVELAND — (AP) — All-America conference football owners counted the cash in their pockets yesterday before agreeing with a National league magnate that the time for peace in their gridiron war has arrived.

The conference moguls gave all their eight clubs a financial bill of health, including the dollar-starved Chicago rockets.

Then they agreed with George Halas, owner of the National league Chicago Bears, that the time for peace is now.

Halas, in Philadelphia for that circuit's playoff game, said a "sensible solution" of the situation was due and indicated he would introduce the subject at the National league meeting on Monday.

Jonas Ingram, commissioner of the conference, said he was glad. "I sincerely hope something along that line will develop."

FAVORS PLAYOFF

He added that he still favored a playoff game on Dec. 26 between the champions of the circuits and pointed out that the weather in Los Angeles would be favorable to such a contest.

Otherwise there was little peace discussion. The Moguls here spent the day tackling their own financial ills.

Ben F. Lindheimer, owner of the Los Angeles Dons and chairman of the Conference Executive committee, said that if the Chicago Rockets failed to post a $200,000 guarantee on Feb. 5 in the league meeting at New York another city was willing to take over the club.

He refused to identify the city but there were indications he meant Dallas.

Lindheimer added that financial structures of all eight clubs in the three-year-old professional football conference had passed the preliminary tests. The big question comes on Feb. 5 when the conference holds its annual business meeting in New York and each club must post $200,000.

NEED A RESCUE

This rule was enforced in 1946 but was dropped last year. It was returned to the code book today. During the campaign closing tomorrow with the annual title game, the Rockets had to be rescued by a $100,000 fund raised by other owners in midseason.

The Rockets also were allowed to waive the $15,000 payment to each visiting club in 1948 and finally struggled to the finish. Next year the Rockets must produce the $15,000 for each visitor. Brooklyn also must pay the visiting teams. This season the Dodgers had to pay only $10,000 to each of three other eastern clubs but paid the western teams in full.

The Rockets have had new owners each year since the loop was organized and also a new coach each term. Ed McKeever, current tutor, has two years of his contract remaining and R. Edward Garn, spokesman for the Chicago stockholders, said that virtually the same 1948 backers would operate the club in 1949.

READY FOR DRAFT

Lindheimer was so certain the Rockets would be able to produce their guarantee that he said that the present eight clubs would participate in the annual draft of college talent Monday.

The owners spent most of the day studying the financial ailments. But they also decided that in the future there would be no more share the wealth programs.

A year ago they forced some of the stronger clubs to turn playing talent over to the weaker clubs.

"It didn't work as we expected," said Lindheimer, "for instance neither Los Angeles nor New York was as successful as we had anticipated after losing some stars."

The owners also took a hurried look at the television problem but voted to delay any action until February. Only Cleveland, Buffalo and San Francisco did not televise their home games last season. The other five owners agreed television had hurt their gate receipts.

The suggestion to cut the player limit from 35 to either 30 or 28 was deferred until the February session at which time the owners also will study the possibility of adding more games to the schedule and the possibility of midweek playing dates.

Senior High Cage Outfit Battles Alliance Tuesday

With Madison idle until Jan. 4, Senior high school holds sway over the entire Mansfield scholastic basketball bill of fare during the holidays.

The Tygers entertain the Alliance Aviators Tuesday night and appear in the Lima Central basketball carnival in Lima Dec. 29 and 30. Mansfield battles Greenfield McClain and Central in the joust. The fourth team is the state championship Findlay quintet.

Madison, beaten by a superb Akron South combo Friday, reopens its campaign Jan. 4 at Willard. The Rams had won three straight before losing to Akron.

SPLITS FIRST PAIR

Alliance split in its first two outings and ran up against the strong unbeaten Massillon Tigers last night. The Aviators fell before Canton Lincoln, 52 to 40, but bounced back Friday night to trim East Liverpool, 28 to 25.

Football Coach Mel Knowlton has taken over as Alliance basketball mentor this season. Nip Heim left Alliance to coach the Case Institute in Cleveland. He has only one letterman on the squad — Glenn Likely. Jerry Thorpe, the great Alliance all-Ohio back, teams with Likely at guard. Thorpe was a reserve last season.

Senior high went down to its first defeat Friday at Bexley, losing 35 to 30. The Bengals have now won three and lost one, averaging 47.3 points to 34 for the opposition.

OPPOSITION SCORES

Here's how some of the Bengal opponents made out Friday: Greenfield 46, Columbus Rosary 34; Canton McKinley 56, Youngstown East 53; Massillon 48, Canton Lehman 30; Ashland 68, Cleveland South 40; Bellevue 39, Willard 34; Port Clinton 46, Sandusky 40; Springfield 49, Lima Central 38; Fostoria 44, Fremont Ross 30; Cleveland Heights 39, Lorain 36.

Scores of Madison opponents were: Bellevue 39, Willard 34; Bucyrus 56, Galion 39; Columbus Central 54, Linden McKinley 44; Rittman 47, Loudonville 38; Lucas 39, Lexington 37; Shelby 42, Upper Sandusky 30.

Bulletin

NEW YORK —(AP)— The National Football league and the all-America conference have agreed to some type of truce, the Associated Press learned last night. An announcement is expected tomorrow. All-America conference officials are in Cleveland for their annual meeting. National league officials are in Philadelphia for a session Monday.

No details of the settlement were learned. The report came shortly after Ted Collins, owner of the Boston franchise of the National league, announced from Philadelphia that he was moving his team to New York.

The first official step in such a peace probably would be the resignation of Admiral Jonas Ingram as commissioner of the AAC and the elevation of Bert Bell of the National league to commissioner of all pro football.

Cleveland Club Has 14 Wins

By FRITZ HOWELL

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's twice-champion Browns go after the third leg on the all-America football conference title cup today.

The baffling Brownies, who have swept through 14 straight games this year for the new loop's only all-winning campaign, meet Buffalo's eastern division winners.

The game starts at 1:30 p. m. and the Browns are almost prohibitive favorites over the New Yorkers, who have lost seven of 15. In fact, should Buffalo win this one it probably would go into the record books as "the miracle of the bills" and erase the Army-Navy and Notre Dame-Southern Cal results from consideration as the surprises of the year.

BROWNS WIN THREE

The Browns have throttled the bills three times this year, once in an exhibition and twice in title games. The Clevelands have piled up 73 points to Buffalo's 27 in the two title games. That's the Browns' best scoring punch against any club, and the victory margin is the greatest.

On offense for the season the two clubs are only a point apart, the Browns having scored 389 to Buffalo's 388. On defense it's all Cleveland, the Browns allowing 190 points while Buffalo foes piled up 375.

A crowd of about 35,000 is expected to less than half-fill the Lakefront stadium, and some of them are looking for an upset. The bills, over the season, have out-gained the Browns 5,421 yards to 5,366, with a rushing edge of 2,738 yards to 2,557. Cleveland paced the passing, 2,809 yards to 2,683.

BILLS HAVE EDGE

While Buffalo had the edge in statistics, automatic Otto Graham, the Browns' pass tosser and wizard of T-formation legerdemain, was expected to provide the difference on the field. The former Northwestern All-America has completed 173 of 333 passes for 2,713 yards and 25 touchdowns, while George (The Kid) Ratterman, Buffalo's aerial artist, has pitched 16 touchdown tosses as he connected on 168 of 335 heaves for 2,577 yards.

Chet Mutryn, the Cleveland boy who spearheads the Buffalo ground forces, has carried the ball 147 times for 823 yards, but big Marion Motley, the line-ripping Brown fullback, has toted the pigskin 964 yards in 157 tries.

WESTERN DOMINATION

The Browns have dominated the Western division of the All-America for three straight years, winning 40 games, losing three and tying one over the long stretch, while Buffalo, twice runner-up for the Eastern division laurels and now the winner, is making its first bid for the overall laurels.

Cleveland has the opportunity to become the first professional club in history to win its league title three years in a row, and also to become the first modern club to win all its games. The Chicago Bears in the last 15 years, have twice won all regular-season contests, but each time lost the title playoff.

The Browns have been installed as 13-point favorites, and the weatherman says "snow and cold."

Cleveland Indians Get Emblematic Gold Rings

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Gold rings, set with half-carat diamonds, have been sent to 27 players and three coaches on the roster of the world champion Cleveland Indians, baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler announced yesterday.

Chandler said it was practice for the commissioner to give rings to the world championship team.

Will Justice Win This Duel?

NEW YORK—(AP)—What happens when the nation's record-breaking collegiate punter spirals one at the country's record-breaking punt runback combination?

You'll have to wait until next year for the answer to that one.

It'll be settled New Year's day at New Orleans when All-America Charlie Justice of North Carolina aims his distance-producing foot at the Oklahoma Sooners.

National collegiate athletic bureau statistics released yesterday show that Oklahoma set an all-time team standard of 22.4 yards per runback on 43 enemy punts this year.

A few days ago the bureau disclosed that Justice won the national punting championship with a 44-yard average per kick for 62 punts.

This means that unless he's sticking them out of bounds his net distance is going to be halved by the Sooners.

Oklahoma has a safety tandem of Jack Mitchell, who averaged 23.4 yards on 22 returns, and Darrell Royal, who averaged 30.2 yards on nine runbacks. Between them they hustled five punts back for touchdowns during the season just past. Mitchell ranked second and Royal 14th nationally in punt runbacks. Justice, incidentally, was the eighth-ranking safetyman.

Toughest team against which to return punts was Michigan, No. 1 in the AP poll. The Wolverines gave up only 5.1 yards per enemy return.

Wyoming averaged 27.4 yards on 24 kickoff returns to lead that classification.

The Citadel, Navy, Northwestern, Iowa State and Mississippi held rivals to fewer than 13 yards per kickoff runback.

Mansfield Relays 1949 Date Set

The date has been set for the annual presentation of Mansfield's biggest sports event.

That would be the 18th annual Mansfield Relays. Director Harry Mehock announced last night that the 1949 edition of the country's premier track and field carnival will be staged April 15 and 16 at Stadium field.

Two or three events on the 15th will open the show, with the preliminary heats and finals of most of the events scheduled for the 16th.

Mehock expects the biggest post-war field for the 1949 cinderpath festival. Last year, 65 schools and 949 individuals participated in the 17th relays. The largest field competed in 1939 when 110 schools and 1,500 individuals ran, jumped and threw at the Mansfield oval.

Springfield, 1948 state track and field champion, started its victorious season by copping the Relays with 31.7 points. Columbus Central, 1947 champion, and Dayton Dunbar tied for the No. 2 position with 23 points. Thirty-six of the schools from Ohio and Pennsylvania broke into the scoring column.

The Mansfield Relays holds an unique position in the track world. The local competition is the first big test of the season and enables Ohio coaches to get a look at their stars against the best talent available.

All of Ohio's great track and field stars of the past 20 years have appeared in the Relays which started in 1927. The list includes Jesse Owens, Harrison Dillard, Johnny Linta, Quentin Brelsford, Ollie Cline, Dave Albritton, Bob Wright, Bob Shaw, Mel Walker, and Jack Keller.

Only Two City Teams Unbeaten

Tire Team Has Three Wins In Row

Of twenty-two teams playing City league basketball all but two have tasted defeat. Only the leaders of the Class B loops—Mansfield Tire and Frankie Mitsch's—have perfect records after three weeks of play.

Mansfield Tire leads the American (Monday night) league with three victories while Mitsch's tops the National (Wednesday) circuit with two wins. Both will go after another victory this week. Mansfield Tire is scheduled to meet Ideal Electric at 8 p. m Monday while Mitsch's faces the Independents at 7 p. m. Wednesdty.

STANDING JUMBLE

The A league standings are somewhat of a jumble as all teams have lost at least one game. Five teams were tied for the lead last week, and while the number has been cut to two, only one of the original quintet has dropped out of contention. Yuncker's was defeated twice last week and fell into sixth place.

Martin Hardware and Ohio Sport Center now pace the circuit with three victories and one defeat and if both can get past Monday opponents they will square off at 7 p. m. Thursday for the league lead.

Should both win Monday, Thursday's game would be the most delectable presented to A loop fans this year. The Hardware quintet plays a deliberate "smart" brand of ball while Sport Center has a fire-wagon style, high-scoring offense.

CASAD IS TOPS

Dick Casad of Rogers Jewelry continues to pace the loop in individual scoring but is almost certain to lose his position this week. Rogers has a bye Monday and Thursday Casad will be busy coaching his league-leading Ontario high school team when it meets Bellville. He now has 67 points to 53 for runner-up Dick Flockenzier.

Scoring races in the other loops are tighter. Bob Meeker of Reese Optical leads the American league with 47 points to 42 by Bob Sands of Westinghouse. In the National, Bob Milligan of Four Square Gospel has 41, but Ralph Postlewaite of the Independents popped in 23 last week to move into second place with 35.

HOPE FOR PRO PEACE—Amid widespread reports that the National Football league and the All-America conference are on the verge of settling their three-year feud and bringing "peace" to professional football, owners of the younger circuit's clubs gather in Cleveland for their annual meeting. From left are (seated) Arthur B. McBride of Cleveland, Ben F. Lindheimer of Los Angeles, Commissioner Jonas Ingram, Walter Driskill of Baltimore; (standing) Dan R. Topping of New York, Branch Rickey of Brooklyn, Anthony J. Morabito of San Francisco and James F. Breucil of Buffalo. (International)

Northwestern's Rose Bowl Special Off to California

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Rose Bowl special pulled out last night, carrying 44 Northwestern University gridders to Pasadena for their New Year's day date with California's Bears.

The Wildcats' 140 piece band and a host of well-wishers were on hand to see them off. The big band will leave Dec. 28. Hopes were strong that Northwestern would be the third consecutive Big Nine representative to win in the Bowl.

Coach Bob Voigts, Athletic Director Ted Payseur, Big Nine Commissioner Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson and other officials were on the special, due to arrive on the coast Monday morning (9 a. m., PST).

TWO DRILLS A DAY

Twice-a-day workouts are in store for the 'Cats for four days, beginning the day after they arrive. They'll have Christmas and Sunday off and the double drills will resume Monday.

Twice-beaten Northwestern is expected to be a slight favorite over the undefeated Bears. Big Nine teams gained plenty of prestige in the last two Rose Bowl games. Underdog Illinois dumped UCLA in 1947 and Michigan swamped Southern California, 49-0, last New Year's day.

'Y' Grade School Basketball Meet Opens Tomorrow

The annual YMCA Junior Elementary basketball tournament will open tomorrow with all ten city grade schools competing.

Two games will open the tourney tomorrow afternoon and additional sessions will be held every day until the finals Thursday.

Bowman and West Fifth will have the honor of opening the joust at 2.30 p. m. with Brinkerhoff and Carpenter meeting in the second game.

Tuesday four quarter-final games will be played. The Bowman-West Fifth winner will meet Rebecca Grubaugh at 2:30, Hedges meets Woodland at 3:15, Bushnell meets the Brinkerhoff-Carpenter winner at 4 p. m. and Prospect meets Newman at 4:45.

Semi-finals will be played Wednesday between the winners of the first and second, and third and fourth games of Tuesday. Finals will be at 2:30 Thursday, with a trophy to go to the champion.

Hedges won the title last year.

Cowboys Win Bowl Contest

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Favored Hardin-Simmons university came from behind with 34 points in the second half to wallop the Ouachita Tigers, 40-12 in the inaugural Shrine Bowl game in Arkansas War Memorial stadium yesterday.

The Cowboys, outplayed and outscored 12-6 in the first two quarters, mixed straight power and razzle-dazzle to turn the game into a rout after the intermission.

The crowd of 5,000 was below the advance ticket sale probably because of the damp weather.

5 Seniors Get Grid Letters

MILLERSBURG — Varsity letter awards have been made to five seniors, nine juniors, six sophomores and one freshman of the Millerburg high school football team.

Given awards were: Seniors, John Hipp, John Painter, John Cox, Don Snyder, and Robert Reynolds. Juniors, Joe Norman, Royal Hall, James Weiss, Howard Skelly, Gary Hall, Herman Cline, Jack Rottman, Dan Kaufman, and Bob Huston. Sophomores, Bob Casey, Bill Shonk, Harold Snyder, Kenneth Stafford, Mike Roberts, and John Fair, and Freshman Gene Low.

Joe Norman was voted the most valuable player on the team. Massillon Coach Chuck Mather addressed the recognition banquet.

Dick Gonzales Rated Tops as U. S. Netter

NEW YORK —(AP)— Dick Gonzales, the tall hombre from Los Angeles who swept through the national championship at Forest Hills, has very properly been ranked the country's No. 1 tennis player for 1948.

The only player who might have halted the coast terror's march to the title—Ted Schroeder of La Crescent, Calif.—has been awarded the No. 2 spot by the selection committee. Schroeder did not play in the championships, but he displayed all his oldtime brilliance in helping squash Australia for the Davis cup.

PARKER IS THIRD

Frankie Parker, veteran two-time former national champion from Los Angeles, was ranked third; Billy Talbert of New York City, fourth, and Bob Falkenburg of Beverly Hills, fifth. Falkenburg won the Wimbledon crown, most glittering of them all, but couldn't beat anybody after that.

Completing the first 10 are Earl Cochell, San Francisco, No. 6; E. Victor Seixas jr., Philadelphia, No. 7; Gardnar Mulloy, Miami, Fla., No. 8; Herbert Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., No. 9, and Harry Likas jr., San Francisco, No. 10.

Boston Plans To Shift Team

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Ted Collins announced tonight his Boston Yanks will play their National Football league games next season at New York.

The owner of the money-losing NFL entry said he has worked out an agreement with the New York Giants which will make possible the shift in sites.

Collins refused, however, to say whether the Yanks would play their games at the Polo Grounds or the Yankee Stadium.

Collins pointed out that league approval is necessary for the shift. He said he expects the clubowners to sanction the move at the annual NFL meeting here Monday.

Dayton Enters Pro Cage Loop

DAYTON —(AP)— Dayton entered the National Professional basketball picture last night with announcement that Detroit's National Basketball league franchise had been transferred here.

Detroit withdrew from the league, and the NBL franchise for Dayton was acquired by Elwood Parsons, who has been promoting professional basketball here for the past eight years.

Dayton will be represented by the New York Rens, one of the outstanding Negro basketball teams in the nation. The team will be known as the Dayton Rens. It will start play in Dayton tonight against the Anderson Packers.

Mayor Promises Columbus Giant Arena Next Year

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — Mayor James A. Rhodes today promised Columbus a $1,000,000 sports arena "within the next year."

Rhodes, national AAU president, said complete plans for the project would be announced before January 1. The arena, he added, might also lead to the city getting a franchise "in one of the topmost ice hockey leagues."

The mayor said he would meet frequently during the next two weeks with local and out-of-town groups interested in operating an all-year-around sports program.

"When we finally decide which group promises the best year-round sports program for the city," he commented, "we'll tie up all loose ends and help obtain the land and financial backing."

The arena, Rhodes said, would have a basic seating capacity of 6,000 for hockey and basketball. An additional 1,500 seats could be installed for boxing and wrestling.

Shotgun Pellets Injure Hunter

BUCYRUS — Cecil B. Roberts, 47, Bucyrus, was admitted to Bucyrus City hospital Friday for removal of two shotgun pellets from his cheek and the bridge of his nose.

The accident occurred along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks near here when a gun carried by a hunting companion was accidentally discharged, Roberts told hospital authorities. He was released from the hospital following treatment of the wound.

Sportsmen's Book Shelf Foot Notes

One of the nicest parts of outdoor writing is the privilege of obtaining 'sneak' previews of the latest fishing and hunting books. Three different outdoor books, all published by the Paul, Richmond, and Company, arrived this past week. They were:

FISHING TACKLE DIGEST

Of the three publications, the work of Frank Steel in compiling this annual digest, review, hints, general fishing coverage, etc., is tops.

The articles are well written (they should be, some of the top names in the fishing world are represented) and cover far more than the title would indicate.

Summary: Don't miss this book. It has an appeal to the average fisherman seldom found in any fishing book.

GUN DIGEST

For the confirmed gun 'crank' who prefers ballistics and scientific data to ordinary shooting, the Gun Digest is a dandy. For the average hunter and shooter, however, it is so filled with technical material that it serves as just what the title indicates, a digest of guns.

Summary: Heavy reading but a 'must' for the ardent shooter.

★

GUIDE TO BEST FISHING
(Robert Page Lincoln)

The by-line on this book proclaims to the world at large that it's filled with interesting facts to the average fisherman. Lincoln doesn't waste time or mince words. If a stream or lake is good, he says so. If not, he's just as quick to tell the bad points.

Due to the time which must elapse between gathering material and publishing the book a few minor errors have crept in, but they are even more rare than might be supposed.

Summary: Plan your vacation trip, lay out your fishing route, then read Bob's book and scrap all your plans. Somewhere in there you're going to find something to beat your previous plans!

There you are, sportsmen, just leave this brief commentary where your wife can't help seeing it and you'll pass some enjoyable winter evenings!—D. M.

Halas Thinks Loops Should Halt Grid War

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)—George Halas, owner and coach of the National Football League's Chicago Bears, said yesterday he believed "something should be done" to settle professional football's cold war.

Here for the NFL championship game between the Chicago Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles, Halas disclosed he discussed the general profootball situation with two rival All-America owners last week.

"I don't believe there is any chance of a common draft between the two leagues but certainly we can sit down together and work out a sensible solution," Halas said.

TALK AT LENGTH

Halas, reportedly one of the few NFL owners making money, said he had talked at length with Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees, and Ben Lindheimer, owner of the Los Angeles Dons, both of the AAC.

"As individuals we had a meeting of minds on the subject," Halas said, adding quickly "but nothing can be done until the league officially takes up a discussion of the matter."

The Bear owner said he wasn't sure if the peace subject would be brought up at the NFL draft meeting Monday.

Lynchburg Mites Win National 100 Pound Grid Title

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Mighty Mites of Lynchburg, Va., won the national 100-pounders football trophy yesterday without scoring a point in the championship match.

The Mighty Mites received the Frank Palumbo trophy after battling to a scoreless tie with the Philadelphia Clickets, sponsored in the Santa Claus Bowl game by Palumbo, Philadelphia night club owner.

Lynchburg was awarded the trophy because it rolled up four first downs to only one for the Clickets in the title game which went four periods of five minutes duration each.

The Mighty Mites beat the Omaha Pure Paks, 27-6, and the Clickets turned back the Durham (N.C.) Civics, 13-0, in the semi-finals of the Bowl tournament played at Frankford Memorial stadium.

Three Fives Are Unbeaten In YMCA Church League

Three teams remain undefeated after two weeks of play in the Senior Church league at the YMCA. St. Matthew's and First Methodist have won two games each while Lucas Lutheran has won one.

First Methodist and the Lucas team will meet in the feature game of Tuesday night's program at 8 o'clock. St. Matthew's will meet Park Avenue Baptist at 9 while First Christian and Ontario Community open the program at 7. United Brethren has a bye.

Bob Meeker of St. Matthew's is the league's leading scorer, followed by John Crouse and Trent Snavely. Meeker has 35 points, Crouse 33 and Snavely 29.

College Grid 11's TD Happy

NEW YORK — (AP) — College football became more "touchdown happy" during 1948 and went in for flashier and trickier attacking maneuvers.

Aside from two-platoon play, the move toward wider-open offense was the sport's most significant trend during the past season, in the opinion of the nation's sports writers.

Participating in the Associated Press' year-end poll, a large majority of the writers said defensive football became an abandoned baby as the teams went for taller and taller scores.

The "T" formation, which has figured prominently in trends of previous years came in for only scattered mention and even then there was no unanimity of opinion about its effect.

Michigan State Trips Iowa; Illinois and Minnesota Win

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — Michigan State won its first game against a Big Nine team since being welcomed into the Western Conference by upsetting unbeaten Iowa 49 to 43 before 5,069 Spartan fans last night.

Although the score won't count in the Big Nine record books, the upset was all the more startling because the Spartans previously had bowed to Michigan 66-43 and to Indiana 48-36.

Michigan State trailed all through the first half and was behind 27-23 at the half.

In the second half the MSC team came to life and knotted the score at 27-all in two minutes of play.

The lead changed hands twice until Michigan State was ahead 36-35 with eight minutes to go. The Spartans started stalling and played control ball with such effectiveness that the Hawkeye's couldn't get a chance to pull the game out of the fire.

Michigan State had a 10-point lead of 49-39 with three minutes to go—the biggest point difference of the game.

squad. Did you ever try to play football either still feeling the effects of or actually still having a disease which weakens its victims as this one does?

That's my sad story and I feel much better. The whole affair is over and dead, but I wanted at least one sports writer to get the whole picture. Did Navy "accomplish a feat of legerdemain before 102,000 astounded customers because of its churning hurricane power headed by big Bill Hawkins and because of its never-say-die spirit?" Ha. I'm laughing.

Sugar Bowl Contest to Be Closest

NEW YORK — (AP) — Based on odds laid down two weeks before the post-season football deluge, the closest of the Jan. 1 bowl games will be played at New Orleans between North Carolina and Oklahoma.

Charlie Justice and his Tar Heel running mates are rated a thin 1½ points over Oklahoma's big seven champions in the Sugar Bowl.

In most of the other games, you have to give or take a touchdown —depending on your choice. None of the big Bowl principals is more than a 7-point favorite, however.

In the Rose Bowl, for instance, twice-beaten Northwestern is rated 6½ points better than California Golden Bears, Pacific coast conference champions who breezed through their campaign without a slipup.

SAME IN COTTON

That's the same margin by which the holder of the other half of the Pacific crown, Oregon, is figured to lose to Doak Walker and the Southern Methodist crew in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

Georgia, the Southeastern conference title winner, is given a 7-point bulge over Texas in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Other games are calculated like this:

Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.—Missouri 7 points over unbeaten, untied Clemson.

Delta Bowl at Memphis — William and Mary 6 points over Oklahoma A. and M.

Dixie Bowl at Birmingham — Baylor 6 points over Wake Forest.

Harbor Bowl at San Diego—Nevada 3 points over Villanova.

These are the only struggles on which the Broadway slide rule specialists are willing to quote odds so far in advance.

SUGAR IS TASTY

Besides offering the game that stacks up as the day's tightest, the Sugar Bowl is bragging about matching the highest ranking combination of Bowl eligibles.

North Carolina, tied by William and Mary in a season that otherwise was all-conquering, was listed third in the final associated press poll, right behind Michigan and Notre Dame. Oklahoma was fifth, behind California.

The Tar Heels will be led by Justice, the All America halfback who was proclaimed in National Collegiate Athletic Bureau Statistics last week as the outstanding triple threat performer of all time.

His individual rival for the afternoon will be Jack Mitchell, wheelhorse of the Sooners' tricky split-T and one of the most versatile backs in the country.

Individual duels will add zest to other New Year's day extravaganzas.

The Rose Bowl, papa of them all, will feature California's Jackie Jensen, an outstanding ball carrier, against Art Murakowski, Northwestern's All America fullback. Both are terrific runners.

The Cotton Bowl at Dallas sends the great Walker, two-time All America and winner of this year's Heisman trophy as the nation's outstanding college gridder, against Norman Van Brocklin, the Webfoot's aerial wizard.

Johnny Rauch, who rated the Associated Press' second all America, is the fellow who lights the fuse under Georgia's Bulldogs. His personal combat with Texas' Roy Borneman will spice the Miami proceedings.

JOE ROMANO

Romano Plans To Play Pro Ball In 1949

Mansfield's Joe Romano, an honorable mention for all-American honors, plans to enter professional football after closing his college career with North Carolina New Year's Day in the Sugar Bowl.

Romano, who played three years at end for North Carolina and one for John Carroll, has had five pro offers and expects to accept one of them for next season. He was all-Ohio for Mansfield Senior high and was outstanding also on the basketball court.

Joe was given honorable mention on the United Press all-American selections. Perhaps his greatest game was the Maryland contest in which he was lauded for recovery of two fumbles and all-around sterling play. Said Bob Latshaw of the Detroit Free Press:

"I came down here to watch Charley 'Choo Choo' Justice but that Romano stole the show."

Romano is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Romano of 22 South Foster street and is 24, weighs 210 pounds,, and stands five-eleven.

Canton Gets '49 Ohio Open

CANTON—(AP)—The 1949 Ohio open golf championship will be held next August at Shady Hollow Country club here, club officials announced today.

The exact date for the tournament will be selected next month at a meeting of club officials and officers of the northern Ohio section of the Professional Golfers association.

Frank Stranahan, Toledo amateur, won the state title this year at Sylvania Country club near Toledo.

Francis J. Corley, secretary-treasurer of Shady Hollow, said a minimum prize list of $3,250 had been drawn up. The club has an 18-hole, 6,400-yard layout.

Ohio Deer Bagged By 2 Bucyrians

BUCYRUS — Successful deer hunting in Ohio was reported Saturday by two Bucyrians. Robert Peterman, residing east of here, returned Wednesday night from Trumbull county, where he bagged a 90-pound deer.

Earlier A. J. Bittikofer, Bucyrus implement dealer, shot a good-sized deer near Youngstown. Peterman was the hunting guest of Rev. James Stinehelfer at Parkman, O. Rev. Stinehelfer formerly was located in North Robinson.
